CIVIC BEAUTY
THE TIMES has frequently urged the residents of Coos Bay to take advantage of this fruitful soil and salubrious climate by planting rose bushes and palm trees that thrive so luxuriantly here. The approach of spring is once more suggestive of the opportunity of beautifying this section with the many trees and flowering shrubs that grow here so luxuriantly. Even in so practical and utilitarian an object as the Panama Canal, its surrounding beauty is not to be neglected. Beauty as well as utility is to be a feature of this great project in its completed form. More than 15,000 decorative trees and plants will be used at Balboa and other permanent town sites. Palm trees will naturally head the list, and there will be these varieties: 3000 royal palms, 50 Porto Rico royal palms, 500 coconut palms, 50 fan palms, 400 Panama hat palms, 24 fern palms, 48 sago palms, 24 date palms. Among other trees are the royal and dwarf poinsettias, ginger tree and many fruit trees of various kinds. These trees, in time, alone will be worth a trip to the isthmus.

EXPECT MUCH OF LOCAL PULP BEDILLION IS FOR GOOD ROADS

First Shipment of Coos Bay Product Causes Much Comment in Portland

The Portland Telegram says: Paper pulp production will become one of the leading industries of Coos Bay. It is said, if tests to be made from samples of the output of the new plant established there prove satisfactory. Two shipments of the pulp, comprising 35 tons, or 210 bales, arrived from Coos Bay on the steamer Alliance. One of them is consigned to the Lebanon Paper company, of Lebanon, and the other to the Crown-Columbia company, of Oregon City. Thorough tests will be made at the mills operated by these companies to determine the exact grade of the pulp. Of the 210 bales, 150 will be tested at Lebanon and 60 at Oregon City. They represent the first shipments ever sent from the new plant down the coast, which belongs to the Coos Bay Pulp & Manufacturing company. It is understood to be a subsidiary of the C. A. Smith Lumber company, which operates one of the largest sawmills on the Pacific coast at North Bend.

Bandon Man Boosts Highway Improvements Between Coos and Roseburg

ROSEBURG, Or., FEB. 6.—R. E. L. Bedillion, a heavy stockholder in the Bandon Woolen Mills, and one of Coos County's best known residents, is spending a few days in Roseburg on business. Incidentally, Mr. Bedillion is talking good roads, being especially interested in the present almost impassable highway connecting Roseburg and Myrtle Point. While admitting that the permanent improvement would be worth millions of dollars to Coos Bay, Mr. Bedillion does not lose sight of the fact that much would be gained in a financial way by Roseburg and other valley towns. Bandon is a natural summer resort, according to Mr. Bedillion, and with a passable highway between Roseburg and the Coast, thousands of valley people would visit there during the summer months. He says the people of Bandon are a progressive class and are doing everything possible to bring about an improvement of the Myrtle Point road. This highway, Mr. Bedillion contends, is the feasible route to the coast, and is the only road worthy of any great expenditure. The people of Coos County are at present circulating petitions authorizing the issuance of bonds for good roads, states Mr. Bedillion. In the event Douglas County does its share in the direction of improving the Myrtle Point road, much of the money realized from the Coos Bay bonds will be spent on the thoroughfare from Myrtle Point to the Douglas County line. Mr. Bedillion says a good and permanent highway between Roseburg and Myrtle Point would be the means of stimulating an interchange of commerce, which would total many thousands of dollars in a few years.

LET CONTRACTS ON RAILROAD

More Work Between Siuslaw and Coos Bay Awarded Sub-contractors

Following the news brought yesterday by John D. Goss that large forces of workmen would be started on the balance of the Coos Bay-Eugene line within the next six weeks, word was received today that a number of additional sub-contracts had been awarded.

Ralph D. Moody, attorney for the Southern Pacific in Oregon is quoted as saying that the Coos Bay line is to be rushed to completion as fast as men and money can do it.

No word has been received from Washington yet as to the final orders of the U. S. Engineers as to the character of the bridge to be built across Coos Bay. This is expected at any time.

Old Rumor Revived.
Edgar McDaniel of North Bend this week prints a report that the sales agents of Jacob Krebs, promoter of the Crawford Point townsite project, are quoting the Southern Pacific engineers as saying that the bridge will not be built across the Bay but that the line will be built down the east side of the Bay and cross over to Marshfield, leaving North Bend on a spur. Mr. McDaniel says this is a canard. The story is the revival of an old rumor that has been started every few months. Local Southern Pacific officials say the tale is silly and that the order is on for the steel for the big bridge and that arrangements have been made so that the big structure can be completed in about nine months.
