POLITICS.

THE TIMES sometimes wonders if politics is not an American bad habit. No private business could stand these periodical upheavals. As soon as a man is placed in office and familiarizes himself with its workings, the exigencies of politics demand that there shall be a change. All that some men want to know of a candidate is "What's his politics?" Is not that a sufficient judgment? What, after all, is the occasion of the present upheaval? Is it not much more an exhibition of irritability—nerves in some quarters and a primitive instinct to hit somebody than of an intelligent interest in the prosperity and wise and business like management of Coos county. In some quarters there is an apparent effort to deliberately incite the evil passions of men and drag into the campaign feautres that are for foreign to the issue. In private business these same people would have been more concerned with efficiency and economy than in promoting personalities. Some psychologists insist that men are so constituted that they must have occasional sprees. They must break loose from all restraints about once in so often. The holiday celebrations, carnivals, Fourth of July and Hallowe'ens have become established in recognition of this disposition. Perhaps politics must be looked upon as a periodical spree of the whole community. Once over, everybody settles down to orderly life once more; men become neighbors again and even good friends. Wouldn't it be a good plan to place our governmental affairs, both local, state and national, on a business basis instead of a political one?

WITH THE TOAST AND THE TEA

GOOD EVENING.
Live day by day.
Though autumn leaves are withering round thy way,
Walk in the sunshine. It is all for thee.
Push straight ahead as long as thou canst see.
Onward and upward. Look and smile and pray—
Live day by day.
—Julia Harris May.

ELECTION.

If your nerves are feeling shaky,
And your appetite is weak,
And you wonder what in thunder
Are the words you ought to speak,
If you're wishing it was over,
And you say you're feeling great,
You're—
The People's stalwart Friend,
Our Candidate!
If you wonder why the churches
Seem to have it in for you,
Or perhaps the labor interests
If you only really know;
If you're hoping for the primaries,
But you dread to know your fate,
You're—
That Peerless Foe to Graft,
Our candidate—
If your tongue is somewhat blistered
And your right hand's feeling sore
And your trouble all seems double
What it was, and maybe more;
If you feel that you should worry,
(Though the time is getting late)
You're—
The Taxpayer's Delight,
Our Candidate!

Said teacher: "What is half of 8?"
And Johnnie answered jauntily:
"Why up and down, it seems to me,
That half of 8 is exactly 3,
But it's nothing horizontally."

"Our best dressed women," says one fashion editor, "are wearing a great deal of taffeta." That may help counteract the impression that they are not wearing much of anything.

Selig's Wild Animal Masterpiece Final Appearance Tonight.

Manager Marsden of the Grand is making that popular place of amusement the home of all that is the best and most interesting in photo-plays. Last night a crowded house witnessed the production of "In the Midst of the Jungle," one of the most remarkable wild animal pictures ever shown. This picture comprises 2000 feet of film taken in the African jungles and is full of thrilling and exciting scenes, absolutely new in motion pictures. There is not a dull moment in the three reels. It shows an interesting excursion into Africa's wilds, across the veldt and through the primeval forests to the rocky haunts of big game. The thrilling experiences of an intrepid but resourceful woman—given up for dead by her companions of the hunt, furnishes the greatest pictorial perturbation ever impressed upon the flying film. The woman's struggle against the attacks of raging lions with only a frail door between, is the acme of a huntress' heroism. No one should miss seeing this high class feature at the Grand tonight. It will be your last opportunity.
