Ducks Flying High—Tom James, J. W. Conrad, Ray Kaufman, Arthur Peck and Jack Kendall returned last evening from their last duck hunt of the season. The season closes on the fifteenth of the month and some of the hunters among the party declared they were mightily glad over it. James and Kaufman got most of the ten or twelve ducks secured by the party. It was reported that the ducks were very unsettled in Haynes Slough and refused to wait until the hunters got into range. The unreasonable fowl would fly before the hunters got within two hundred yards, owing to the numerous relatives they had missed elsewhere on smelling gunpowder.

YOUTH TAKEN FOR STEALING

Merle Reynolds Sentenced to County Jail for Theft of Shovels

Constable Cox left on the afternoon train for Coquille, having in custody Merle Reynolds, eighteen years old, who was fined $25 or twelve and a half days in the county jail for stealing shovels from W. A. Storm a few days ago.

Storm rooms at the Snyder Hotel and Reynolds has been stopping at the same place. The former missed his shovels last week and found them in Wiseman's second hand store. While in the store he asked Wiseman who sold him the shovels. Reynolds was passing the place at the time and Wiseman pointed him out. Storm had Reynolds arrested and placed in the city jail.

He swore out a warrant in Justice Pennock's court, the warrant being served by Constable Cox. The trial was held this morning and Reynolds broke down and admitted the theft. He declared he "was up against it" and had to have money and took the shovels and sold them.

It is said that a number of small articles, including small sums of money, have been missed from the rooms in the Snyder Hotel from time to time, and that suspicion rested on Reynolds. No evidence was found against him, however, so when he was held for the theft of the shovels, Mr. Storm presented the case against the youth as a warning to him.

Not having the funds to pay his fine, Reynolds will serve his sentence in the county jail.
