TIP FROM PORTLAND. (From Portland Oregonian) If Marshfield would provide about 200 hammers and abundance of rock to be broken, the I. W. W. would soon fade away.

COOS BAY'S FUTURE. (From Portland Journal) Coos Bay has waited long for a railroad, but at least one is thoroughly assured at last. After its advent, that greatly resourceful region will grow very rapidly.

PLAN TO BAR NATIONAL SONG

ALAMEDA, Cal., May 12.—Because the words "army and navy forever" appear in the national song "Columbia," that composition may be barred from the school celebration of "peace day," May 16, in this city. A circular letter was received by the superintendent of schools from local workers in the cause of international peace, objecting to the song and to class room pictures depicting battle scenes.

BURN CARS IN TRACTION ROW

Street-car Strike in Cincinnati Assumes Serious Phase—Violence Starts.

CINCINNATI, May 12.—One car was burned and five deserted and left standing on streets in the downtown section, the crews of these six cars being either beaten or forced to run to cover, was the total result of the effort today of the Cincinnati Traction Company to operate cars on its lines. Men in a wagon driving along side an Avondale car threw gasoline over it then put a match to it. The crew, numbering ten, deserted the car and were pursued by a crowd but managed to escape.

PLAN OF PROGRESSIVES. Leaders of New Party Favor Holding Convention Soon.

MERGE PARTIES. CHICAGO, May 12.—In a statement today Governor Hadley said that a coalition of the Republican and Progressive party was not only desired but is being sought.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Progressive Republican leaders at a meeting here today decided to urge the National committee to call a convention to make radical changes in the policy of the party and particularly to cut down the Southern representation. Senator Borah acquiesced, although he previously was opposed to the convention idea. Former Governor Hadley, of Missouri, also favored the convention. The conference decided to call upon the Republican National Committee at a meeting scheduled for May 24 at Washington to issue a call for a national convention, this year to arrange for "constructive and progressive activities in the affairs of the government." It was the further opinion of today's meeting "that such a convention might properly and usefully take any other action desirable to reunite the party." As chairman of the conference, Senator Sherman of Illinois was authorized to appoint a committee of five members who will draft an address to the public and to the members of the national committee.

"WHO IS WHO?" AT THE ROYAL THEATER. The renowned Madame Hershey and Company opened up at the Royal Theater yesterday matinee with a capacity house. There is no doubt but that she possesses the most elaborate costumes ever presented before the footlights in vaudeville and the electrical effects are the greatest ever seen on the American stage today. Everything was made especially for her. She is well supported by an excellent cast of actors and actresses who have evidently been picked for the parts. Madame Hershey is an actress of rare ability and we have seen artists not nearly so clever in important roles of big productions. Mr. Kingsley, the funny negro, will be seen to good advantage, which he is a riot from start to finish. Miss Roberts, the dainty and unique southerner, will also be seen with the Madame Hershey Company. Mr. Dan Palmer, of the well-known comedy sketch team of Merrill, Ryan and Palmer, will also appear with the company. Mr. Palmer has appeared in comedy sketches throughout the East, where he has made an enviable name for himself. Remember tonight will be the last performance of "Who is Who?" There will be an entire change of program tomorrow night and the Madame Hershey Company will be seen in that side-splitting farce comedy, "The Haunted House, Room 41."

THE STORY OF AMERICA IN PICTURES THE DISCOVERERS "LEARN ONE THING EVERY DAY"

No. 1. CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS. Copyright, 1913, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

On a certain day in February, 1492, there rode along the narrow pass at the foot of Mount Elvira, a few miles from Granada in Spain, a man with his head bowed over his breast. The little mule he was riding stumbled along wearily. Suddenly behind him he heard the noise of swiftly galloping hoofs. But he did not raise his head. But when the single horseman drew alongside at last and slowed down, the rider of the mule looked up to see who it was. There followed a hurried conversation of few words, and then the man on the mule, his eyes beaming, his face alight with hope and pride, and his head erect, turned quickly his laden beast, and, together with the man on horseback who had followed him, rode back the way he had come.

The man on the mule was Christopher Columbus, and the man who caught up to him was a messenger sent by King Ferdinand of Spain to tell him that at last, after seven long years of weary waiting and pleading his cause, his requests were to be granted. He was to be made commander of an expedition that was to attempt to discover a new and shorter way to Asia, India and the magic East. Only that very morning Columbus, tired of waiting around the Court of Spain, had set forth intending to present his cause to France, with the hope that he might get aid there to pursue the great enterprise he had in view. This man, Columbus, or Colombo, as his name is spelled in Italian, was born at Genoa, Italy, somewhere about 1446 or 1451. It was probably about 1474 that he first conceived the idea of discovering a new route to Asia. For the next ten years he made proposals of discovery to many of the governments of Europe, but none would listen to him. Finally, after he had almost given up hope, Spain agreed to aid him.

On Friday, August 3, 1492, Columbus set sail in command of three little ships, the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina, the largest of which, the Santa Maria, was only 90 feet long. On the 12th of October of the same year, land was seen, and Columbus landed on one of the Bahama Islands, formally taking possession in the name of King Ferdinand of Spain.

Columbus returned to Spain in March, 1493, and his journey through the country to Barcelona was a triumphal march. In September of that year he sailed again, and discovered the Windward Islands, Jamaica and Porto Rico. He founded a colony and returned to Spain. On his third voyage he discovered the Orinoco. Then he was accused on false charges by men who were envious and jealous of him, and he and his brother Bartholomew, were taken back to Spain in chains. The captain of the ship on which he was brought back offered to remove the chains, but Columbus answered, "No, I will wear them as a memento of the gratitude of princes." On reaching Spain, however, he was quickly freed.

His fourth voyage was to explore the Gulf of Mexico, but he was taken sick at San Lucar and lay there for several months. Broken in body and spirit he returned to Spain and died at Valladolid on May 20, 1506. The house in which he died bears a small table which reads simply, "Here died Columbus."
