Holds Court.—Judge Coke has concluded the September term of equity cases at Coquille, but will hear a number in chambers here. He has decided to devote Mondays to the cases until all are disposed of.

Roseburg Men Here.—Mayor Joseph Micelli, of Roseburg, and Robert G. Smith, a prominent Roseburg man, arrived here today en route to Gardiner on business. They will make a short visit with friends here.

Plan for Meeting.—Messrs. McEl-downey and Doll are today perfecting plans for the Men's Fellowship Club meeting which will be held tomorrow night. A good program is being arranged and a large attendance is expected.

Fine Dance at Libby.—Quite a number of Marshfield young folks went out to Libby last Saturday night to attend the dance given there by the Elliott orchestra. Those who attend these dances regularly say that the best dancers in Coos County are to be found at Libby.

To Rush Bridge.—Medford papers announce that County Judge Touville has sent a telegram to Contractor E. G. Perham of Marshfield, asking him to rush the construction of the By-bee bridge there. Some of the residents claim that he has not been working large enough force to get it completed before high water.

Novel Auto Service.—A novel experiment was tried at the ranch of Fred Gage near Allegany, of running an ensilage cutter and blower with a little Mitchell runabout auto, which was a perfect success. A small pulley was keyed onto one of the rear axles and a belt run from that to the cutter, giving ample speed and power.

Extend All.—The board of Directors of the First Christian Church yesterday extended a call of one year to Rev. Samuel Gregg, extending from Jan. 1, 1913, to Jan. 1, 1914. The board extended this call because of the ability shown by the recently appointed pastor. It is expected that the Rev. Gregg will bring his family to Marshfield in the near future.

Has Diphtheria.—H. E. Coffin, cashier of the Smith-Powers company, is quite ill at his home on South Sixth street, near the Catholic Church, of diphtheria. He has been quarantined. Where he contracted the disease is a mystery.

Hurt In Runaway.—An explosion occurred at Sunrise Creamery, near Myrtle Point, which frightened the team of Fred Massey. They ran away, throwing Mr. Massey out. He received a compound fracture of his right arm and a seriously lacerated head. Dr. M. O. Stemmer accompanied him to the Mercy Hospital at North Bend, where he is being cared for.

Dedicate Chapel.—The chapel at Coaledo was dedicated yesterday by the Rev. S. Lekanatooshrduain of the Rev. G. Leroy Hall of the cruiser Life-Line. The new chapel is for the accommodation of the loggers at Coaledo and services will be held there at regular intervals by different clergymen.

Judge Morrow Coming.—Judge Coke has decided to have Judge Morrow come here to preside over the December term of court which will open at Coquille on December 8. However, some of the parties were not ready for trial now and finally it was agreed to wait until the later date. Then Judge Coke will go to Portland and hold court for Judge Morrow.

Buy Launch.—The launch Sunrise, the property of the Coos Bay Condensing Company, was sold today to Masters Brothers, who operate boats between Sumner and Marshfield. The Sunrise will be given a thorough overhauling by its new purchasers, after which it will be put on as an extra boat between Marshfield and Sumner, thereby greatly improving the present service. The Sunrise was built in the spring of 1908 by Max Timmerman and sold to the Coos Bay Condensing Company, where it has been used as a milk carrier.

Decision Affirmed.—The Oregon Supreme Court has sustained the decision of Judge Coke in the case of R. G. Case, convicted of peddling without a license. Case sold bugles for the Spaulding company of Grinnell, Iowa, and the case involved one sold to Jim Hayes, who lives near Myrtle Point. This is said to be the first time that the higher court has affirmed a case of this kind in Oregon. The Spaulding company usually got around it on the ground that the law interfered with interstate business, but in this case it was shown that the buggy was furnished from a warehouse at Roseburg instead of being shipped direct from Grinnell.

J. WRIGHT WILSON HOME.

Marshfield Man Returns from Trip to Northern Cities.

J. Wright Wilson, having returned from Vancouver, B. C., via Portland and Seattle, notes the general conditions good and the sawmills along the Columbia River all appear to be sawing. Upon inquiry among some of the financiers at Seattle he was told that the city is considered to be on a more substantial basis than at any time during the past several years.

He says Vancouver, the gateway to Western Canada, is suffering some depression which is considered only temporary, and is largely attributed to the Balkan war. Canada feels the effect. The grain crop of the prairies was never known to be better and all seem optimistic as to her future, and anchor their faith on the millions being spent by the terminal railroads entering the city, as well as other large projects under way. Owing to the exemption of buildings from taxation it has been the means of rather heavy building, and small holders make some complaint that they are taxed heavily for modern fire equipment and to protect the 15-story blocks that are now free from taxation. Many believe that they will have to place some of the burden on the buildings as they are not satisfied with the single tax system.

The road from Drain to Marshfield was good and railroad building was reported to be in progress. Coos Bay, with her coming terminals, will be a strong competitor for her sister cities.
