BETWEEN 25 AND 100 DIE IN HOTEL FIRE AT OMAHA

Loss of Life in Destruction of Dewey Lodging House Today.

FLAMES SPREAD FAST THROUGH BUILDING

About a Dozen Escape—Hotel Register Burns and Victims Unknown.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 28.—A house of guests, perhaps 25, and perhaps 100, were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the Dewey hotel, a second-class hostelry.

The fact that the hotel register was destroyed makes it hard to compile a list of the dead, though a manager says about fifty were killed. Others about the hotel were later rescued.

Only Dozen Escaped. Watchmen, policemen and others in the vicinity declare that not more than a dozen persons escaped from the burning structure.

Here's Our Good, Glad Hand, North Bend

THE ROAD FROM GROUCHTOWN.

Get away from Grouchtown—see the big sun shine. Come on to the dancin'—the girls are all in line.

Get away from Grouchtown! It ain't the place to stay. Where lonesome winter never has a rosy dream of May.

Lonesome place is Grouchtown—never any light. Not a star to twinkle through the shadows of the night.

Far away from Trouble that only would destroy. Ready for the dancin' we'll have a round with joy!

THE action of the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce in endorsing and approving the North Bend jubilee celebration of the commencement of work on the new railway voices the universal sentiment of the city of Marshfield.

Marshfield rejoices in North Bend's joy, is pleased at her pleasure and proud of her prosperity.

Why not? We are neighbors and friends. God and geography has placed us where our destinies are inevitably linked for all time.

No man living can at present place his finger on the exact point on this peninsula that is to be the future commercial center of the city that is to be.

Life is but a brief journey at best. Too brief for bitterness and bickerings. Let us light the miles with smiles instead of sneers.

That's why Marshfield should be merry at North Bend's jubilee. That's why all who possibly can should join in the celebration as a compliment to our sister city.

North Bend: Here's our good, glad hand on it. May tomorrow's sun usher in an era of prosperity and progress that will be perpetual.

Good luck to you North Bend.

HALF HOLIDAY IS DECLARED FOR IT

Large Number of Marshfield Citizens to Participate in Jollification.

Final preparations are being completed this afternoon for the big jubilee and celebration, which will mark the beginning of clearing the right of way for the Southern Pacific construction in North Bend.

Acting Mayor Falkenstein of North Bend has declared a half holiday for the occasion, and all the mills and factories will be shut down.

The scene will be on the old A. M. Simpson homestead, where Captain Simpson entered in 1854. The man selected to start the cutting of the first tree is Robert Simpson, who, although not a relative of Captain A. M. Simpson, is one of the oldest living pioneers of Coos Bay.

Prior to the program, the North Bend band will head a parade from Virginia and Sherman streets to the park. The Marshfield band is expected to join in it.

The committee in charge has arranged so that autos can go direct to the scene on plank roads. A plank turning table has been put in so that autos will not have to get into the mud.

Chairman of the day—Dr. Bartle. Speakers—A. H. Derbyshire, Peter Loggie, Neil McLeod, J. W. Bennett, C. R. Peck, W. S. Chandler, Judge J. S. Coke and others.
