MUSICALE.

On Tuesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Horsfall gave a musicale in honor of Mr. Wolfram Schmedding, who is to leave Marshfield soon. Several musicians of note had offered their services for the evening, and the invited guests knew that an exceptionally pleasurable evening awaited About seventy-five music enthuslasts had accepted the invitations and when, shortly after 8 o'clock, the programme commenced, the tastily decorated residence had the ap-

The introduction of the evening was the flute solo, "Rhapsodie Americaine." Mr. Schmededing played ericaine." Mr. Schmededing played like we are used to hearing him play. He overcame the particularly difficult passages, cadences and variations of this composition with bril-East technique and again proved himself, throughout the evening, master or his instrument,

Mrs. Rebecca Luse Stump sang two of her best songs. Her full and sym-pathetic voice won the audience, which had to be satisfied by an enwhich had to be satisfied by an encore. Then followed another flute solo. Space does not permit to make criticizing remarks about each and every number rendered by Mr.
Schmedding; let it suffice to say that all of them found the best possible interpretation. Numerous encores were demanded of him by the appreciative audience, which expressed deep regrets to lose such an able and talented artist. The duet for flute and violin, played by Mr. Lew Keyzer and Mr. Schmedding, had to be repeated. Clara Isabel Myren, pupil of Mrs. Horsfall, showed a decided advance since her recital a short time ago. Her touch and expression are more perfected. Mrs. Mayme Stanley Gidley, who sang Meyer-Helmund's "Magic Song," was in best form. Her voice sounded clear and true, rising at the climax to the high B, and enchanting her listeners. well-earned applause brought forth an encore, equally well given. Mr. Keyzer is to be complimented upon the noble, expressive rendition of the "Meditation" from "Thais." The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Horsfall, who acquitted herself splendidly.

Light refreshments were served after the programme.

FOR MISS TELLEFSON.
