Pastor Hits Giggling Girls, Cigarette-Smoking Men and Clandestine Marriages.
COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 27.—Giggling girls, cigarette-smoking young men and clandestine marriages were denounced in no uncertain terms by Rev. A. R. O'Connell, pastor of the Third Street Methodist church, in his sermon on "Courtship."
Addressing himself to the young men, he said: "Young man, you don't want a butterfly, but a wife. After the dressmaker, the hairdresser, the jeweler and the master of cosmetic art have gotten through with a girl, God only knows, young man, what you are getting. More than one well-meaning swain has in all sincerity contracted for goods that upon delivery he found to be decidedly not up to the sample. Young man don't want a giggling nonentity or a painted doll, who wants to be 'just a sweet little thing' and the height of whose ambition is to look cute. You don't want a frivolous, gossiping gadabout or a bunch of artificialities that leave you to wonder when the humbug ends and the actual woman begins."
However, a warning, just as unmistakable, was in store for the young women. Rev. Mr. O'Connell proceeded: "Young woman, you also had better look before you leap. You have a right to marry a good man, and don't you obligate yourself to anything short of your just right. God help the woman who wakes up to the fact, when it is too late, that instead of a man she is tied up to a spindle-legged, cigarette-smoking fool. Just as soon as you find out that the young man with whom you are keeping company is addicted to liquor, is consorting with the kind of people that are not fit for a decent person to be associated with, or who is habitually out of a job, you had better give him up. And do the same thing with an effeminate man, one of these things that smirks and simpers and glides, doing up his hair with curling tongs and wearing corsets to improve his shape, falling in love with any pretty face it sees and fit to fill but one position, termed in Boston a "boiler-maker." Character is the thing you want."

FOWL PROBLEMS

The answer to the first query is Henrietta (Hen-rye-Etta.) It will be fun to find out the other answers. Can you do so?
1—Add a hen to a common grain and a girl's name, and find a queenly woman's name.
2—From the center of a city in Greece and also in our own Georgia take a hen and leave a tease.
3—Prefix the beginning of the world to a hen and find a certain time.
4—A hen and a grain, added, make a boy's name.
5—Add a hen and a kind of destruction and get a poisonous plant.
6—Add a hen and five-sevenths of a rooster, and get the poultry's sleeping place.
7—Add a hen to half a cent and get for an answer "from this time."
8—Annex a hen to a plane figure with 19 sides and get a figure of 11 sides.
9—Add four-fifths of a kind of red paint to a hen and make harsh or coarse.
10—Add four-fifths of cool or new to a hen and get to refresh.—E. F. P.

THE CABINET.

The president's cabinet now numbers ten officials, double the size of the consulting body that was presided over by George Washington in 1789, when there were a secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of war, postmaster general and attorney general, says an exchange.
In 1801 the secretary of the navy was created, followed by a secretary of the interior in 1849, when the public lands of the nation, the Indians, and other matters had created very important business.
No further change was made in the size of the cabinet until 1889, when the agricultural department was raised to a rank which entitled its head to a place in the president's council. In 1903 the secretary of commerce and labor took his seat at the cabinet table, and the original limit of five members had been widened to nine.
Now the tenth cabinet officer has been created by the division of the department of commerce and labor. There is now a secretary of labor, the older office being continued as the department of commerce.
President Wilson started his term with just twice as many cabinet officers as President Washington had for a country which contained less than 4 per cent of its present population and spent less than 1 per cent as much money.

