THE WIFE IN ART

"LEARN ONE THING EVERY DAY"

No. 6. ELIZABETH ELEANOR SIDDAL, by Dante Gabriel Rossetti.
Copyright 1913, by The Mentor Association, Inc.

One day when Rossetti was painting in his studio, Deyereh, a fellow artist, rushed in and exclaimed that he had found the ideal woman. She was working in a milliner's shop, he said, but she was a wonderful girl of stately dignity, with blue-green eyes and copper tinted hair. This girl was Elizabeth Siddal, and from that time on she was the model for Rossetti's mystical dreams in color. She later became his wife.

Dante Gabriel Rossetti was born in England in 1828, the son of an Italian refugee. His parents lived simply, almost in poverty, but with refinement suited to the fostering of art and poetry in their children. The mother believed that one good picture on a plain wall was more beautiful than many worthless decorations. Rossetti used this simplicity in his paintings. He and a number of other artists formed the Preraphaelite Brotherhood. This was an organization that took a love of simplicity as its motto, and believed in using simplicity in everything.

Besides being an artist of great genius, Rossetti was a poet. He and his sister Christina were the leaders in the Preraphaelite movement in poetry. Before he was nineteen he wrote "The Blessed Damozel," a poem that expressed his ideal in womanhood. Elizabeth Siddal proved to be his ideal woman. Ruskin spoke of her as a "noble, glorious creature." Later the artist painted a picture to go with the poem, and his model was Elizabeth Siddal.

When Rossetti first asked her to pose for him the ideal beauty thought that he wanted her for fashion plates. She little thought that she was to be made the object of a great artist's lifework.

Her death plunged Rossetti into life-long misery, almost insanity. Up to the moment of his own death in 1882 he never ceased to grieve for her.

"Her eyes were deeper than the depth
Of waters stilled at even."

Every day a different human interest story will appear in The Times. You can get a beautiful Intaglio reproduction of this picture, with five others, equally attractive, 7 by 9 1/2 inches in size, with this week's "Mentor." In "The Mentor" a well-known authority covers the subject of the pictures and stories of the week. Readers of The Times and "The Mentor" will know Art, Literature, History, Science, and Travel, and own exquisite pictures. On sale at The Times office. Price fifteen cents. Write today to The Times for booklet explaining The Mentor Association Plan.
