PERSONAL NOTES MILL SLOUGH

Congress Will Not Act on Measure at Special Session-Closes It All.

Toat the bill declaring Mill Slough not to be a navigable stream and empowering the city council of Marshfield to close and fill it will nor passed at this special session of congress is the gist of a letter from Congressman Hawley. bill is before committees of the Senate and House. Some of those opposing the measure now declare that the bill provides for closing the slough from its headwaters to the Bay Instead of closing it only as far as Broadway and leaving the mouth open. They claim that it was understood that when the Chamber of Commerce and the city council passed resolutions favoring the closing of the slough that it was only to be closed as far as Broadway. The matter is causing more or less discussion among those interested. Anyway it is pointed out that the closing and filling of the slough is left to the city of Marshfield and that the citizens here can determine whether it shall be all or only partly filled. Congress man Hawley's bill is as follows: Congress-

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Mill Slough, a tidal tributary of Coos Bay, lying W. F. McELDOWNEY expects leave soon for an extended Marshfield, State of Oregon, is herewaterway of the United States with-ALF JOHNSON, JR., and wife are in the meaning of the laws enacted here from Coquille for a short by Congress for the preservation and in the meaning of the laws enacted protection of such waterways, and he consent of Congress is nereby given to the filling in of said slough by the said city of Marshfield.
