NEW SCHEDULE IN MAY

A Portland paper says "Her flying schedule," is the phrase used by Captain T. J. Maeggen to express the summer schedule of the steamer Breakwater when she begins her annual feat of completing the round trip between Portland and Coos Bay every five days. It is planned for the steamer to resume this service again about the first of May, leaving this end of the line at 8 o'clock in the mornings instead of in the evenings, as at present. She will maintain the five-day schedule until the stormy season sets in in the fall.

ELDER BUNCH MADE REPORT

Former Marshfield Man Tells of Seventh Day Adventists in This Section

COLLEGE PLACE, Wash., March 6.—F. S. Bunch of Roseburg, president of the Southern Oregon conference of Seventh Day Adventists, gave an interesting report of the progress that has been made in his territory during the past two years before the delegates attending the biennial convention of the North Pacific Union Conference now being held here, as follows:

"We have fourteen churches and thirteen church buildings. Three of our churches were organized since January, 1912.

"In 1912 the receipts were $9,048.78; in 1913, $9,153.62, or a total for the period of $18,202.40. One-fifth of this amount was forwarded to the General and the Union Conference.

"Trust funds received at our office and sent on to the Union treasury were, during 1912, $3416.90; during 1913, $3504.17, a total of $6,921.07. Of this amount $3376.22 was Sabbath school offerings.

"The contributions to the 15-cent-a-week fund in 1912 were $3383.37, while in 1913 there was paid in $3,351.32, on the 20-cent-a-week fund, a smaller sum than was received during the preceding year at the rate of 15c a week per member.

The book and periodical sales for 1912 were $9444.48; for 1913, $977.72. For both years the total is $11,422.20. The periodical sales alone in 1912 were $1503.71; and in 1913, $1710.20. Both years give a total of $3213.91.

"There are in the conference two academies and three church schools. Each of the academies has a church school department.

"We have now nine senior and three Junior Missionary Volunteer societies. During the biennial period twenty-four have received Reading Course certificates. Sixty are now working for the Standard of Attainment, and 125 are taking the Reading Course. The young people of southern Oregon have also undertaken to raise during the coming year $226 with which to build a chapel in the East China mission."

NOT ALL SUN IN CALIFORNIA

Loyal Sons of the Golden State Don't Like to Admit It Rains Occasionally

The letter from Stephen Rogers published in The Times recently indicates that the rain falls in California as well as Oregon, but California tries to ignore it.

California's struggle with the elements is heroic, and, although mention of it is bound to give pain if not to cause anger, it deserves comment. The generally glorious climate of California has its days off and is subject to some of the accidents which are bound to happen in the most blessed vales, but California, content with nothing but perfection, eliminates them by denying them.

Inasmuch as a Californian's enjoyment of other folk's meteorological mishaps is something akin to ecstasy, we are privileged by precedent to examine the rare humors of a censorship of weather.

"I know it is not polite," a newspaper man writes, "to mention floods or earthquakes anywhere in California. I know a case where a San Francisco daily paper lost hundreds of subscribers in a certain interior city because it printed a sensational account of a flood with pictures of widely known citizens being ferried across the streets in boats. The newspaper was accused of maliciously giving a black eye to the town. Right now two Stockton papers are engaged in a slang whanging competition of mutual abuse because the Mail printed a flood forecast and warning for the town, issued by the government prophet in Sacramento, and forgot to call him a liar. The rival paper at once caught up the lapse, and accused the Mail of issuing a special 'flood extra.'"

"So in the Chico Enterprise the other day I saw a solemn editorial warning addressed to its contemporaries forbidding them to use the word 'flood' in any sort of connection with the town of Chico. At the same time the editor felt himself free to print an entertaining story of some small boys chasing fish on one of the main streets of the town."

Such little eccentricities as occasionally mar the conduct of the generally glorious California weather are bound in the end to be eliminated by this rigorous censorship. Deviations from normal will be prevented by ignoring the deviation.

Has a merchant who handles umbrellas and raincoats any social standing in California?

