LABOR UNION MEN BANQUET

Several Short Addresses Mark Gathering Here Sunday—Senator Smith Talks

A meeting and smoker was held by the Coos Bay Labor Council Sunday at Odd Fellows' Hall. The meeting was followed by a banquet and smoker in which several selections were rendered by Ellerbeck's orchestra.

George Kohl, as chairman of the meeting, opened with a short address of welcome in which he reviewed the work that had been accomplished by the American Federation of Labor, the encouragement it was to all to see so many present and the hope for a greater organization on Coos Bay.

Tom Meyer addressed the body, dealing with the labor question from the time of George Washington to the present day. He said that Washington was in accord with the labor organization, as was Lincoln. He concluded by reading a letter from a Chinese diplomat who recently visited America and wrote in his letter his impressions of the uses and misuses of labor.

Senator Smith's Talks.

Senator I. S. Smith then addressed the body on the legislation that had been accomplished for the benefit of labor. Mr. Smith said that the law passed for women specifying their hours of labor should be only eight hours should also apply to men. He expressed the hope that the day was not far distant when a law would be passed compelling the employers to work their men not more than eight hours.

In conclusion Senator Smith remarked that the appliances and safety devices for the protection of men working in mills was being generally installed and if any of the men knew where safety devices were needed that they should tell their employers immediately as it is the wish of the employer to grant every precaution against accidents possible.

Senator Smith is chairman of the committee on Labor and Industries in the Senate.

The meeting then adjourned to a banquet which was elegantly prepared. Miss Lois Powell rendered a vocal solo, accompanied by Lew Keyser and Mr. Reiser.

A brief outline of the work done for labor was rendered by C. P. Mason of the International Typographical Union, in which he discussed the organization in its present state and the work that has been done by its members to accomplish this end. He stated that at times the members of the Typographical Union had paid as much as ten per cent of their earnings for strike funds.

A violin solo was rendered by Lew Keyser.

H. Howard of the Musicians' Union was the next to address the assemblage. He stated that the Musicians' Union was heartily in favor of the Central Labor Council and would do all in their power to assist in furthering the cause.

The meeting then adjourned with a selection from Ellerbeck's Orchestra. The gathering was pronounced by all attending as a banner get-together labor gathering of the year.

WANT TO GET OYSTER SHELLS

Farmers Union to Petition Port Commission to Make Them Available

At a meeting of the Farmers' Union here Saturday, it was decided to make another request of the Port of Coos Bay to have the oyster shells pumped out of the Bay by the dredge Seattle put in a place where the ranchers can secure them and use them for fertilizer. J. E. Fitzgerald will probably take it up again with the Port Commission at their next meeting.

Mr. Fitzgerald said that the previous action of the Port Commission was unsatisfactory as they simply said they would pump them up on Dredger Isle and the ranchers could go there and get them if they desired them. Mr. Fitzgerald said that John Manning was claiming Dredger Isle and that any attempt to take them away from there would result in trouble.

At the meeting it was pointed out that the companies selling oyster shells were charging $18.00 per ton for them and this, with freight added, made them very expensive. Besides the expense, the oyster shells purchased are not as good as the ones obtainable here, as they are all ground up.

Mr. Fitzgerald says the oyster shells pumped from the bay should be left exposed to the air and sun for a year or so, several months at least. He says they are far superior to any other fertilizer that could be secured for use on the lowlands around the bay.

PLAN TO PAY KINNEY TAXES

Receiver's Certificate to be Issued—Amount Said to Exceed $40,000.

Plans for paying the back taxes on the Kinney properties have about been completed and North Bend and Coos County will soon have them in their coffers if an agreement as to the amount of them can be reached, according to Judge Hammond, who is interested in the settlement of the case.

Arrangements have been made for Receiver V. E. Watters to issue receiver's certificates for the amount of the taxes and these certificates will be a prior lien on the property. The settlement of the taxes is one of the first things that has to be cleaned up to straighten out the titles.

The amount of taxes will probably be thrashed out by Receiver Watters and the County officials very soon. It is said that they amount to over $40,000.

