

In Society

CONTRIBUTIONS concerning social happenings, intended for publication in the society department of The Times, must be submitted to the editor not later than 6 o'clock p. m., Friday of each week. (Exceptions will be allowed only in cases where the events occurred later than the date stated.)

PERSONAL notices of visitors in the city, or of Coos Bay people who visit in other cities, together with notices of social affairs, are gladly received in the social department. Telephone 133. Notices of club meetings will be published and secretaries are kindly requested to furnish same.

TRANSFORMATION

By Constance Clarke

A drift of perfume in the air,
A scent from myriad dew-wet leaves,
A splash of crimson color where
The fairy of the roses weaves;
An eager step, a finger torn
And petals scott their scents disclose;
But think you that we mind the thorn
The while we breathe deep of the rose?

A dazzling wave of golden light,
A scene of meadows steeped in sun,
A whirl of birds on wing for flight,
A deepening sense that morning's done;
A sweep of fragile rainbow wings
And dainty body poised on high;
Think you the grub his message brings
The while we see the butterfly?

A sweep of lashes drooping low
Upon a soft cheek dimpled in,
A trembling arch of scarlet mouth
Above a tender cloven chin;
A glimpse of eyes, half brave, half shy;
With laughter hidden there the while;
Oh think you from her frown I'd fly
If only she would sometimes smile?

IN ONE'S OWN HOME

in everyday life one's own family is the best place to practice good manners. The habit of being courteous should be part of every well-regulated life, not from a mere wish to appear well before guests or strangers, but because good manners are the outward and visible signs of inward kindness and sincerity.

Regard for the feelings, rights and claims of others is a mark of a wellbred person. The person who is snave and agreeable in public or when wishing to make a good impression, and who is rude, snappish and disagreeable at home shows that his or her breeding is pitch-back. Good manners are not assumed for the purpose of deception. In fact, a refined person is never deceived by superficial insincere manners.

People who are naturally, instinctively in command of a gracious, courteous manner regard it as something very precious, a heritage of good breeding to pass on to their children. And so in the home, parents have it in their power to give to their sons and daughters an education in refinement and to bestow an unconscious influence which will be of use and power to them for life—the fine, courteous consideration of others.

Boys and girls who learn to have the best manners know that they are not for use or special occasions or for special people, but are part of an educated person's finest possessions.

Home may be made cheerful and gay, gloomy or sad by the manners, disposition, tempers of the household. It is of importance to try to win the admiration of parents, brothers and sisters before winning the admiration of friends. Boys and girls who have good manners know how to make pleasant greetings. They have learned a habit of rising when an elder or superior enters a room. A son or daughter rises and offers a chair when the mother enters a room or finds a chair for her, places it in a good position, or light for reading, or wherever may be desirable.

Parents who are careful in training their children do not indulge in idle talk, or gossip, remembering that children get a large part of their education in refinement by listening to good conversation.

NUPTIALS.

The marriage of John G. Mullen and Miss Dorothea Helen Kruse, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. V. Kruse, in North Bend last Wednesday, while marked by simplicity, was one of beauty. The Rev. Father McDevitt officiated. The groom was attended by Mr. George Sheridan, while Miss Laura Kruse, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

Following the nuptials a delicious wedding breakfast was served at the palatial new Kruse home, which had been attractively decorated for the occasion. The wedding party, Mr. and Mrs. K. V. Kruse, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kruse and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Rasmussen, were all that were present. Immediately afterward the young couple left for the Bartle cottage on Coos River, where the greater part of their honeymoon will be spent. They will be at home in the beautiful home which the groom has built and furnished in North Bend after March 15.

The bride is one of North Bend's best known young women, is accomplished, charming and capable. Mr. Mullen is one of the rising young members of the Coos county bar and both have hosts of friends whose wish for them will be all the success and joy that time can bring.

The bride was dressed in a tailored gown while the maid of honor, Miss Kruse, was attired in a tailored gown of blue.

YOUNG MATRONS.

Mrs. F. L. Grannis was hostess Thursday afternoon to the Young Matrons. A very happy afternoon of chat and needlework was passed, followed by the serving of refreshments by Misses Ruth Allen and Helen Rush. Mrs. Claybaugh will entertain the club next week at her home in the Swanson apartments on North Ninth street near Central avenue. Those present this week were Mrs.

On Demand or Ten Day's Time

Ours is an "on demand" store, a store where you can come with confidence that your clothes demands will be met at once; and where whatever we give must result in your entire satisfaction before we are satisfied.

Years ago you couldn't purchase the kind of clothes we sell on demand outside of the shops of the exclusive tailors. It took an organization such as to bring ready clothes up to their present standard, to put them far above the best tailor models in point of style, quality and workmanship and at the same time keep the price down within reason.

The House of Kuppenheimer

How successfully all this has been done will be most evident if you will but review the more than two score styles for men of every age and every size we are offering at $18, $20, $22.50, $25, $27.50, $30.

Other Suits, $8.50 to $18.00.

Complete Home Furnishers

To The People of Coos Bay:

My new studio at the old stand, the Montgomery Building, Front Street, completely refurnished, re-arranged and with an entirely new outfit of cameras and accessories, WILL OPEN TOMORROW for business.

Since the fire destroyed my studio, I have been busy planning and arranging for this new one, which I can assure the public is much in advance of the old one in every way.

With improved equipment and accessories, I will be prepared to make even better pictures than before.

The public generally are cordially invited to call Saturday and inspect the new studio.

If you didn't come today, come Sunday,
Cordially yours,

Quatermass
