The Story of an Addition

On a summer morning not long ago a stranger on Coos Bay walked along the picturesque county of the old Eastport, a village that flourished in the 1890s. A few white-washed shacks still stood or reclined in various stages of dilapidation about the knoll. Only one was tenanted as denoted by the hen and brood of grown chickens scratching near the bank of the stream. A star of planks marked the site of a coal bunkers where once the project of a nearby mine was stored. The stranger, in the warm sunshine contemplated the scene of drought and the lazy chickens looking for insects in an indifferent manner. The stray milk cows grazing and the deserted cabins. Had he written another "Sweet Autumn" and pointed a moral on the life of a community where private ownership of homes is unknown, but was only a real estate man given expressing himself otherwise than rhyme.

The day following this stranger's visit to old Eastport came a party of five men who ran lines, set stakes, staked lots and broad, straight streets. Then in a few days the place over which a quiet scene had been a scene of intense activity; axes were clearing ways through the thick district to the westward, the men and teams with plows and rippers are grading broad, smooth highways. Presently the unsightly ricks and limping fences are cleared away, and on the crest of the knoll a sign, "First Addition to Marshfield."

Then automobiles conveying interested or curious spectators arrive on time to time. Many of the visitors select lots and these return again and again during the succeeding days to complete the plans for proving their home sites.

Next the sounds of hammers and saws are heard, and soon a building of modern and substantial architecture adds a new feature to the landscape, a contrast indeed to the rough, shake-covered miner's shanty of the preceding period of tenancy. Other houses spring up along the new streets in First Addition to Marshfield, and more streets are improved to supply the growing demand for home sites.

Today there are 24 homes in this new addition to Marshfield. Some of these occupy small acreage tracts of the bottom land extensive enough to pasture a cow or two, but most of the new homes are located on a lot or two each of level hill land. They occupy points of vantage for view or shelter. Many fine gardens of flowers and vegetables make the homes more attractive and assist in solving the high cost of living problem.

A list of the home builders in First Addition is interesting for many reasons, for instance it shows the cosmopolitan population of Coos Bay of which the community in First Addition is representative. Following are the home owners in First Addition: C. O. Gosney, J. E. Fitzgerald, Matt Anderson, W. C. Mason, G. M. Hinckley, Oscar Ingman, O. K. Huel, C. M. Conner, Edwin Cameron, P. H. McDonald, Wm. McChure, Henry Hyrkas, H. A. Harris, John Williams, F. Jarvenan, W. V. Manning, Emil Lind, August Hendrickson, F. M. Burroughs, E. M. Boyd, F. W. Hardenbrook, G. B. Stadden and O. M. Johnson.

The rapid growth of First Addition recently necessitated making a new delivery route for The Times. At present telephones can be had in First Addition. It will only be a short time until electric lights and a water system can be installed with profit to the public utility companies. Although the school children now living in the new addition attend the Marshfield public schools, the proposition of creating a new school district and building a new school house for First Addition is being agitated and will doubtless bring results in the next few months.

I. W. W. ON MOVE.

Bunch Passes Through Roseburg for Eugene.

The Roseburg News says: "A number of members of the I. W. W. organization passed through Roseburg late Saturday en route to Eugene where they say they will attempt to resume the right of free speech on the streets. One or two of their number attended the socialist lecture here Friday evening and spoke in high terms of the speaker. All of the men claim to have come from Coos County where they recently quit their jobs. During their sojourn here they made no demonstration and paid strict attention to their own business. They left here on a northbound freight train."

CHANGE HIGH SCHOOL COURSE

Change Subjects to Fit Specialization in O. A. C. and U. of O.

CORVALLIS, Or., July 2.—A shakeup in the courses of study at the Oregon Agricultural College and University of Oregon is foreshadowed in the following notice received by the regents of the former institution from the secretary of the board of higher curricula.

"To the Secretary of the Board of Regents of Oregon Agricultural College:

"Please take notice that the board of higher curricula will meet Monday, August 25, 1913, at Portland Academy, in Portland, Or., at 1 o'clock p. m., at which time it is proposed:

"First—To eliminate from the University of Oregon and to assign to Oregon Agricultural College the departments of electrical engineering, chemical engineering and civil engineering, conditioned on the Oregon Agricultural College's requiring a full four years' high school course, or its equivalent, as a preparation for entrance for degrees in all engineering courses.

"Second—To eliminate from Oregon Agricultural College and assign to the University of Oregon the departments of fine arts, including architecture and music, economics, commerce, higher education, the graduate school.

(Signed) "JOS. E. HEDGES, Secretary of the Board of Higher Curricula."

SALEM, Or., July 3.—A radical change in the courses of study of the high schools outside of Portland will be made at the next meeting. The elective system of studies will be made more general and comprehensive. Pupils who do not desire to study algebra or languages will be allowed to take other studies instead. The same rule will apply to other branches of the course. It is believed that this will increase the attendance at the high schools and bring about better results. A committee composed of H. H. Herdman, principal of Washington High school, Portland; George Hunt, principal of Eugene High school; H. C. Seymour, county superintendent of Polk county; Miss Lillah Clark, principal of Henper High school, and H. K. Shurk, principal of Enterprise High school, appointed at a meeting of the city and county superintendents in Portland Friday, will make recommendations, which the state board of education has announced it will approve. It is in line with a report of the committee of the National Educational Association, adopted at a meeting in San Francisco in 1911.

