OREGON CITIZENS BURN I. W. W. FLAG AND THREATEN MEMBERS

Sandy Residents, Near Portland, Resent Flying Banner of Organization.

SHOOT IT DOWN; THEN DESTROY EMBLEM

Notify Telephone Crew They Will be Summarily Punished if they Renew It.

Portland, Or., July 3.—The Industrial Workers of the World workers in a telephone line crew at Sandy, a small village in the Cascade mountains, 35 miles from Portland, on Tuesday hoisted the I. W. W. flag in a staff in a grove where the townspeople planned to hold tomorrow's Fourth of July celebration. The citizens enraged at the act, headed by a band and carrying aloft the stars and stripes, proceeded to the grove, shot down the I. W. W. flag and paraded through the main street, dragging the objectionable banner in the mud. In front of the postoffice the crowd formed in a hollow square and while the band played America, the I. W. W. flag was burned. The men who had made the flag, expressed indignation and threatened to make another and raise it but were informed that such an action would be followed by prompt destruction of the banner and summary punishment of those responsible for raising it.

DENY BARTON A NEW TRIAL

Judge Coke Overrules Motion and Will Pass Sentence Next Monday Morning.

At a special session of circuit court in Coquille yesterday, Judge Coke denied the motion for a new trial in the case of J. S. Barton, state representative, who was found guilty a few months ago of attempted criminal assault on Miss Youkam, an employe in his office. Judge Coke fixed next Monday morning at 10 o'clock as the time of pronouncing sentence. The sentence provided by statute for the offense is an indeterminate sentence of one to ten years. Attorney C. F. McKnight and E. D. Sperry for Barton contended that there was no evidence introduced to show that the alleged assault was more than aggravated assault without the more serious offense. Judge Coke in passing the motion stated that it was for a jury to determine whether the offense was more than merely an assault and as the jury had passed on it, the court was not disposed to overrule their judgment. Furthermore, he said that in regard to the alleged insufficiency of evidence, that Miss Youkam's evidence bore every indication of being the truth while Barton's did not. It is expected that Barton will now appeal to the supreme court.

BRIDGE TO BE DONE THIS YEAR

S. P. Said to be Putting Stringent Provisions in Contract for Coos Bay Structure.

According to a report reaching here, the Southern Pacific is placing a strong stipulation in the contract for the construction of the bridge across Coos Bay, the bids for which are now being received by the MacArthur Perks Company. The MacArthur Perks Company did not submit the work on the bridge on account of the plans for it being indefinite until after Engineer Broughton completed the soundings here. It is said that the bridge contract stipulates that it shall be done within one year and that the contractors shall forfeit $1000 per day penalty for each day after a year until it is completed. The Southern Pacific is understood to be going to place the structural steel work. The S. P. permit for the bridge from the War Department provided that it has to be started soon and must be completed within two years. Porter Brothers are said to be bidding on the bridge work and it is generally expected that they will get it, having all the other railroad contracts. W. T. Stoll, of Marshfield, while in Portland last week, had quite a

WANTS TO SAVE LARGE LEGACY

Lady Sackville in English Court to Retain $5,000,000 of Scott Will.

LONDON, July 3.—Lady Sackville took the witness stand today in a suit to deprive her of the five million dollar estate left her by the will of the late John Murray Scott. She said that in the spring of 1909, while she was driving with Sir John, he first told her of his intention to leave her a million dollars. Lady Sackville swore that she never saw the will and did not know it when Sir John spoke of revoking it. Lady Sackville added that Scott had given her daughter furs which cost $15,000 and herself an emerald bracelet which cost $25,000. Under cross examination Lady Sackville said she and her husband had about $15,000 a year.

CONSERVATION IS HIS THEME

Gifford Pinchot Makes Eloquent Plea for it at Progressive Meeting.

NEWPORT, July 3.—Conservation and social and industrial justice, called by party leaders the by-products of progressiveness, were discussed at the closing session today of the Progressive national conference. Gifford Pinchot said: "The conservation question lies at the root of every material human problem, for it is the problem of shelter and clothes, which are nothing but natural resources prepared for the use of men." Chat with Dick Porter, formerly a Spokane friend of his, and Mr. Porter informed him that the line to Coos Bay was being rushed as much as possible. BUYS QUARTER INTEREST IN SITE OF BIG SMITH MILLS

Frank B. Waite Gets Valuable Holdings of Miss Wendel, of San Francisco—Unknown Claimant Discovered.

