

BADGER GAME ON REV. BULGIN

Revivalist Who Was to Have Come to Marshfield in Mix-up in California

The following dispatch from Hanford, Calif., will be of interest here at Rev. E. J. Bulgin was to have come here next week to start a series of Union Revivals, but it is understood that his dates here have been cancelled owing to conflicting with an engagement for San Diego in May.

"Mrs. George Carruthers, arrested in connection with what E. J. Bulgin, a prohibition evangelist, said was an attempt to end his usefulness by compromising him, was detained at the county jail charged with disturbing the peace.

"Bulgin arrived in Hanford Thursday to aid the campaign against the saloons. At his hotel he said he was Mrs. Carruthers, the widow of a Vallejo saloonkeeper, and she spoke to him several times. Suspecting her motive, Bulgin telephoned to the Rev. W. C. Loomis of the First Methodist church to hide in a closet in his room before he went to it.

"He followed. A little later, according to his account, Mrs. Carruthers entered and shut the door. Loomis stepped from the closet and Bulgin turned to telephone the clerk. Mrs. Carruthers ran down stairs and leaped into a buggy which was waiting for her. Loomis, who had followed, seized the horse's head, but Mrs. Carruthers lashed him across the face until he let go and drove off.

"Officers followed her four miles before they overtook and arrested her. She denied that she had any intention of injuring Bulgin. She knew him in Portland, Or., she asserted and simply sought to renew the acquaintance."

WIFE WORRIES ABOUT HUBBY

Nels Adamson Fails to Return When Expected and Causes Alarm

If you're a married man in Marshfield and return to your fireside every evening for three years, you had better keep up the good work else you are liable to have your better half in conquest along the wee, sma' hours.

Such is the case of Nels Adamson, harbor light tender, who left home last evening about 7:30 and had not returned at 1 o'clock, thereby causing Mrs. Adamson much worry, until she finally ventured to the Marshfield police station to inquire for her husband, whom she thought was surely lost for the reason that he had never returned home later than 10 o'clock at night. The officers made a diligent search of Marshfield and the lost Adamson could not be found.

Officer Shoupe told Mrs. Adamson to return home and probably her husband would return later. When she returned home she found that her husband was about to start out looking for her and as it was he pressed the query: "What are you doing out this early?" "Looking for you" came the answer. Explanation afterwards brought out the fact that Mr. Adamson had stayed talking with friends, not knowing the hour, which was 3 a. m., and did not think Mrs. Adamson would become as anxious as she did.

Otto Salo and Wife and A. Astale Arrested Following Alleged Shooting

Constable Cox made a charge on Bunker Hill Sunday evening and arrested A. Astale and Mrs. Otto Salo, following an alleged carousal which finally concluded in trouble between Mrs. Salo and her husband, Otto Salo, in which he alleges she fired two shots at him, threatening to kill him if he did not leave the house. Salo appeared before Justice Penneck today and refused to prosecute and the pair were released from custody.

According to Salo, he came to his home at Bunker Hill at noon on Sunday from the pulp mill, where he is employed, and found Astale and another man drinking in his home. He made no objection to this union of strangers drinking in his home and proceeded to retire for the day. About 6 o'clock he was awakened by the singing and yelling of the trio and arose and asked them to desist. Astale grabbed him by the coat collar and plunged him through the doorway of his room, locking the door and keeping him a prisoner in his own house. Salo then jumped through a window to the outside of the dwelling and entered through the front door, when he alleges that he was met by his wife with a revolver, who attempted firing three shots, only one discharging and this not taking effect on Salo.

Salo then beat a hasty retreat from the house and did not return until after Constable Cox had placed his wife under arrest. In proof of the fact that he had given his wife all his earnings, Salo asked her for 15 cents with which to buy tobacco before himself and Astale left in custody of Constable Cox. He says that he has been giving his wife all the money he has earned for the past year.

Mrs. Salo, who bore marks of a struggle in court today, said that she was a massage artist and made money of her own in this way.

She says she has worked at this business since her advent to Coos Bay some six months ago. She also claims that the beer and whiskey in her home at Bunker Hill was purchased by her husband for a birthday party on Thursday of last week.

F. L. Compton, who lives adjacent to the Salo house says that the citizens of Bunker Hill will not tolerate the Salo troubles any longer. Justice Penneck ordered her to vacate the house today. She said she would sell the furniture, and was interrupted by her better half, who said: "I'll do the selling of that furniture," and both left Justice Penneck's court to see who would sell the most furniture and break up housekeeping.

CLASH ABOUT ALLEY TITLE

A lively controversy has been precipitated by the city's determination to improve the alleyway leading from North First street, formerly Pine street, to Front street near the brewery property.

George Baines, agent for E. W. Wright, who looks after the Porter Brothers property adjoining, had the alley fenced up this morning, claiming that Porter Brothers and I. Hacker each had a half interest in it and that it was not a public highway.

