GOVERNMENT ROAD TO GOLD BEACH

Federal Officials Plan Highway Along Rogue River to Beach.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Aug. 8.—C. H. Flory, assistant forester of Portland; Warren Allen, engineer with the bureau of good roads, and Superintendent Macduff, of the Siskiyou forest reserve, have just arrived at Gold Beach after having made a trip down that stream to the sea to investigate the advisability of constructing a wagon road along it. The commercial clubs of both Gold Beach and Grants Pass have been striving to interest the forestry department in the building of this road for the past year, and both Josephine and Curry Counties have made appropriations to assist in bettering the trail that is now the only means of travel between the city at the mouth of the Rogue and the Interior. The forestry department has also put a good deal of expense on this trail, and it is now in fairly good shape. Most of the way a widening of this trail will make a good wagon road, but part of the distance will be heavy construction. The distance down the river is only about sixty-five miles, but at present to reach Gold Beach with a wagon or auto from here it is necessary to go to Crescent City, California, and up the coast for a long distance.

FAMILIAR SAYINGS.

"Going to the dogs" comes from the East, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression "Tell it to the marines," used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and some one who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled.

DOLLAR A DAY NOW FOR GIRLS

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 8.—It will be unlawful in Oregon to employ a girl under 18 years of age for more than eight hours and 20 minutes a day, or 50 hours a week, after October 4, 1913.

It will also be unlawful to keep a girl under 18 employed after 6 p. m., or to pay a girl from 16 to 18 less than $1 a day, except in the cases of apprentices and learners.

Such was the first ruling of the Oregon Industrial Welfare Commission. The Commission was organized last June under the law enacted by the last Oregon Legislature, which provides that the ruling shall take effect 60 days after its adoption.

The ruling is the first instance of compulsory minimum wage legislation in the United States. Massachusetts has a minimum wage law, which is not compulsory. California and Washington have minimum wage laws, modeled after Oregon's and Wisconsin and Minnesota now have similar laws, but the Commissioners of these states were slower in getting into action than the Oregon Commission.

Penalties Are Provided.

The law provides that any employer who shall violate the ruling of the Commission shall be subject to a fine of not less than $25, nor more than $100, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten days, nor more than three months, or both fine and imprisonment for each offense.

The ruling applies to girls employed in virtually every capacity except that of domestic service. It includes retail and wholesale stores, telephone exchanges, telegraph offices, hotels, restaurants, laundries and factories.

For the reason that male minors are employed at such a diversity of work and under conditions different from those under which girls work, the Commission did not include them in its ruling. After further investigation the Commission will submit its recommendations to another public hearing, as was done this week and issue a ruling applying to them.

Giving Service

In these little talks on advertising it is our main purpose to point out to our readers the benefits to be gained from the careful reading of THE TIMES advertising columns.

We have called attention to the economy of well-planned and intelligent shopping and also to the surprising fund of useful information and education contained in advertisements.

In presenting this subject to our readers, our aim is to be of service—to help everyone to get the most possible good from his newspaper.

Likewise, from an intimate knowledge of the interests and purposes of our advertisers, this idea of serving their patrons is a controlling one with them.

The most prominent advertisers of the day manage their businesses and plan their advertising from the standpoint of helping their patrons.

Comfort, convenience and intelligent store arrangement go hand in hand and are advertised together with fashions and values.

THE TIMES advertisers give service as well as values.
