A NEW RULE OF REASON.

JUDGE CHRISTIANSEN, of Sacramento, Cal., has established a new rule for the determination of the degree of guilt and the grade of penalty to be fixed for persons accused of personal assault.

In the case of a man charged with beating a girl, said to be his wife, Judge Christiansen fined the assailant $50, remarking that he would have given him a jail sentence had "the victim not been a dance-hall girl."

There is something new in the world. For a long time man has been worrying along on the theory that a woman was a woman whatever her character or occupation; now comes a judge from the bench to fix a definable differentiation between women and women. If she is a dance-hall girl, a $50 fine is ample punishment for beating her, says this Dogberry; if follows, of course, that if she were something more dignified or something less than a dance-hall girl the penalty would fluctuate to correspond.

The inquiry is pertinent, necessarily, as to the point at which Judge Christiansen would decide that a woman was entitled to no protection, and might be beaten by any man who wished to indulge a propensity without incurring any penalty whatever.

HOT ELECTION IN NORTH BEND

Spirited Controversy Over Question of Free Text Books in Public Schools.

North Bend is having a rather brisk school campaign for the annual school election there next Monday as a result of the free text book proposition being brought up. A hard campaign was made for it and for a time it looked as though it would easily carry, but the last few days, considerable opposition has been manifested and it seems that the outcome of the proposition is now in doubt. The usual campaign over the directorship has taken secondary place. C. A. Smith is one of those brought out for the directorship.

Today The Times received the following self explanatory communication:

Reasons Why North Bend Should Not Vote for a Free Text Book Tax.

1. Education everywhere is too much an obligation of the schools; the home should do more or less for the child.
2. The majority of school patrons in North Bend pay no school tax other than buying their children's books.
3. Every child should see a part of the family income is spent for books. Many families spend for books only what they have to spend for school books.
4. The experience of teachers and parents is that children do not take care of community property but waste it to the detriment of character and regardless of price.
5. From an economic standpoint, cheaper books might be bought cheaper collectively, a free text book system offers opportunities for graft that few mortal men are able to withstand.
6. North Bend has practically no residents too poor to buy text books.
7. Every class in the fall, by right, should take up the old text books for two weeks' review. The dealer would then have ample time to get adequate supplies.
8. No self-respecting parent would any more let his child use a second-hand text book than he would let him wear second-hand clothing or eat the scraps of another child's lunch.
9. If North Bend passes a free text book tax, it virtually means for the Simpson Lumber company to buy our children's books for us and as this company has always proved generous in providing for North Bend, why not ask for a noon lunch and shoes for the children while we are about it?

—MRS. HERBERT ARMSTRONG.

It is understood that they are advocating the election of Mrs. Rebecca Luse-Stump or Miss Topping, city librarian, as clerk of the school board, and are talking of Mrs. L. S. Kaufman, Mrs. Chas. MOTOR CYCLE PARADE PLAN

Coos Bay Club to Arrange Feature for North Bend Event—Stop Tank Riding

At a meeting of the Coos Bay Motorcycle Club last evening, it was decided to try and arrange for a big motorcycle parade at the North Bend Fourth of July celebration. The plan is to get out all the motorcyclists on the Bay with their machines decorated and thus make a very pretty pageant.

It was also arranged for a run to Myrtle Point a week from tomorrow and it is expected that most of the machines on the Bay will participate.

The club, after some discussion, decided to take steps to stop "tank riding." All of the members present agreed to discontinue the practice of carrying passengers on the front of their machines. If there are any further violation, the club will probably ask the City Council to enact an ordinance prohibiting it. There was a good attendance last evening.

You will find the lowest prices at The Vogue, North Bend, Oregon.
