Extravagant Prices no Longer Necessary in Player Pianos

No longer is it necessary to invest $700 to $900 to buy an artistic and wholly satisfactory player-piano. Improvements in design, in efficiency and methods of manufacture, together with quantity construction, have made it possible for us to offer at this time players which in every respect are superior to those which two or three years since sold at prices $200 to $300 higher. This evolution is the natural result of the great demand for good player-pianos at low prices and the devotion of the best mechanical minds of the music industry to manufacturing and mechanical problems.

Today we offer a player-piano at $490 on easy payments, which will satisfy the most exacting musician, not only in the character of the piano, but as well in the perfection of its renditions. It is beautifully cased, simply controlled and altogether desirable.

At $500, $550, $600 and $650 we show player pianos which we are confident are superior to any offered at their price in the West. On all convenient terms may be arranged. Besides, the buyer has the certain knowledge that both piano and price are right and that back of every instrument offered by our house is an unimpeachable guarantee not only as to quality, but that the price is the same that he would pay for his piano on the floors of the manufacturer.

Safeguard your own interests by investigating thoroughly.