A few hours later the street committee of the city had the officers tear down the fence. The alleyway has been used as a public highway for over twenty-five years, it is claimed.

EASTER SERVICE HIGHLY PRAISED

Large Attendance at Episcopal Church—Knights Templar in Uniform

The Easter service at 11 a. m. in the new Episcopal Church brought out more people than could be accommodated within the church proper. Many availed themselves of the Rector's study and the standing room on the outside steps and listened to the beautifully rendered musical program. About fifty could not even find this space and had to leave.

Mrs. Wm. Horsfall, r. the organist and choir director, deserves great praise for her management of this part of the service. In response to the request of many who wished to hear the service and could not, it has been decided to repeat the music next Sunday morning. An attractive feature of the first Easter service in the new church was the vesting of the choir in the usual choir garments worn in all Episcopal church choirs, giving uniformity and neatness and simplicity to the general effect in the chancel.

There was an unusually large attendance of Pacific Commandery No. 10, Knights Templar. They occupied front pews and added much to the solemnity of the service. The Rector in welcoming the Knights on behalf of the Vestry Board and the congregation, spoke in glowing terms of the antiquity of the Order of the Templars, and of the immense influence and helpfulness which they wielded in the days of the Crusades and their loyal espousal to the cause of Christ and His church against the Saracen invaders. He reminded them that the truth of the symbol under which their comrades fought of old, in hoc signo vinces, is just as much their responsibility today and although their warfare has changed to a spiritual warfare, still the defense of the Christian faith is for them a living reality.

BUILDERS EXCHANGE

O. G. Hughson Makes Statement relative to New Organization.

O. G. Hughson Oregon State Commissioner of the National Association of Builders Exchange and local secretary of the Portland Builders Exchange and who organized the Builders Exchange of Coos Bay has sent the following statement in for publication:

"The exchange idea is not like any other organization in that it is not organized for profit but is made up of responsible contractors and firms connected with the building of our cities in the interest of square dealing and fair methods, not only among its members, but by its members with others, and stands for securing of the best city building regulations obtainable. Its membership is assurance to the public of skill, honorable reputation, and honesty. It stands for co-operation between the contractor, supply dealer, architect and owner. It has no affiliation with any labor organization. The Exchange headquarters is a down town office for its members when they get together to talk over their mutual problems and bid on jobs, etc. It is thoroughly alive to local matters pertaining to the building business encouraging those who are upright."

COMES HERE TO TALK HYGIENE

E. J. Cummins of Oregon Social Hygiene Society Will Lecture in Coos County.

E. J. Cummins is expected here from Portland within a few days to deliver a series of talks in Marshfield and other Coos county points on Social Hygiene. Rev. Barnford and a number have taken up the work here and will endeavor to secure good audiences as the lectures are not only interesting but of great educational value.

Dr. Calvin S. White, secretary of the Oregon State Board of Health has written as follows to a Marshfield friend:

"Mr. E. J. Cummins, representing the Oregon Social Hygiene Society, is going to be in Marshfield in the next few days and I hope that you can render him every assistance in promoting the work of the Social Hygiene Society.

"They have done very wonderful work throughout the state in educating the public, but have contacted in addition the most successful agencies against fake advertising and any other state has ever seen."

Mr. Cummins will be a delightful character and I am sure you will be interested in the work.

DAY'S NEWS IN POLICE COURT

Usual Bunch of Offenders Land in City Bastille Saturday Night—Their Troubles

The week-end guests of the Hotel de Carter continued strolling in with their usual promptness from Saturday afternoon until Sunday evening, all with the usual requisites for a guest room.

Martin Borson was arrested by Officer Gordon Smith at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and charged with drunkenness. He had no cash but was bailed out by friends later in the day.

Alfred Sederman was also arrested by Officer Smith at 3 o'clock on Saturday and placed in the bastille until he recovered his senses, when he was released on $5 bail.

Andrew Riggs was arrested Saturday afternoon and escorted to the bastille by Officer Richardson. On the way to jail with his prisoner Officer Richardson was met by Chief Carter and the illustrious Riggs shouted to him: "Hello, Chief, has the council raised your pay yet?" Carter didn't say a word—just smiled at Riggs.

"If the City Councilmen only knew who you are," said Riggs, "they'd raise your pay to $200 per month."

"Who am I?" queried Carter.

"Why, you're a brother of Nick Carter, the old sleuth I used to read about in the detective stories," said Riggs. "You're some sleuth and the manner in which you conduct the Hotel de Carter is just lovely. I'll pay you those back fines when I get rich." And with this remark the guest was escorted to the bastille by Richardson.

Henry Anderson applied at the city hall last evening for a bed and was given a resting place for the night.

Pat Dugan was arrested by Officer Richardson last evening and charged with drunkenness. He had ten cents on his person.
