SPORTING TALK

Word comes from the Quaker City that the Phillies are still in search for players to strengthen the infield, which was cut to pieces by the jumping of Doolan and Knabe to the outlaws. Rumor has it that there will be several shifts in the next few days in order to help the Phillies in their uplift work.

Clark Griffith sees another Rustie in Pitcher Shaw. "Shaw handles himself very much like that wonderful pitcher of the Giants," says Grif. "And let me tell you there were no better pitchers than he. Shaw, like Rustie, has great speed with a shoot on his fast one, and he has that same fast curve which helped to make Rustie famous. Shaw's curved ball is almost as speedy as his fast one, and if he doesn't make a great pitcher I'll miss my guess."

Pueblo, Colo., is fast getting into the limelight as a boxing Mecca. The smelter city is at present supporting seven athletic clubs that stage boxing contests, and friendly rivalry exists between the promoters.

Promoter Jim Coffroth, of San Francisco, who is spending a little time in the east, hopes to be able to match Gunboat Smith and Jack Johnson for a fight next September at Tia Juana, Mexico, a short distance from San Diego, Cal. Coffroth must figure that Smith will defeat Sam Langford if they meet in London in a couple of months.

Well, will someone kindly pass the bouquets to Jim Flynn, the Pueblo heavyweight? He declares as solemnly as if he were taking a marriage vow that he will never retire as long as he is able to get into a ring.

Walter Hutchinson, the left-handed pitcher of the Yankees at Houston, has been relieved of the necessity of proving that he is of big league calibre. He admits that he has as much as any pitcher in either league, lacking only experience.

Kelly and Watson, Western League outfielders last season, have reported to the Pittsburg National League team, and are now at Hot Springs, Ark., getting ready to show their wares to Manager Fred Clarke.

Johnny Coulon and Kid Williams met in Chicago recently and practically agreed to fight in Los Angeles for the bantam championship on a date not sooner than July 4.

MANY LIVES LOST IN COAL MINES

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Every hundred million short tons of coal produced in the United States in 1912 cost 429 lives in mine accidents, or a total of 2360 lives, for a production of 550,000,000 short tons of coal, according to a report just issued by the bureau of mines, Department of the Interior. This loss of life in proportion to the number of millions of tons mined, 4.29 per cent, is the smallest in the records available at the bureau. In 1907 it soared to 6.93 per cent.

The actual number of lives lost in 1912 was less than in any previous year since 1896, when 2118 men lost their lives in and around coal mines. In 1907 the number of deaths reached 3137. Yet, with a smaller loss of life, the production of coal in 1912 was the greatest in the country's history.

In figuring deaths, the bureau counts a man who dies within 18 months of the time of the accident as having been "fatally hurt," which makes the figures for 1912 a little incomplete. For each 1000 men engaged in mining, 23.15 were killed in 1912, and this is the lowest proportion since 1899, when 3.07 men were killed out of each thousand.

"This general improvement," says the report, "has been brought about by a combination of causes, the principal one of which has been more efficient and effective mine inspection on the part of the state mining departments and state mine inspectors throughout the country, supplemented by greater care on the part of both the operators and the miners."

"The investigative and educational work of the bureau of mines has kept both the operator and the miner alive to the various dangers connected with coal mining and has shown what precautions should be taken to avoid these dangers."

The report declares, however, that a still greater decrease in the number of killed and injured, if proper care will be exercised by operators, superintendents and by the miners themselves will result.

SEARCH FOR PULP WOOD

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19.—A recent issue of the New York Herald is printed on paper made from woods which have not heretofore been used for news print paper. The sheet which newspaper readers hold in their hands each day is made of wood. If one looks closely the little wood fibers can be seen, especially in the margins where printing does not obscure them. The larger part of the wood so used is ground up while some of it is reduced by the action of chemicals. The chemical pulp has the longer fibers and a certain proportion of it is added to the ground wood to give the finished paper the required toughness.

Spruce, abundant in the New England and Lake states and in Canada, has heretofore been the standard wood for making news print paper and as long as there was a supply sufficient to meet the needs of the paper industry there was no reason to seek substitutes. But heavy inroads have been made on the spruce forests of the western part of the United States in this day of great circulations and large editions, especially of Sunday papers with their many parts. On a rough estimate, a newspaper with an average circulation of 60,000 copies and an average edition of twenty pages, uses each day the product of about four acres of forest. When this figure is multiplied by the great number of newspapers published in the United States, many of them with much larger circulations and editions, and when this is further multiplied by 365, because many papers are issued every day of the year, it can be seen that the drain upon the forests is enormous. Foresters say that even under the most approved methods known to their profession, it could scarcely be expected that spruce would be able to hold its own, but would need supplementing by some other material.

"PLEASE DON'T CALL ME COLONEL!"—W. H. TAFT

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—When former President Taft appeared before the judiciary committee there was considerable discussion among the committee members as to how to address him. It was finally decided to call him just "Mister."

Taft got wind of this and told Chairman Clayton that he did not care what they called him—President, ex-President, or Mister—as long as "you don't call me Colonel."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color, Thickness and Lustre—Everybody is Using It Again

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application of two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Seek New Woods. In the national forests there are many woods considered inferior by lumbermen. Yet they are available for purchase at low rates and many of the timber stands are readily accessible. The forest service, in its desire to utilize to the best advantage all of the resources of the federal timber holdings, has been seeking proper uses for these trees and has experimented in making pulp from them at its pulp laboratory at Wausau, Wisconsin, an auxiliary of the forest products laboratory at Madison. The Wausau laboratory is equipped with standard machinery and all experiments are carried out under conditions which duplicate commercial practice.