THREE TOWNS TO CELEBRATE

NORTH BEND, COQUILLE AND BANDON WILL LET THE EAGLE SCREAM—BIG PREPARATIONS.

With Fourth of July celebrations arranged in three Coos County towns and a race meet planned for a fourth town on Saturday, the rainy weather is causing much disgust today. Despite the rain, there has been an influx from the smaller towns and the country sections for the celebrations and while the programs may be interfered with somewhat, the attendance will probably not be affected much.

On the Bay, the celebration will be at North Bend and everything is in readiness. The streets have been decorated in good shape and the program all mapped out, and beginning tomorrow morning early the committee promises that there will not be a slow hour in the two days and nights. The 12 o'clock closing rule against the thirt emporiums in North Bend has been removed for tonight and tomorrow night and in consequence it will be a night and day affair.

The complete program of the North Bend celebration is printed elsewhere in The Times tonight. Marshfield will unite in the big doings at North Bend, the fire department, baseball team and others participating in the contests during the two days.

Coquille is also arranging a big celebration for tomorrow, the usual Fourth of July attractions and a baseball game between Myrtle Point and Coquille being arranged. Binger Hermann, former Congressman, will be there from Roseburg to deliver the address and plans are being made for a sort of pioneer reunion.

Myrtle Point will have a race meet Saturday unless the rain prevents. Most Coos County horses are entered, F. P. Norton, of Marshfield, taking three harness horses there.

(Special to The Times.)

BANDON, Or., July 3.—Never before in the history of Bandon were such extensive preparations for the celebration of July the Fourth undertaken as those were made for the celebration that opened here and will continue tomorrow. The contributions to the fund for prizes and other expenses incidental to a celebration were greater in number and of higher amount than in any previous year. One thousand big flags were used by the celebration committee for decorative purposes.

The feature on the program which has aroused the most interest is the giving of two hundred dollars on the streets of Bandon during the celebration. The money is to be given on a lucky number plan and every visitor and resident will have an equal chance to land some of the dollars.

The baseball game between Marshfield and Bandon is an event which the people here of course look forward to as something worth seeing. Another strong feature of the program is the appearance at Bandon during the third and fourth of July of the famous tightrope performer Deshields. His performance is declared to be the most sensational which has been seen in the Pacific states.

The events on the program for Bandon's celebration include log rolling, running races and many other contests. A tie making contest which is on the program for the afternoon of July third is a novel contest in this part of the country and from the large number of entries and the interest shown locally promises to be an exciting event.

MUST CARE FOR MEN.

S. P. Superintendent Warns Employment Agencies.

The Eugene Guard says: "On account of the persistent reports of the police and citizens of Eugene that men were brought here from Portland employment agencies for railway camps beyond the Not tunnel and that facilities were not provided for taking them to the front, Mayor D. E. Yorlan recently wrote to D. W. Campbell, superintendent of the Southern Pacific, and asked that this condition be remedied, or that men not be brought to Eugene. Mayor Yorlan today received a reply from Superintendent Campbell that all employers of labor had been notified to take care of the men sent out promptly and properly."

NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY, SAYS QUEEN MARY.

She Issues Edict Against Women Riding Astride at International Horse Show.

LONDON, June 30.—Queen Mary exploded a bomb among women exhibitors and riders at the international horse show when she issued an edict prohibiting women to ride astride. American riders especially do not take kindly to the edict. The order applied only to the afternoon performance when the king and queen and President Poincare of France attended.

If seven doctors had told you, as they did C. E. Blanchard, of La Grange, Calif., that you had but a short time to live on account of kidney trouble, what would you do? He says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills and they completely cured me and I can not speak too highly of them." Cost less than the doctors, but accomplish more. Owl Prescription Pharmacy, Frank D. C. O. D. SYSTEM IN PARCEL POST

New Feature of Important Postal Branch Began Here Yesterday.

With the opening of the fiscal year yesterday, July 1, an important additional department was added to the parcel post system by the local post office. It was the C. O. D. system.

A red tag, which may be purchased for 10 cents, marks each C. O. D. package. The card tag is in three sections, the first of which is delivered to the sender as a receipt; the second is held by the postoffice at which the parcel is mailed, while the third is to be turned over to the money order department at the office of delivery, as an application for a money order for the price of the C. O. D. package, collected from the addressee by the carrier, to be returned to the sender.

The 10 cents charged for the card also secures insurance of each package for its value, or up to $50, in addition to providing for the collection of the price of the package and cost of money order from the receiver, and the return of the money to the sender.

A triple system of checking will be operated in the registry department through which much of the C. O. D. package work will be handled. Against the checking of all parcels received under the new system will be checked the record of parcels delivered to addressees and money collected and parcels returned to senders.

Cannot Examine Parcels.

All parcels in transit will be handled exactly as are ordinary insured parcel post packages, up to the time of delivery to the addressee, when the carrier will collect the amount due, together with money order fee for returning the sum to the sender of the package.

Addressees of C. O. D. packages will not be permitted to examine the contents before accepting them, and complaints regarding the goods must go to the sender and not to the Post-office Department.

The limit on size of packages is the same as in the parcel post, 11 pounds and 72 inches in combined length and girth. The limit of value which the department will collect on a single package, exclusive of the money order fee, is $100.

No C. O. D. packages have as yet been sent out or received at the Marshfield postoffice.
