BACK TO CHAOS.

A RECENT editorial in the Portland Journal sets forth forcibly a contention which The Times has asserted all along, namely, that many of the sympathizers with the propaganda and preachment of that organization or they would not so readily give their seeming approval.

Numerous defenses of the I. W. W. propagandists have been printed by The Journal in the "Letters from the People."

Most of these defenses are by persons who do not know the real aims of the I. W. W. scheme.

It would be a country with the state capitols in ashes, the national buildings at Washington in ruins, every church burned and every national institution destroyed.

The universal ensign would be the red flag of anarchy. There would be no police. There would be no sheriffs nor deputies.

There would be no canon but the forbidding rule of the brute force of numbers. There would be no government but the dreadful tyranny of the unbridled mob.

The great Civil War with its restored republic would cease to have a meaning. The lives of those sacrificed at Gettysburg, Antietam, Bull Run, and the other battles in the four years' conflict, would have been sacrificed in vain.

It would usher in a condition that by all the experience of history would mean bedlam, bloodshed and butchery. It would mean rapine.

plunder and the survival of the strong. Out of such a sweeter and welter of brute force, history would be repeated, and there would rise the strongest, craftiest and bloodiest captain of them all, to establish another kind of government that in rigor, ruthlessness and relentlessness would be the ultimate of power for the governor and the ultimate of subjection and submission for the governed.

It is a proposed change from which to shrink. It is a change to appeal only to the bully and the blackguard. It is a change so appalling that it is comprehended by few of those who are its advocates.

GOOD EVENING. "It is impossible to be an honest and successful politician as to get into heaven with a gambling check."—Sydney Moulton

AN ELEMENTAL EXPLANATION.

A simple phrase will oft express A most important truth. There's one which haunts us, more or less, Through life, from early youth,

The boy who not so long ago Was taking doctor's stuff Was sick because he didn't know When he had had enough.

The man of power and of fame Goes out of date because He eagerly attempts to claim Too much of the applause.

The man who rashly undertakes Topofical finance In sorrow frequently awakes, Bewailing his mischance.

In gentle terms we strive to note Each source of human grief, "Ambition" is a cause we quote, It seems to give relief.

But to a plodding mind and slow The word sounds like a bluff To hide a case of "Didn't-know-When-he-had-had-enough."

No man is happy unless he thinks he is.

Bachelor quarters may be exchanged for better halves.

It isn't often that we feel like giving thanks for what we have not, but reports of 101 degrees temperature in Boise, which Jack Flanagan writes The Times about puts one in that mood.

After all one of the least of the water wagon troubles is the danger of being pushed off by the mob.

Funny how they call it an upright piano when you find it in a hall where they do rag dancing.

Life's little irritations—sprinkling your lawn early and then having a two-hours' rain come along.

THE UNIVERSAL WISH. "O, for a lodge in a garden of cucumbers! O, for an iceberg or two at control! O, for a vale which at midday the dew cucumbers! O, for a pleasure trip up to the pole!" —Dave Stafford.

HARD WORK. Of course I wouldn't spurn one if some kind man who knew me would die and leave it to me— But I should hate to earn one. —Goodroads Goodrum.

MEMORIES. Back to the farm I'd like to go And the scenes where I could once more hear the cattle low Though beef is very high. —Ivy Congron.

DROWNING IN COOS RIVER

UNKNOWN MAN JUMPS OFF EXPRESS WHILE EN ROUTE TO McDONALD & VAUGHAN'S CAMP THIS AFTERNOON.

An unknown man en route to the McDonald & Vaughan camp at Daniels Creek, jumped overboard this afternoon off the Express and was drowned. It happened near 31 Noah's ranch.

He was about 35 years old, apparently. No one knew his name. He had been drinking hard and was drinking en route up the river. T. F. Hauschildt, whose launch was following the Express, threw an oar to him, but he refused to grab it and sank just as Hauschildt backed up near him.

Found Boy.—Mrs. H. A. Harris today found a four year old boy asleep in the road near her home in First Addition. For a long time she could not ascertain his identity but finally discovered that he was Norman Burroughs of Eastport.

BOAT NAMED HYDROPATHIC.

Alphonse Trinquai, a Queer Frenchman, Finishes Ten Years' Labor. MAYFIELD, Cal., July 29.—Alphonse Trinquai, Mayfield's man of mystery, is preparing for another great inundation, which he predicts is to destroy mankind as was done in the days of Noah. So confident is Trinquai that the land is to be covered with water that he is building a vessel on one of the sloughs extending Mayfieldward from San Francisco bay. The queer Frenchman, who has lived in this section for nearly forty years, is not certain whether the flood will be a duplicate of the one of the creation days or whether it will be a great tidal wave, as the old Indian legend of the early redskinned inhabitants of the bay region has it. At various intervals for the past ten years Trinquai has been laboring on his ark. He is now engaged in putting the finishing touches on the craft.

No Room for Animals.

Trinquai's craft is 80 feet in length. The builder has made no provision for housing any of the traditional animals in his ship, as he is a vegetarian, and will have nothing to do with the flesh of the earth. Trinquai places little trust in the material qualities of gopher wood as a fence of the waves. He has constructed his ship of heavy pine and redwood, with a steel armor on the outside.

"Hydropathic" is the name given to the strange craft. The owner believes that every name should have a meaning, so he selected a name which, he says, shows that his ship will be a successful navigator of the tempests. It is to be a water cure in fact as well as in name.

