Furniture and Its Makers

"LEARN ONE THING EVERY DAY"

No. 6. GEORGE HEPPLEWHITE. Copyright 1913, by The Mentor Association, Inc.

ALTHOUGH there are scores of experts who will point to a piece of furniture and say, "That is a Hepplewhite," there is in fact not a single authentic example of this man's work. He did, however, publish a book, "The Cabinet Maker and Upholsterer's Guide, or Repository of Design for Every Article of Household Furniture in the Newest and Most Approved Taste," on which his reputation rests. This book went through three editions in 1788, two years after the author's own death.

George Hepplewhite was one of the great names in furniture making. The designs in his book are characterized by comfort rather than artificiality. With this is combined great technical excellence and extreme lightness and durability. Curiously, however, these designs are not all of equal value. Some are as good as the best work of any era, while others are most commonplace.

Before Hepplewhite's time the sideboard had been used as an ornament only. He made it useful as well, by giving to it the functions of the old-time buffet.

Although even at that time tea cost five dollars a pound, its use had become very popular throughout England. Hepplewhite introduced many articles that had to do with tea service. Many peculiarly constructed and choice urn stands, tea trays, chests, and caddies are attributed to him.

Hepplewhite's furniture had an interesting characteristic. The legs tapered delicately on the inside faces only, and were finished with a ball or square foot. This gave the impression of grit and power to otherwise fragile furniture.

There were several stock designs or ornaments of which this furniture maker made frequent use. He was particularly fond of inserting ovals in the backs of chairs. Frequently a carved ear of corn was used as a decoration. Hepplewhite also made abundant use of a Prince of Wales feather in the delicate carving, combined with an inlay of colored woods. This use of the royal plume was attributed to his loyalty to the Prince of Wales. It was conclusive proof of the popularity of the Prince's party when the illness of George III came such a national strife.

The fact that he was accused by his enemies of plagiarism does not detract a bit from his real position. It shows rather that, like all real artists, he remained a student until the close of his career. He never disdained to profit by the experience and teachings of others, even of those less eminent than himself.

Every day a different human interest story will appear in The Times. You can get a beautiful intaglio reproduction of this picture, with five others, equally attractive, 7 by 9 1/2 inches in size, with this week's "Mentor." In "The Mentor" a well known authority covers the subject of the pictures and stories of the week. Readers of The Times and "The Mentor" will know Art, Literature, History, Science, and Travel, and own exquisite pictures. On sale at The Times office. Price fifteen cents. Write today to The Times for booklet explaining The Mentor Association Plan.