BIDDY ON THE MARKET

When visiting a large city poultry market one is reminded of the riddle, "Why does a hen cross the road?" And the wise one answers, "To be on the other side." When a hen crosses the road to the market she is likely to be asked many impertinent questions, upon the answers depend in what class she travels.
If she is "simply an old hen" in New York, the chances are she will be bid in and bought at 14 1-2 cents per pound if a light weight and 17 cents if carrying her maximum weight. If she is only a "chicken," of course, she comes higher and it makes a difference of several cents on the pound whether she is "milk fed" or simply "corn-fed." Then again it makes a difference what road she came across to get to good old New York. Southern and western "birds" are not as popular as the aristocrats from the north and east. Here again birds of a feather flock together.
The man who operates the egg route and gets the eggs about the country, buying them from the farmers, is sometimes looked upon by the business men in the local town as a benefit. They realize the farmer likes to pay cash for merchandise rather than trade in eggs. On the other hand, if the peddler is stocked with a wagon full of merchandise and trades at the farmer's door he does not receive a hearty reception in town. As long as merchants are able to dispose of their eggs on the "case count" basis only by offering a few cents per dozen more in merchandise, they could retain the greater part of their trade. Enforcement of the "loss-off" system, however, is working a slow but sure change in this practice.

SOME PIONEER NEWS

(From the Coos Bay News, published at Marshfield, March 24, 1880.—Siglin & Bennett publishers.)
An exhibition at the Academy next Friday night.
Andrew Johnson was married to Miss Victoria Summers, at Bandon.
Born, in Marshfield, March 18th, 1880, to the wife of Capt. Chester, a son.
Born, in Marshfield, March 17th, 1880, to the wife of Alfred Matson, a son.
Died, at Charles Hillborn's, March 22nd, 1880, Mrs. Sarah Dyer, aged 67 years.
Mr. McLaughlin and bride gave a pleasant party last Saturday night at Coos City.
A. H. Moore, of Coaledo, an old resident of Coos county, has gone to California, to regain his health.
The road from Coos City to Roseburg is open so that the mail is carried the entire distance on horse back.
Married, at the Central Hotel, Marshfield, Oregon, March 20th, 1880, by J. C. Bull, J. P., A. B. Daly and Miss Lucy Monroe.
Married at the residence of the bride's parents on Coos river, March 20th, 1880, by Rev. C. C. Bailey, D. J. McLaughlin to Miss Amanda McKnight.
The citizens of Coquille City, irrespective of party, propose giving a free dance on the night of the 27th of March at the Odd Fellows Hall. All are invited to attend. Music by Clark Miller's string band. The following named gentlemen are floor managers: Fred Schroeder, Jim Moore, Amos Nosler and W. R. Wright.
The strike at Eastport has not yet been adjusted. The miners demand a dollar per ton, the proprietors refuse to give more than 87 1-2 cents, hence the strike. On the 17th inst. the miners of Newport to the number of about 25 went down to celebrate the day with the miners of Eastport, who were idle, taking supplies for their families and kegs of beer, and while they were having a "perty good time" some of the non-strikers, or black-legs, as they term them, applied some epithets more forcible than polite to the strikers and got "licked." A number of arrests followed.
Mr. Lobree received a telegram from San Francisco last week, stating that E. B. Dean & Co's. and Simpson's tugs could not be had to tow any vessel that might take deck loads of lumber at Lobree's mill. It appears that the mills have entered into a combination to keep lumber up and wages down, and Lobree refused to enter the combination or union, hence he must be "busted." The tugs are common carriers and if they refuse to tow any vessel they are able to respond in damages. This bay needs an opposition tug.

THE MAN WHO NEVER ADVERTISES.

A MAN who never advertises said to the writer the other day: "The people of this town know my store well enough, and they know me. If they want to buy anything I have they will come around and see me."
It may be admitted that the people who have lived here right along know of the existence of this store, but what do they know about it?
The people all know about the cemetery, but they don't go there much except when some friend is buried.
People don't care to bother much nowadays about stores unless they believe the owners thereof are enterprising men.
They want to deal with merchants who seem wide awake enough to get good bargains and who have enough spirit of hustle to reach out for a large trade and thus reduce the costs of rent, clerk hire, taxes and other "overhead charges." The man who never solicits public patronage impresses people as too passive to look after their interests attentively.
