JANUARY ONE
Trouble 'bout the Christmas season is that when it's gone and done we must face in rime and reason that same January one!

Tain't the fact we weren't merry, didn't have a world of fun, Didn't cross old trouble's ferry; it's that January one!

Sure, the little folks were happy. Why, they stormed about us, bright As in days when we were young ones and the world was love and light. Same old trumpets blowing loudly, same old noise of horn and gun, But the trouble—it comes after, and it's January one!

And it isn't we're regretting all the dear, remembered joys; And it isn't that we're fretting over all the broken toys; It is just, for all the Christmas, with its jollity and fun, We must face the trying future, which calls, "January one!"

Grows Big Radish.—J. C. Eggleston, who has just returned from Coquille, reports that A. F. Bergon there has the honors of big vegetables in this section. He reports that Mr. Bergon grew a radish that measured fourteen inches in length and sixteen inches in circumference. The giant radish weighed six and a half pounds.

Dance Tonight.—A New Year's ball will be given at the Eagles' hall tonight by Lew Keyzer's orchestra. Some new music will make it even more enjoyable than the others of the excellent series of dances Mr. Keyzer has been giving.

Fine Party.—The New Year party given by the Millcoma Club at its club rooms last evening proved to be one of the most enjoyable social functions the club has ever had. There was a good attendance and good music and dancing and other diversions made the last hours of the year pass almost too quickly.

Missed Wedding.—Justice Penock thought this morning that he was going to start the New Year with a wedding. A stranger appeared at his office and made inquiry about how quick he could get a license. Mr. Penock said that he would be able to probably telephone for it and get it at noon or this evening. However, the stranger did not put in an order or leave his name but hastened away, possibly to further consult his prospective bride.

Alaska Curios.—Evert Nymanover, who has just returned from a trip to Alaska, has placed on exhibition at T. A. Saling's store on Broadway a collection of Alaskan curios, which he gathered during his trip. Among them are some heavy gold bearing quartz from the Valdez gold mine, a copper nugget, picture of Katmai volcano eruption June 7 last year, photos of reindeer, Eskimos, and Kodiak Island, rare tusks, etc. It is a very interesting sight.

New Cafe.—C. W. Daly and H. C. Hanawalt have leased the quarters on Front street formerly occupied by the Guntery, which yesterday moved into the quarters vacated by the Coos Bay Cash Store. They will open a restaurant there, calling it "The Right Place." They are experienced restaurateurs, having formerly been engaged in the business at Valdez, Alaska. They are planning to fit up the new quarters in excellent style.

Home Ascertained.—The parties who have been anxiously endeavoring to ascertain the future home of Frank L. Grannis and bride, who are expected home this week, have ascertained that they will live in the Black Apartment House on South Fifth Street. The students and other friends of Mr. Grannis were anxious to "decorate" the quarters before their arrival. The high school students have arranged to present the couple a handsome present as a testimonial of their esteem and good wishes.

PERSONAL NOTES

THE OLD AND THE NEW.
Tomorrow never comes, they say, And yet a year is as a day, As we shall know tomorrow. Tonight the old year goes to rest, His thin hands folded on his breast, His withered lips together pressed, And with him goes his sorrow.

Tonight, e're gray the morning grows An infant, still in swaddling clothes, Will come to earth to greet us, The bells will clamor at the gate, Will shout aloud: "You're late! You're late!" Within his hands he holds our fate, Yet, laughing, comes to meet us.

An old year goes; a new year comes. The sound of bells and muffled drums Are ever close together. The borderland 'twixt life and death Is but a step across the heath. One spans it in a single breath. Be dark or bright the weather.

Tonight the old year folds his wings, Lies to sleep among the kings That wait across the river. To nineteen twelve we say "Good-by!"

To nineteen thirteen, drawing nigh, For mercy we may vainly cry— And time goes on forever. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune
