ON THE HIGHWAY OF JOY.
Trouble—he comes without warning,
And ever he comes to destroy;
Stay not to bid him good morning—
Keep on the highway with Joy—

There, all the glad birds are singing—
Earth still with ecstasy thrills;
Hark to the bells! They are ringing
High on the joy-giving hills!
—Frank L. Stanton.

MRS. HENROTIN, of Chicago, will known as a leader in public matters where women are concerned, and a noted clubwoman, deplora the decadence of manners in recent years. "The word 'behavior' seems to have dropped from the English language," she says. "The men of my father's acquaintance had a leisurely bearing and a charming good breeding that now seems to have passed out of existence. Big cities and the advance of 'civilization' by the tendency to part sexes, has been a big factor in our decrease of courtliness. The boys and girls do not have the opportunity to get together on footings of equality and friendship. This lack of contact has dulled the boy's mind and the girl's too, to the niceties of good breeding. Civilization instead of increasing our friendships, as one would think, has severed them. Every one is in too much of a hurry to be friendly."

There is accurate discernment of city conditions in this view. Every city is a place of magnificent distances and among approximately a million people one does not with great frequency meet those he knows best. All are like "ships that pass in the night." The value of the social amenities is lost sight of in a multitude of strangers.
