

WIFE MISSING; WILL SEEK HER

Henry Marsh Receives Word That She Disappeared at Medford. May be Coming.

Henry Marsh, who recently came here from Medford, will leave tomorrow morning for his old home to investigate the whereabouts of his wife. He received a telegram saying that she had mysteriously disappeared last Sunday and that no traces had been found of her since then.

Marsh came here a few weeks ago with several teams and has been working for Gidley & Perham on street contracts. He is at a loss to explain the disappearance of his wife. She was of foreign birth and he thinks that possibly she might have started for Coos Bay to join him, without saying anything to friends or relatives there. Marsh is about thirty years old.

AUTO ENGINE WILL BE MADE

Bradshaw-Kimball Company Arranges to Put Out New Type for Hard Test.

H. J. Kimball, of the Kimball-Bradshaw Company, who has just returned from a business trip to Portland, announces that they have perfected arrangements at Portland to build a six-cylinder type of the new gas engine which they recently patented. The engine will be put on an auto and given a thorough test on a 10,000 mile run to demonstrate that it is all they claim for it.

When this test is completed, it is expected that arrangements will be made for the disposal of the automobile rights of the patent to Eastern auto manufacturers. They have had several good offers for it but the demonstration will bring them much more owing to the superior qualities of the engine and the fact that it can be manufactured more cheaply than the ones now in use.

They will retain the stationary and marine engine rights with a view to establishing their own factory for the latter on Coos Bay.

Thomas Bradshaw remained in Portland to supervise the construction of the new engine. Mr. Kimball will remain on Coos Bay to look after their interests here.

The new engine will be put out by the Bradshaw-Kimball Company, but a number of Portland capitalists have taken an interest in it, and some Portland expert engineers have also become identified with the company. Mr. Kimball says everyone who has seen the new engine is enthusiastic over it and prophesy great things for it.

A REMARKABLE DRUG WINDOW

Interesting Showing of Prescriptions and Poisons by a Marshfield Druggist.

One of the most remarkable displays in a drug store window ever seen on Coos Bay is being exhibited this week by the Owl Prescription Pharmacy on Central avenue. It was the clever idea of Frank D. Cohan, and is attracting much attention. It might be considered a bit gawdiness, with its real skull and cross bones and display of poisons, but it compels attention and no one passes it without noticing it. The other day there was a group of fourteen standing in front of it making comments.

In addition to the showing of poisons, the displays cards and the original prescriptions written by Marshfield physicians, some forty-two years ago are of more than passing interest. A card calling attention to these states: "This has always been a prescription drug store." There are prescriptions filled for many prominent Marshfield people when they were babies, including J. Albert Matson, Mrs. Emma Nasburg, Mrs. Hazard and others.

There is a showing of the Owl's methods of filling prescriptions and an accompanying card states: "Note the way our prescriptions are sent out—typewritten labels, bottles capped, the best of corks, box covers hinged to prevent interchanging and labels on inside to prevent soiling of directions. Every possibility of error guarded against in our prescription department. We never substitute."

The showing of poisons, sufficient to kill every person in Coos County, have labels attached giving names and the various amounts have been accurately measured out with the statement of the number of persons that each poison would prove fatal to, as follows:

Mercury Bimiodide enough to kill 975 men.

Arsenic Trioxide, not half a handful, but sufficient to kill an army of 9250 men.

Atropine Sulphate, only a few pinches, but enough to kill 3000.

Strychnine Sulphate that would kill 645.

Blehloride of Mercury, scarcely two tablepoons full, but enough to kill 7200.

Copper arsenite sufficient to kill 4800.

An accompanying card states: "These poisons only handled by a fully registered pharmacist of 13 years' experience, and a double check system insures safety." Another card says: "There is safety and accuracy in Owl prescriptions. We never substitute."

It is a remarkable window and one well-worth a special trip to see, if you have not already seen it.

DEER SEASON OPENS FRIDAY

Scores of Hunters Out Ready to Bag Their First Early Tomorrow Morning.

The deer hunting season will open tomorrow, August 1st, and scores of the local nimrods are now out in the hills ready to make the first attack on the denizens of the hills.

There have been some material changes in the law since the last hunting season, the limit being reduced to three, it formerly was five. Only deer with horns can be killed, and it is illegal to destroy the evidences of sex about the carcass. Does and fawns are protected at all times of the year.

