LASH FOR FARRIN COAST LEAGUE MADE A DASH BASEBALL SCORE

While Farrin Threatened Lash to Slash Into Bits of Human Hash.

The Jap war, paled into petite and pallid insignificance, compared with the real red handed war that stalked on Front street yesterday, when Charles Lash and E. L. C. Farrin mixed in an effort to muss up each others countenance. The Bradford Barber shop was the scene of the threatened carnage. E. L. C. Farrin was being shorn of his locks and Charles Lash was there for some other purpose, possibly to have his nails manicured. Anyway, they were both present and Mr. Farrin made some remarks regarding the character and courage of Mr. Lash. Mr. Lash responded promptly with a warm rejoinder that he was in possession of certain facts that if given publicity would not entitle Mr. Farrin to a church seat or a membership in the Y. M. C. A. From a calm conversation and exchange of superheated atmospheric epithets to active annihilation of physical existence was but a step. Mr. Lash administered a slap. Mr. Farrin struck out but got tangled in the barbers shears. Next Mr. Farrin seized a pair of scissors but not to make cutting remarks. He threatened to slash Lash into ribbons that would make trimmings for a carmine colored casket. Lash seized a cuspidor and Farrin said to throw the cussed thing out of doors. Harry Bradford tried to organize a Hague peace conference, but as Frank was busy there was nothing doing. The barbers then declared that the shop must be recognized as neutral territory and proceeded to eject Lash and save the furniture. Lash dared Farrin outside to a slash for fun or cash but friends prevailed and stopped the slash.

There are still vague rumors that the affair is not yet settled and that there will be further trouble when the men meet again.

TEN MILE DROWNING.
Chas. Olles, of Lakeside, was in Marshfield today and reported that when he left this morning the body of the man drowned there night before last had not been recovered. However, they expect to locate the body today. Bert Wilkins, who was running the launch, was going out with a party to try and get the body.

Mr. Olles said that the drowned man was Chas. Johnson, who has been around Coos Bay and Ten Mile for some time. He was about 45 years old. The accident was caused by turning the launch too abruptly to escape collision with a log or something. They were running fast at the time. It occurred about 8 o'clock in the evening. All the others escaped.
