

BASEBALL FUND STILL HELD UP

Managers Fail to Show Up About 1913 Second Money—Bandon Paid First.

The division of the Coos county 1913 baseball purse to the second team is still in abeyance, the money is in the hands of Harry G. Kern president of the Coos county league last season and all of the teams are still claiming the money but will not submit their score books and come to a decision about the matter. Mr. Kern is anxious to dispose of the money but cannot do so until all interested parties get together. Warner Ogren who represents the Marshfield team last year, was reported to have visited Mr. Kern recently about the awarding of the money remaining in the fund, but Mr. Kern says that he has not seen Ogren for the past two months except for a telephone call he received, recently relative to the matter.

The North Bend, Coquille and Marshfield teams say they have a claim on the money," said Kern today "and will so contend until this matter is brought to a focus. Personally I believe that the Marshfield team is entitled to the money, but I cannot pay it until all score books have been submitted and compared." The managers of the respective teams know this and are holding out, simply to prevent Marshfield from getting a hearing on the matter. If the Marshfield Baseball Club gets the other captains or managers together, I think they will receive the money, otherwise the proposition is a dog in the manager."

Paid Bandon.
Mr. Kern paid first money, $150 to Bandon, on an order of the court. Bandon started injunction proceedings and when the other teams failed to stand behind President Kern in fighting it, he let it go by default. Later he tried, when Ogren and Ogden agreed to aid in the legal fight, to reopen it but Coquille parties to whom the papers were sent failed to turn them over to an attorney. Finally he decided to pay Bandon the $150 and had to pay $18 costs. This leaves $82 in the fund for the second team. Denny Hull claims it but it is believed to be shut out by his failure to finish the season. Ogden and Ogren have failed to get together.

Prospects for 1914.
So far, Mr. Kern has not heard from Coquille, Myrtle Point or Norway as to whether they will join in the 1914 league under the restriction of two imported men. Mr. Kern may have each manager furnish him a complete list of his players and substitutes at the opening of the season so that he can check off any claims of outside players being run in later.

SINGLE WOMEN LIVE LONGEST.
SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Slender women are better risks than stout ones. Those who are single live longer than their married sisters. The average business woman outlives her brother. These conclusions were announced by George M. Beaudry, actuary of an insurance company, whose office is in this city. Mortality among women thirty pounds under normal weight is only 94 per cent, whereas among women who tip the scales beyond normal weight the mortality is 112 per cent. The married woman has but even chances with married men in the first few years of married life. The percentage among men increases with age.

The Oregonic Law

1. Thou shalt love Oregon with all thine heart, boost it with all thy breath and cultivate its fertile acres with all thine understanding, likewise Swat the Fly.
2. Thou shalt not expectorate upon any sidewalk nor upon thy neighbor's porch, neither shalt thou eject any spittle in any public place or vehicle of transportation, for the public health is a Pearl of Great Price and must be conserved. For this reason, also Swat the Fly.
3. Thou shalt not commit adulterated foods into the hands of thy brother when he is an hungered, for Coal Tar coloring is an abomination and Benzoate of Soda worketh evil to any man's belly. All things do in moderation, except when you Swat the Fly.
4. Thou shalt keep thy vows when thou goest into Politics, likewise hold thy tongue as to promises, for the Oregon voter has a fearful and wonderful memory, and the files of the newspapers shall never perish from off the face of the earth.
5. Honor thy father and thy mother, for without them Oregon would still be a barren waste and thou wouldst not have thy "Benzine Buggies," nor thy herds of sheep nor thy many—fields of clover. But remember, that for all these things thou shalt be held accountable, so Swat the Fly.
6. Thou shalt Swat the Fly—yea with the swatter and with poison shalt thou encompass is destruction and with Tanglefoot shalt thou ensnare his feet, so that he goeth no more from the manure pile to the baby's crib, bearing disease and death. In the morning when thou goest forth, Swat the Fly; in the heat of the day, when thou resteth for a big spell, Swat thou the Fly; and in the cool of the evening, when thou both art weary after thy day's work, even then do thou plot his destruction.
7. When thou goest into an inn, thou shalt say to the keeper thereof—"Hast thou nine-foot bed sheets, individual towels and private drinking cups?" and if he sayeth nay, then shalt thou flee from the place, for the wrath of the state shall be upon his head and thine own as well, if thou goest in and abide with him. It is far better for thee to sleep in a barn, and Swat the Fly, than to abide in a public place that cometh not up to the specifications of the Board of Health.
8. Thou shalt not listen to the man who peddlieth "Blue Sky," neither shalt thou lend thine influence to any man who seeketh to sell thy neighbor a "Gold Brick," for as between the man who dealteth in unregistered securities and the man with a millstone about his neck, the best bet is on the latter.
9. Thou shalt not support by your vote the candidate who is long on promises and short on his word. Verily I say unto you that taxes at 3 per cent and over is far from a blessing and a back-alder is an angel as compared to the law-maker who is influenced by the lobbyist.—Swat the Fly.
10. Thou shalt not walk in the path of the "Knocker," nor attend in the stall of the "Standpatter," nor sit in the seat of the "Doubter," for Oregon is a great state (you betcher life) and within her borders are to be found all the Health and Happiness, Peace, Prosperity and Politics that is coming to you this side of the Promised Land.—Swiped, now Swat the Fly.

"Space" is a Big Factor in Business

NO merchant would ever think of doing a big business in a small store space. To so crowd stocks of merchandise into small spaces that there should be left no "breathing room," no possibility of comfortable shopping, would be to disarm interest in a store.

Not all merchants, however, realize that this matter of space is greatly important in their advertising.

It is a fact that it is quite as important to make an advertisement "comfortable reading" as it is to make buying a comfortable and pleasant task for the shopper.

THE STORE—should reflect its spirit. Cramped and stinted space for a store of the same character, and ample space and "breathing room" for the advertising of a store of which these are characteristic.