The interior of the boat is lined with heavy material with ample provision for living quarters and food depots. Trinquai is already accustomed himself to the ship, although he is not predicting the exact time when the flood is to arrive. The eccentric resident points out the fact that Noah was 600 years old before he was invited into the ark and thinks that it is probable that he will live equally as long.

CLEANUP ALONG LOWER SIUSLAW

Officials Destroy Much Liquor Illegally Shipped—Move Undesirables.

EUGENE, Or., July 29.—Having destroyed a lot of contraband liquor, ordered two women of the underworld out of the country and cleaned up things generally in the lower Siuslaw country, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney E. O. Inmel and Deputy Sheriff Dillard Elkins have arrived home from a trip to the lower Siuslaw, having gone as far as Florence.

These officials left Eugene unannounced, for the purpose of investigating reports of numerous violations of the law in regard to the shipment and sale of liquor. They first stopped at Mapleton, where the good citizens have lately been complaining of a disorderly house kept by two women. The women were summoned before the Deputy District Attorney and were given the choice of stopping their business in the county. They chose the latter course and left the next morning for Drain, going by way of Gardiner. The house in which these two women stayed had long been the source of much annoyance to the respectable citizens of the little town.

Destroyed 170 Bottles of Booze.

The officers then went to Acme and Florence and while they were there the gasoline schooner Patsy arrived with a big shipment of liquor. Some of it was marked "cigars," in violation of the law, while some was marked liquor, but none of it was marked according to the new state law, which requires that the quality and quantity of the liquor, from whom and to whom it was sent be plainly marked on the package. The officers seized this liquor brought in by the Patsy, some of which was unloaded at Florence and some at Acme. Taking it before the Justice of the Peace, that official declared it contraband and it was destroyed. The natives stood by in open-mouthed astonishment. They had never before seen good liquor disposed of in that manner. All told 170 bottles of the liquor were smashed. Some of it was whiskey bitters and the remainder wine. It is said that very little beer is shipped in there, as the profit on its sale is not enough to run the risk of prosecution.

Much Railroad Work.

Deputy Sheriff Elkins said that much of the liquor being shipped into that country is from the big wholesale drug houses in Portland, and he intimated that a thorough investigation will be made and that some of the firms are apt to pay pretty dearly for their part taken in the violation of the law in this regard.

Speaking of work on the Eugene-Coos Bay railroad, Deputy Elkins said that over a thousand men are employed between Eugene and Mapleton and camps are strung all along the right of way. Below Mapleton and in the vicinity of Acme there is much work going on and the whole Siuslaw valley seemed to be alive with railroad laborers.

OLDEST SHIP SOLD.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 28.—The yacht Constance, said to be the oldest ship in the world in active service has just been sold to a fisherman of Shaw up in Jutland, who will use the ancient craft in his trade. The Constance was built in 1720, one hundred and ninety-three years ago, and in her long life she has sailed into almost every port in the world. Her new owner declares he can see no reason why she should not sail the seas for a century to come.

CONGRESS IS LARGEST LINER.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—Maritime statistics received from the Department of Commerce for the fiscal year ending June 30th show that the big liner Congress, which has been in course of construction at the New York shipyards at Camden, was the largest vessel built in the United States during the month of June. The Congress, which was constructed for the Pacific Coast steamship company and is destined for the coastwise service out of San Francisco, has been under way for a year and a half, but in the department's statistics is credited to June.

The U. S. government has reopened an old Indian allotment case here as a result of the claim being made by Mrs. Yates of Libby that she was adopted by Mrs. Mary Hansen of South Inlet. The hearing will be held August 11, according to word just received by Harry G. Hoy, attorney for Mrs. Yates.

LOCAL OVERFLOW.

Drive From Cottage Grove.—Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Atkinson and four children and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Atkinson drove to Coos Bay from Cottage Grove, Oregon, coming via Myrtle Point. They report roads in good condition. They are in search of a location and may decide to remain permanently on Coos Bay.

I. W. W. Man Fined.—John Donovan was arrested early this morning by Officer Traver for drunkenness and unbecoming conduct. He was arraigned this afternoon and fined $5. He objected to paying his fine but as he had $19.95 in his pocket, he could not escape. He had an I. W. W. membership book on him and also credentials issued by Sec. Edgworth last winter appointing him special organizer for the I. W. W.

I. W. W. FOUND GUILTY.

Jury Convicts Portland Agitator—Strict Ordinance is Drafted. PORTLAND, July 28.—Verdict of guilty was returned after a few minutes of deliberation by the jury in Municipal Court in the case of C. A. Peterson, one of the I. W. W. agitators arrested at Sixth and Alder streets July 15. Peterson was the fifth man who ascended the box after Deputy Sheriff Curtis had commanded the cessation of street speaking at the Plaza. He remarked that the streets were free and that he would speak as long as he liked.

The new measure as filed with City Auditor Harbour provides a penalty of $500 and one year in jail for any person or persons who "in any street or public place within the City of Portland openly insults or degrades the flag of the United States by word of mouth or by any act of any kind whatsoever, or who uses any violent, seditious, rebellious or any language calculate to or which might incite a riot or disorder or to create disrespect for the Government of or in the United States."

The proposed ordinance as sent to the Auditor carries an emergency clause which makes it possible for the Commission to enact it immediately. The reason for the emergency is the street speaking which has caused so much trouble to the police in the last two weeks. Mayor Albee said yesterday that he wants an ordinance on the books of agitation of the kind that creates trouble, riot or disrespect to the American flag.
