

NEW BRANCHES FOR SCHOOLS

Supt. Tiedgen Favors Room for Abnormal Students and School Nurse

At a meeting of the Patron-Teachers' Club at the Marshfield High School last evening, Superintendent Tiedgen announced that he had two rather important departures that he would probably urge the Marshfield school board to adopt for the local schools next year. One is the establishment of a room with a special teacher for abnormal children. The other is to have the Marshfield, North Bend, Eastside and Bunker Hill schools unite in establishing the school nurse system and employ one school nurse for the four districts. She would be expected to give special attention to the hygienic conditions, look after ailing children and confer with the parents and try and improve the health of the students.

His announcement followed a talk by Dr. Straw on adoids and the health of the pupils. Dr. Straw stated that he had just completed an examination of most of the children, and while he found many ailing, the majority of the cases were not ones for operation, but ones that could be cured by slight treatment. He said that better atmosphere, good clothing and better hygienic conditions would overcome them. In conclusion, he said the people of Marshfield owed a debt of gratitude to Superintendent Tiedgen and his teachers for the care they exercised in seeing that the hygienic conditions in the school rooms are what they should be. He said the Marshfield schools in this respect were among the best he ever visited.

Miss Landrith read a paper on the "School Nurse System."

Mrs. J. Wright Wilson presided and Miss Silverman acted as secretary of the meeting. Mrs. Pearl Riley Ballinger furnished a number of musical numbers. At the close of the program, Miss Moore and the girls of her high school and Eighth grade domestic science classes furnished tea and cookies, the latter having been cooked by the children.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Domestic Science Department

Thursday of this week six girls of the advanced cooking class prepared and served a luncheon in the high school kitchen. Tickets were sold at fifteen cents each. The money from the tickets was used in paying expenses incurred. About thirty-five guests—teachers and students—were present. The committee in charge were Elsie Hall, chairman, Evelyn Langworthy, Laura Watson, Lucy Powers, Nellie Warwick and Marjorie Graham.

The luncheon was pronounced "fine" by those who were fortunate enough to secure a ticket. Only about thirty-five tickets were issued. From the economic standpoint it might be interesting to know that the estimated actual cost of serving the thirty-five was $3.25, making the expense a little under ten cents for each individual. Two other luncheons will be served in February and March by other members of the class.

The high school is the recipient of a fine picture of the Angelus, size 38 by 50 inches, in a five-inch oak frame. The picture is the gift of the class of 1913 and was presented to the school by Leslie Isaacson, who was a member of that class, with a fine presentation speech.

New pupils to the number of ten were enrolled in the schools this week.