Frank B. Waite, of Sutherlin, has just purchased an undivided one-quarter interest in 27 and a fraction acres at the mouth of Isthmus Inlet, which, since the deal became known, has aroused much comment. The tract is the site of the C. A. Smith Company's big mill, lumber yards and the Smith pulp mill and which the C. A. Smith Company thought that it owned outright. Mr. Waite has just acquired the interest of a Miss Wendel, of San Francisco, an heir of the late James Flanagan. The story of the tract, or rather of her interest in it, is unusual. It seems that the property belonged originally to the Flanagan family. Pat Flanagan, John Flanagan and the Mullens owning it in equal parts. On the death of John Flanagan, the Mullens acquired his quarter interest. On the death of James Flanagan, Pat Flanagan was administrator of his estate. He sold the Jas. Flanagan real estate to his partner, Mr. Mann, who later sold it to T. R. Sheridan, of Roseburg, a son-in-law of Pat Flanagan. After Pat Flanagan's death, T. R. Sheridan sold the property to the Flanagan estate. In the meantime Mrs. Jas. Flanagan had married again, Mr. Wendel being her second husband. A daughter was born to them. Recently it was discovered that Jas. Flanagan's quarter interest in the 27 and a fraction acres at the mouth of Isthmus Slough was not included in the real estate which Pat Flanagan as administrator of the estate of Jas. Flanagan sold. When the C. A. Smith Company came here for a mill site, they purchased the Mullens half interest in the tract for $10,000, the Flanagan estate gave them a warranty deed for the other half, it being presumed that the Flanagan estate owned a half interest instead of a quarter interest in it. However, the Flanagan estate's share was a bonus to get the mill to locate at the mouth of Isthmus Slough and they received nothing for it. In consequence the warranty deed will not bind them to make good the value that Mr. Waite places on the quarter interest which he bought from Miss Wendel, who, as the only daughter of Mrs. Wendel, inherited Jas. Flanagan's widow's interest in the Jas. Flanagan estate. It has been found out that Judge Durham, of Grants Pass, who spent a couple of weeks here recently, was here for the purpose of going over the records and establishing the Wendel claim to a quarter interest in the property which has been made immensely valuable by the big improvements the C. A. Smith Company has placed upon the property.

The North Bend Celebration

NORTH BEND'S big two days celebration opens with a boom in the morning. It takes more than a little Oregon mist to dampen the ardor of the North Bend boosters. Every feature from the big parade to the Fat Man's race will be carried out as planned, rain or shine. Don't stay away. The committee on general arrangements says the people of North Bend are preparing to act as hosts on this occasion and nothing will be spared to add to the enjoyment and entertainment of their visitors. They propose to make the two days such that all who attend will talk about them in years to come. Hospitality will be the first consideration. The spirit of commercialism will be forgotten and everyone given a rousing welcome, a glad hand and a generous greeting. Marshfield business men and citizens are preparing to turn out in force. This is proper. There should be uniformity of purpose as there is unity of interests. The people of Marshfield will join in the joy and mix in the merriment. Everyone should plan to attend and add to the success that awaits united action. Here's to the success of the North Bend Celebration, and here's to Coos Bay; may the affections of her people like the waves on her shores flow to a common union, one and inseparable.

DEMOCRATS MAKE STRONG PLEDGE

Senate Finance Committee Majority Considers Democratic Caucus Call—Child Labor Ruling.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—The Democrats of the Senate Finance Committee met today to frame a binding caucus resolution and clean up the odds and ends of the various tariff schedules. The resolution pledges legislators to support the bill, introduce no amendments not approved by the finance committee, and support none offered by Republicans or Democrats who may remain out of the caucus. All of the Democrats except Randall, Thornton and Hitchcock are expected to pledge themselves. The committee amended the child labor provision of administrative section so as to prohibit the entry of goods manufactured "principally by children under 14 years of age in countries where there are no laws regulating child labor." This, the committee believes will not be an impediment nor result in excessive protection, as most European countries have child labor regulations. Some of the Asiatic countries being lax in such regulations.

CALL LOBBYIST OF ANTI-TRUST

Henry B. Martin Witness Today Before Senate Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—Henry B. Martin, representative here of the so-called anti-trust league, was called today by the Senate lobby committee to be examined on David Lamar's statement that after Lamar had drawn a resolution for Congressional investigation of the United States Steel Corporation he gave it to Martin, who in turn induced Representative Stanley of Kentucky to introduce it in the House. Martin confirmed Lamar's testimony. Martin declined to give the names of the league's members, because they would suffer the "anger of the great trusts, who would ruin and blacklist them and insure his discharge from employment."
