Proprietorship

More good qualities of citizenship come from owning a little piece of the earth than you would at first imagine. First, there is self-respect which can be indulged in a home that one is proud of, a home which one can make beautiful by building it on graceful architectural lines and can surround with well-kept lawns and flower gardens. Second, there is respect for property; how much more careful of property is the boy who lives, not in rent, but in a home owned by his parents. Such a boy does not wantonly mar buildings or break down shade trees because he has been taught the value of property by parents who know. Then there is thrift which is taught in the home of the home-owner by example as well as by precept. And last, but not least, is patriotism and love of country which nothing so inspires as proprietorship of land and is the safest guide. A score of actual buyers have said, in the past month:

Bay Park Lots are Worth $100 Each

They have put down money on their judgment. The number of people who have backed their judgment of BAY PARK lots with their money is growing almost daily. We know of no better argument in favor of this property. The number of lots for sale is growing pretty small. Don't make the mistake of letting the opportunity pass to select a desirable lot on such easy terms at $10.00 down and $5.00 a month.

Of all of the social instutions of mod ern society which are now under the scruting of thought and conscience, none is so absolutely without moral defense as the American saloon and the consequent liquor traffic. The saloon is an unmitigated curse. It is a great and terrible evil whose ravages are unspeakable. It is a men-ace to character, home, life itself. It robs families of necessities, comforts and peace and happiness. It corrupts the lives of young men which otherwise would be virtuous peaceful citizens. It ensuares and ruins innocent girls, and often leads astray wives, destroys domestic peace, and ruins many happy homes. It is a viper, more to be dreaded and feared, than any other monster, whether in the shape of creeping reptile or a foul contagion.

In contemplating the great campaign which we have entered (Nat-lonal prohibition) let us never lose sight of the fact that God is at the forefront of every holy conflict, lead-ing the hosts of right against the citadels of wrong. The call comes to us today with renewed emphasis that we go forward.

Lillian M. N. Stevens.

-In this number we have to record the sad news of a twofold calamity in the deaths of our state and national presidents, Mrs. Edith Hill Booker, president of Oregon W. C. T. U. and Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, of Portland Maine, both events transpiring within one weeks' time.
It is truly a great blow to both our state and nation, to lose at this time of the campaign of statewide prohibition for Oregon, and national prohibition of our country, that these two capable and devoted apostles of the temperance cause should be taken from us. But our Heavenly Fa-ther sees not as man sees, and no doubt, in His great wisdom, will prove for the best, and we, who still remain on the battlefield, must press on with more zeal and courage "towards the work of the high call-ing," trusting in not only His with ing," trusting in not only His wis-dom, but in His love and goodness that He doeth all things well, and that the " race is not always to the swift, nor the battle of the strong." There are other brave and noble characters, who will step in to fill up the vacant places of those two valiant soldiers, who have gone up receive their well merited crowns for lives well spent in the service of God. What is our great loss is their gain. Tho' they have laid down their armor, and rest from their labe town needs most of all, is to have their public officials, be men of upright principals and courage to live up to their convictions of right and duty to the people they serve. Men who realize that sobriety and morality are the safest, best and most enduring foundations of any municipality or nation. Men who have sufficient brotherly love for the laboring man who is striving to make a home, feed and clothe his loved ones that those men (who generally make up a large part of a community) are of as much importance as street and other public improvements, and their needs should be considered. When a call is made for public improvements (unless it is something very essential to the welfare of all) that will make taxes so high as to swal-low up the laboring man's yearly savings, thus making the coveted home an impossibility and in many cases drive the best citizens from the place to seek a cheaper and more de-sirable abiding place, then the wel-fare of the citizens should take pre-cedence of improvements. The hon-est toiler, his wife and little ones are of more consequence than paved are of more consequence than paved streets. People have lived and flur ished all their lives with only God's native earth to travel on. If the best interests of the faithful, honest work ing classes are considered instead of the pride of the wealthy who can live on the interest of their bank accounts and rentals, a better class of permanent residents will be insured; there will be less complaints, a hanthere will be less complaints, a happler and more prosperous community.

GENERAL LANE'S SWORD

The Roseburg Review says: Much attention, is being given to the sword of the late General Joseph Lane, which is on display in the Re-view window. General Lane, who was for many years a resident of Roseburg, shortly before his death gave this sword to the local Masonic lodge, by whom it is highly prized. This sword was worn by General Lane during the U. S. invasion of northern Mexico in the year of 1848. The principal battle of that campaign was fought by General Lane against the forces of General Santa Ana, the the forces of General Santa Ana, the Mexican commander. Santa Ana was captured and his sword, one of the trophies of the war, was also in Roseburg for many years, in possession of Col. John Lane. The captured sword was a beautiful gold mounted weapon, while that of General Lane was sturdy fighting implement, acteristic of the man who bore it successfully in many sauguinary con-
