MIKADO IS ILL OF PNEUMONIA

Emperor of Japan Reported to Be in Serious Condition—Has Careful Attendance

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
 TOKIO, May 23.—The official reports that the emperor is ill of pneumonia and the constant attendance of physicians and the vigil which the empress kept at the bedside all night, made it appear today that his condition is very grave. The whole Japanese Empire is depressed by the news. The high fever of last night was apparently unabated today. The patient is at aoyama palace, where he contracted a cold while reviewing the troops last Sunday.

SAYS PUP ISN'T DOG.

Michael Bannister, of Idaho, Fights Missouri Town Ordinance.
 ST. LOUIS, May 23.—The Circuit Court is busy today listening to a case in which Michael Bannister, an Idaho man, is fighting the dog ordinance of the town of Clayton, Missouri. Bannister was born in Missouri, but went West when a little boy. Recently he came back to visit his people, bringing with him a blooded sheep dog about two months old. The Town Marshal tried to collect the dog tax of Bannister, who declined to pay it on the ground that his dog was not a dog, but simply a pup. The marshal insisted, the owner persisted, and the result was the city justice ordered the tax paid. Bannister refused, reprieved his dog and appeared the case. The higher court will now determine whether a pup is a pup or a dog.

TO START BANK AT BROOKINGS

Curry County Men Incorporate Financial Institution for New Coast Town

(Special to The Times.)
 GOLD BEACH, Or., May 23.—Articles of incorporation of the Brookings State Bank were forwarded to the Secretary of State yesterday by George D. Wood, cashier of the Curry County Bank here. The $30,000 capital stock was all subscribed. Those signing the articles were W. J. Ward, superintendent of the Brookings Lumber Co., C. H. Bailey, Sheriff; Attorney W. H. Meredith; W. A. Wood, County Judge; E. A. Bailey, ex-County Judge and Geo. D. Wood. This will be the largest capitalized bank between Bandon and Eureka, California. When Geo. D. Wood came to Gold Beach three years ago to organize a bank he was told by the leading moneyed men here that they had gotten along in Curry County for 50 years without a bank and did not see any particular need of one, and, in fact, did not think it would pay, and Mr. Wood came to make a board of directors, but after persistent effort, he finally succeeded in getting enough stock subscribed locally to make out the board, but when it came to paying up the cash, he had to take many of the shares that had been locally subscribed himself. The book value of the stock of the Curry County bank is $135 a share now, besides having paid a dividend every year since organization. There is no stock for sale. When it came to incorporating the Brookings Bank, Mr. Wood's only difficulty was in making the shares go round and he had to limit those wanting stock, a change of sentiment toward the banking business in Curry in less than three years.

HYDE-BENSON LAND TO BE SUED FOR BY THE STATE

Attorney General Expects His Lists of 30,000 Acres in a Few Days

—Much Trouble Over Land
 SALEM, Or., May 23.—Suit to recover about 30,000 acres of land, alleged to have been fraudulently selected during the notorious Hyde and Benson operations in this state, will be started just as soon as Attorney General Crawford receives from Washington, D. C., the checked-over list he left at the General Land Office upon his recent visit to the capital. The Attorney General expects to receive these lists within the next few days, as he was assured the work there could be accomplished within ten days.

The Attorney General had assembled the abstract and other information in connection with the alleged fraudulent selection before going to Washington. Employees in the General Land Office are now checking over these lists and making notations of the action, if any, that has been taken by the Government in its suits against Hyde and Benson.

Hyde and Benson and their associates purchased thousands of acres of the school sections that were allotted as state property in every township by the government. Most of these purchases were located in remote and inaccessible spots in the National forest reserves and were secured very cheaply. The Government had agreed to trade these private properties within the National forests for timbered tracts outside, and the speculators endeavored to do this. Officials of the land office were suspicious, however, of their claims, and an investigation was ordered. This investigation has disclosed the fact that the lands were not purchased for the bona fide purpose of the owners becoming settlers. The state is now suing to cancel the deeds that were given the Benson-Hyde combination for these lands. The case will be complicated by reason that in some instances the properties have been sold again and again.

