TO RENT OR TO OWN

Are you going to continue to rent and live in a house that you are ashamed of; a house that grows less habitable every month but which your landlord knows grows more valuable because of the increase of the ground value? In order to get income from the growing value, he is ever tempted to raise the rent. Any day he may sell and then you must move. Some say it is cheaper to rent than to own a home. Yes, if you are willing to pay two prices for something that does not suit you and never will.

Or are you going to own a home and yourself enjoy the increase of value of your lot? Besides, such a home is a real home, you can afford to make it as attractive and beautiful as your taste suggests. Such a home is a true indication to your friends of your character. A level, well-trimmed lawn, a house substantially built, well painted, and attractively decorated within is a testimonial of the good taste of the family occupying it and just as impressive a one as the well-kept clothing and fresh linen with which the individual seeks to maintain his self respect and the good opinion of his neighbors.

Take the first step now toward having a home of your own and one that you can be proud of. Buy a lot in