All hunters' licenses issued prior to June 3, 1913, must be sent in to the County Clerk, who will supply the new deer tags required by the new law, and endorse same on the license. The new licenses have the tags issued therewith and these must be attached to the carcasses with the date it was killed and the name of the slayer.

COUNTIES WIN IN TAX CASE

Big Corporations Cannot Hold Back Payment of Special Road Taxes.

The action of Sheriff Gage and the Coos County officials in refusing to accept payments of taxes from Weyerhaeuser and other big corporations where the special road district levies were not paid with the others, has just been sustained by Judge Galloway at Salem, where a similar case was instituted. Concerning it, a Salem dispatch says: "Circuit Judge Galloway decided that Sheriff Esch was justified in refusing to accept the tender of taxes by the Oregon-California Railroad in this county, because the special road tax, as provided in a bill passed at the last session of the Legislature, was not included. A writ of mandamus, asked by the railroad against the Sheriff, was denied. The company contends the bill is not valid.

"The decision sets a precedent for every county in the state, and the case probably will be appealed."

CO-OPERATIVE ROAD MAKING

C. I. Reigard Endorses the Plan of Devoting One Day to Work.

"Yes, I heartily agree with Mr. Watt's suggestion that a holiday be declared by the proper authority, for this city, and the day set aside for the entire population to turn out and donate its services toward clearing and improving the boulevard," remarked C. I. Reigard today to a Times reporter. "I have had an experience of this exact character, in a city of between seven and eight thousand people, tried the experiment and it worked wonders. The crowd was divided into divisions. The schools were put under the command of the School Superintendent and he then divided the pupils and placed them under command of different teachers. They accomplished very much from that source.

"The business men and others were divided into divisions, each under the direction of one fitted for some particular kind of work, such as clearing, bridge building, log moving, burning etc, and doing general work.

"The local cornet band furnished music at intervals during the afternoon, and the ladies of the city prepared and furnished lunch at the scene of labor, generally cheering the progress during all of the last half of the day, and when evening came, a large amount of splendid work had been done, the citizens of the community were better acquainted, and resulted in a get-together spirit which was of more actual worth than the value of the labor performed.

"One of the features which contributed much to the success of the day was the general observance, that every person should be dressed in work clothing. This applied to the ladies as well as the men, and was it to the starched shirt or stiff collar which appeared on the field of action, it was regarded as an undesirable, and as in one case was with its wearer ducked in the warm waters of the beautiful stream which flowed through the park.

"Put me down as one who wishes to participate."

An Open Letter:

TO THE WOMEN OF COOS CO.

New York, July 25, 1913.

We have just visited the factory of the John B. Anisfield Co. and purchased our stock of La Vogue Suits and Coats for fall.

These garments will be manufactured during the remainder of this month and next. They were designed long since the lines shown by the traveling men were on the road. You do not order a garment for fall made up in April, May or even June. Yet the samples shown in Portland and San Francisco, from which our competitors buy were designed and manufactured even so early as April.

We have no fall garments to show in June or July. We do not sell that kind. We do not believe you wish to buy that kind.

The La Vogue Suits and Coats we will show you soon will be up to the minute in style of the best workmanship and the price the lowest.

Don't make the same mistake a few women made last spring. Don't think of buying until you see the La Vogue garments at the GOLDEN RULE. If it's a Coat or a Suit, a Dress or an Evening Gown, we can please you and save you money.

R. A. COPPLE, Proprietor The Golden Rule.

BANDON TO GET LEAGUE GAMES

Humboldt County Leaguers to Play There Last Week in August is Report.

That the proposed series of post-season games between the Coos County league and the Redwood League of Humboldt may be played in part at Bandon the last week in August, was the word received here today.

Bandon is going to have a White Cedar Carnival the last week in August, and it is understood that Manager Bedillion has already taken the matter up with President DuShane of the Redwood League. The latter favored, in his letter printed in The Times the other day, three games in Coos County the last of August, and three games in Eureka.

Whether Manager Bedillion plans to play largely his own team or will pick a team of Coos County stars is not certain. However, if he thinks that his Bandon team alone cannot win, Manager Bedillion will probably pick some of the other players to help him as he will be out to win.

It is pointed out that if the Humboldt team comes up by boat, they will have time for a series of six games here while the Alliance is making the round trip to Portland.