The school lands have been honoors to whoever had anything to do with them. The Hyde and Benson cases in the Federal courts have become famous as Oregon land fraud cases. In turn half a dozen speculators have come to grief over them. P. G. Lavey is now serving a year in the county jail, convicted of fraudulently using the mail in selling these lands. Frank Richet and J. T. Conway are awaiting trial in the Federal court, charged with the same offense.

GRAPHIC STORY OF ACCIDENT

A. W. Myers Writes Thrilling Description of Sad Accident Which Befell Him.

E. B. Michael, of North Bend, has just received a letter from A. W. Myers, formerly of Marshfield and North Bend, giving a graphic description of the extraordinary events that marked the recent loss of his left hand. Mr. Myers writes in part as follows:
 I want to thank you for your kind words of sympathy. I never realized I had so many friends to think of me until this accident happened. Every mail is crowded with letters of sympathy, and I believe these "break me up" more than the shock of losing my hand,—for love always strikes deeper than calamity.
 As you say it is mighty good that it was not a worse accident, or lucky for me that I am not left handed. I shall never know exactly how it did occur. Mrs. Myers and I had just returned from an hour's drive Sunday afternoon, May 4th.
 She and I and the little girl and Mr. Ketting were talking in the kitchen. This was about 5 o'clock, and while talking, I happened to think that I used my shot gun several nights before, to frighten away from the chicken house a coyote. I walked over to the corner where we kept our guns, and lifted mine out with my right hand. The next thing that I can remember, is that the butt of the gun striking the floor, it must have accidentally slipped in my hold, and then I brought my left hand around to catch it. As I did so, the gun was discharged, and the full load went through my left hand. Mr. Ketting knew it before I did, for I heard him cry out, "Oh, you shot off your hand," and the next second Mrs. Myers ran up to me, exclaiming, "Oh, Alvin, you lost your hand," when I looked and the entire back of my hand was blown off from the wrist joint to the knuckles. The thumb bones were all there and unbroken, but the muscles and flesh so badly mutilated that amputation was necessary at the wrist.
 Hurriedly I gave instructions for the best care of my hand until I could get to the doctors, 17 miles away at Pasco, where Mrs. Myers gave directions to get our driving team up and for our taking along such things as we might need. Within 15 minutes from the time it occurred, Mrs. Myers was driving me to Pasco, to the nearest physician. That drive we shall never forget. Through that vast stretch of sage brush the horses clipped off one mile after another. For 14 miles of the journey it was all sage brush, passing no dwelling, no ranches, no living things except the jackrabbits that would jump up by the roadside, and at which the horses would snort as we hurried along; or the hearing in the distance the occasional hoot of the owl, or the weird call of the coyote.
 Occasionally we would have to stop and rebandage my arm to stop the flow of blood, the pain all the while becoming more intense. At last, we came within about three miles of our journey's end. They seemed so long. But ere long Mrs. Myers drove up to the offices of Murphy & Elmore, physicians and surgeons, the livery man took away our team, I walked into the office, fortunately both doctors were there and work was begun on me promptly.
 When they started to amputate, the nurse who was holding my arm for the doctors became sick and had to leave the room, and do you know that Mrs. Myers came to the rescue by holding my arm for the doctors for 40 minutes—as they say, "without the slightest tremor."
 It has been a day over a week now since the accident happened, and I am getting along fine. By another week I can go home.
 I suppose you didn't know it, but quite a while ago I started the study of law, not as a profession but merely for my own education. I have only one year of study yet until I can take the bar examination. So now that this has happened, I shall finish up my last year at once and seek admission to practice. I will complete the last year in the law department of the University of Washington perhaps, and this September we will no doubt go to the coast to live while I am attending school.

TIE OF MANY COLORS.

Portland Man Applies Roller Towel Scheme to Ties in Kansas City.
 KANSAS CITY, May 23.—The invention of a Portland, Oregon, man, who has fashioned a neck-tie combination by which the poorest person can change his tie a dozen times per day without taking it off, will be marketed this fall by a local manufacturing house.
 Through its use one may have a black, red, blue, striped, plaid, green, yellow, in fact any tie he desires. The tie is endless, made in the form of a loop instead of a strip, goes under the collar double and looks like any other tie, with the exception the ends are loops instead of straight. The principle is the same as the roller towel, which, when used in one place, can be shifted to another.
 The inventor came here because he could not finance the proposition at home.