According to friends of Major Kinney, he is improving slowly at the California sanitarium where he was taken some time ago.

OATS BY PARCEL POST

W. L. Nichols, of Riddle, reports sending 200 pounds of oats by parcel post, in four packages, from there to Marial, Curry County, over the West Fork route. The cost was only $1.08 per 100 pounds, while the packers charge $2 per 100 pounds for goods taken over that trail.—Roseburg Review.

Growers in the vicinity of Sherwood received more than $150,000 for their hops recently.

CHRISTOFFERSON ESTABLISHES NEW AMERICAN RECORD

TIMES' AVIATOR WHO GAVE FIRST FLIGHT AND FLYING MACHINE EXHIBITION ON COOS BAY WINS NEW LAURELS IN CALIFORNIA.

OCEAN TRIP PLANNED BY CHRISTOFFERSON

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 23.—Eated by his success in flying his own biplane from the San Francisco exposition grounds to the exposition grounds here, Aviator Silas Christofferson announced that within the next six weeks he will endeavor to fly over the ocean from San Francisco to San Diego in a flying boat, carrying a passenger and a mechanic.

Silas Christofferson, the Coos Bay Times aviator, who gave the first exhibition of a flying machine ever seen in Southwestern Oregon, under the auspices of this paper, has just been achieving fresh laurels in aviation in California. His recent trip across the Tehachapi was said to be impossible and establishes a new American record for duration in altitude flight. The San Francisco Examiner contains the following details of the remarkable flight:

Flying 9000 feet above sea level, Silas Christofferson, the plucky San Francisco aviator, crossed the Tehachapi, making the greatest flight ever successfully attempted in America.

He arose from the ground at Bakersfield at 10:05 a. m., and was in Los Angeles at 12:17 p. m., two hours and twelve minutes of flight, most of which was nearly two miles above sea level.

Mile Above Mountain Range
Christofferson was up 9000 feet when he crossed the summit. He was then 5000 feet—practically a mile—above the crest of the mountain range.

This is far and away the greatest and most spectacular cross-country flight ever made by any aviator in the United States.

The air above the crest of the Tehachapi is constantly whipped and lashed by a hurricane of cross currents. The wind always sucks through the pass in a gale. The smiling sunlit skies above the clouds which hover over the crest are treacherous with air pit falls.

Christofferson battled five times with the hurricane before he succeeded in conquering the mountains. Tomorrow he will fly from Los Angeles to San Diego. Here is his own story of today's wonderful flight:

By Silas Christofferson
I have made the aerial trip over the Tehachapi pass—the trip that was said to be impossible. I flew over the Tehachapi Pass on my 5000 foot above the pass; I was at 9000 feet above the sea level when I crossed the summit.

A race was planned from San Francisco to Los Angeles or San Diego. The trip was feasible—all but crossing the mountains. Every flyer seemed to think that was impossible.

I looked over the field, and was chosen a pathfinder. I was of the opinion that the trip could be made. I am now convinced that a race from San Francisco to San Diego is entirely feasible. I was willing to try, and with a biplane that I constructed, and a sixty-horse-power engine, I made the initial attempt.

I landed at Ascot Park, where I was met by "The Examiner" and other newspaper representatives. They could have continued the trip to San Diego with ease, but I preferred to rest a day before making the final lap of the distance.

I can easily say that with fair weather conditions and sufficient power in the engine, the over the Tehachapi Pass can be made and that a race from San Francisco to Los Angeles is better with more difficulties than many other places.

After starting this morning at Bakersfield I did not have a stop. My engine did not even shot the entire distance.

TROUBLE IN CURRY
A row between Dan O'Connell, Englishman, and Dago Joe, placed at Alf Miller's Saturday place and was the cause of the hasty trip to the scene of the drunken quarrel in which the got pretty badly scratched in the barbed wire fence, in running O'Conner's gun.—Gold Beach News.

Landed in the Dark.
The trip from San Francisco to Bakersfield was uneventful excepting that I flew after dark and made a landing in the dark. A landing place had been illuminated, but at the time I was not aware of it.