MOSES IS NAMED

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 7.—Victor Moses has been named to be Postmaster at Corvallis, Oregon. He was mentioned as a probable candidate on the Democratic ticket against Hawley.

PORT ORFORD HIKERS.

A number of the ladies of Port Orford have gotten together and organized what they term the Hikers' Club. During the rainy season they are content to meet on Wednesday afternoons at some member's house where refreshments are served and fancy work and tea indulged in, but for the summer months they plan some strenuous jaunts where poor hubby will probably be worked in as lunch carrier. The officers of the club are Mrs. Wm. Gillings, president; Mrs. L. Knapp, vice president, and Miss Louise Walters secretary and treasurer. —Port Orford Tribune.

CURRY RANCH SOLD.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Miller and little son came up from Euchre Creek last week, and after spending several days on their Hubbard's creek homestead returned south this morning. Walton recently purchased the Isaac Miller place on Rogue River, and will move his family there at once to get ready for the planting of spring crops. The place consists of 550 acres, some 200 of which is prairie land and on the rest there is over 8,000,000 feet of mercantile timber. —Port Orford Tribune.

MANY VESSELS LOST IN 1913

Government Report Shows 250 Merchantmen and Nine Yachts Wrecked

In the 45th annual list of vessels of the United States belonging to the commercial marine, issued by the Bureau of Navigation, containing the names of all craft flying the American flag, their dimensions, where and when built and other data about them, the information is given that 250 merchant vessels were lost during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and the loss of life totalled 201. Besides there were nine steam yachts lost, with a resultant sacrifice of three lives.

Of the 250 merchantmen ending their careers there were 100 sailing vessels, of 38,769 tons register, which had aboard 653 persons, 59 of whom were lost. There were 128 steamers, 31,046 tons register, having aboard 1139 persons, of whom 140 were lost. Two unrigged vessels, 4880 tons register, had aboard 29 persons and two were lost. Of the 48 persons on the nine yachts three were lost.

Among the most serious disasters of the year was when the tank steamship Rosecrans stranded on Peacock Spit, at the mouth of the Columbia River, January 3, 1913. Thirty-three of the thirty-six men in her crew lost their lives. The Government publication gives the loss as 36, which is a mistake, as there were three survivors. The Rosecrans was en route to the Linnton tanks from Monterey with a cargo of fuel oil. The five in the crew of the gasoline schooner Osprey, stranding on Coos Bay bar on November 1, 1912, lost their lives.

ONE OF THE QUAINTEST, MOST BECOMING MODES IS THE PANNIER

It is quite natural with the vogue of old fashioned looking flowered silks, moires and taffetas, that the panner should appear. The effect is brought about in many ways; the draped overskirt, the puffed overskirt and the double or triple ruffle about the hips vie for favor with the wired or corded tunic. Some form of overskirt is seen on most of the frocks.

Just at the moment there are few tailored frocks and suits to be seen; the gowns are all more or less dressy and are suitable for afternoon or evening. The simple little one-piece frock is still favored for shopping and morning wear but for afternoons, soft draped effects, frills and flounces, are the order of the day.

Number 8147 is of chiffon taffeta in that new perle blue; the blouse is kimono, the skirt is a two-piece model with a draped overskirt in panner effect. In size 36 this costume requires 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

The sleeveless blouse is one of the attractive novelties of the season. One may have several lace underblouses lined with different colored chiffons, giving the effect of a new costume each time it is worn.

Number 8152 shows the popular yoke effect, is sleeveless and opens in front to give the appearance of a vest. The skirt (8151) is a three-piece model with a double panner. The overskirt and the panner are of figured silk in a Persian design; the skirt is of terra cotta charmeuse. A cream colored chiffon underblouse completes a most attractive afternoon dress.

This may be copied in size 36 with 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the blouse and 1 1/2 yards of 42-inch material for the gulmpie. The skirt requires for size 24, 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

Number 8147—sizes 34 to 42.
Number 8152—sizes 34 to 42.
Number 8151—sizes 22 to 32.
Each pattern 15 cents.
