FORGET IT!

SOMETIMES ability to forget is a greater boon than capacity to remember. This is the case with worry and annoyances. Today's troubles loom large, but a month hence most of them will have sunk below the horizon.

INTERESTING AT LEAST.

WOMEN were never so interesting as they are today," declares a modern sociologist, viewing the present feminine unrest with the judicial calm of a self-contained critic.

WITH THE TOAST AND THE TEA

GOOD EVENING.

Life is mostly froth and bubble. Two things stand like stone: Kindness in another's trouble, Courage in your own.

THE FOLKS BACK HOME.

The folks back home, it seems to me, are like as folks ought to be: Just plain an' dressed in common duds.

CLARK McADAMS.

Even some old settlers never settle. The man with a good aim in life and an empty gun may have an artistic temperament.

THE WHIST CLUB.

There cannot be much fun in it. They just sit there and scowl. When some one trumps her partner's are there is an awful howl.

HENCE THESE RHYMES.

Tho' my verse is exact, Tho' it flawlessly flows, As a matter of fact I would rather write prose.

LOVELY WOMAN.

A man's a fool who thinks of balking A woman when her tongue would spin. She always says, "There's no use talking!"

"SIMPLE LIFE" IS INEXPENSIVE

E. R. Peterson, of Coos Bay, Demonstrates that Student Can live on 28 Cents a Day

The following Monmouth dispatch from a Portland paper will be of interest here as Mr. Peterson is well known on the Bay and up to a year or so ago taught school on Coos river.

"Reading of a college professor who spends 19 cents a day for his meals and of another student who spends only 9 cents, E. R. Peterson of the Oregon Normal, was interested enough to look over his own expense account. Mr. Peterson, whose home is in North Bend, Ore., is one of the many self-supporting students at the Normal and finds that in comparison with himself these others are reckless spendthrifts and riotous livers.

"These figures are absolutely correct as every five cent purchase is down in the account book. Mr. Peterson's reasons for so living were, first, to save expense, and second, because he likes it. By saving expense it must not be thought that he has been starving himself. The book shows purchases of fruit, oysters, cider, eggs, meat and one or two small luxuries besides the staples.

"Peterson does all his own cooking and has established a record for speed which will make some of the girls hump themselves. It takes just one hour for him to rise, wash, dress, build the fire, get breakfast, eat it, wash the dishes and put them away, shave, sweep the floor and make the bed, all of which he does every morning even to cleaning the floor.

"When Elbert Hubbard visited Monmouth he was much interested in Mr. Peterson's experiment and said that he could recommend from experience that kind of life. He told the Normal students that such a life enabled one to positively enjoy a number of things that ordinarily would be shunned as heretofore.

"Peterson is a member of the senior class and has secured a position as supervisor in Jackson county at a salary of $1220 and expenses, which work he will take up immediately on graduation next week. He is one of the most prominent students in school, three times editor of "The Norm," active in all student affairs and usually the engineer on the "steam roller" in student politics. Under his management "The Norm" has attained the distinction of being rated the best school paper on the coast in its class. He is student assistant in the science department and in spare moments between his house-keeping, editing, playing politics and cleaning the laboratory, he manages to carry a fairly heavy course in regular school work, in which he has also made a proud record."

LITTLE NICETIES.

It is very bad form to notice when a lady is dancing that her complexion is running down her face. Observe it if you wish, but don't notice it.

If your sweetheart is jealous of your attentions to another girl, an easy way to ameliorate her is to tell her how furious the other girl is because of your attentions to her.

machinery which will facilitate mining.

FOY COX arrived home today via Drain from Washington, where he has been spending a few weeks at the springs. He is feeling fine and looking good, but says he is glad to get home. Cell Ireland says that all Mr. Cox needs now is a few days in the "Tickle Grass" country near Camas and is thinking of sending him out there to see that Frank Denning doesn't stay too long.

MANZANITA IS IN PORT NOW

Lighthouse Tender Brings Supplies and Will Place New Buoy on This Coast.

The lighthouse tender Manzanita arrived yesterday from Portland with supplies for the Cape Arago lighthouse. She will also place a new bar buoy at the entrance of Coos Bay in place of one that was swept away a few months ago.

From here she will go south to place a new buoy on the Port Orford reef.

PORT ORFORD REEF BUOY.

Manzanita Will Install New Safety Device There.

PORTLAND, Or., June 18.—Although a submarine signal bell will be installed on the mammoth Orford Reef gas and whistling buoy, and it has been stated that vessels equipped with receiving apparatus can hear the present buoy working at its moorings for a considerable distance, for this reason it is advised by officials of the lighthouse department that vessels equipped with receiving apparatus should listen for the submarine sounds made by the buoy until a bell has been put on it.

It was intended by the lighthouse department to equip the new buoy, which was taken out by the tender Manzanita, with the submarine bell, but the latter had not arrived, so arrangements were made for the buoy to be equipped at any time while on its station. The light on Orford Reef buoy has been extinguished since November, supposedly through the leakage of the carbide; but it has been whistling regularly. Now that good weather has set in, the tender will be able to change it for the new one.

The buoy is a monster, weighing nearly 12 tons with the carbide, and the sinker weighs 6000 pounds, with 45 fathoms of heavy chain, so that the submerged buoy is necessary to relieve the buoy of the weight of the moorings. It is supposed that the working of the moorings against the submerged buoy is responsible for the sound which has been picked up regularly by one of the vessels coming here and reported to the lighthouse department. Everything on the buoy taken out by the Manzanita is new, even to the moorings, and an extra amount of carbide has been provided.

The aeroplane chauffeur hasn't anything on the flight of time.
