School Work Exhibit. The annual exhibit of school work will occur at the high school build-ing Thursday, May 14, in the afternoon and evening. Exhibit will be open from 2 until 5 in the after-noon and from 7:30 until 10 in the evening. Everybody is invited. There is no admission charge. Work will be shown in manual training sewing, cooking, grade hand work, drawing, penmanship, map drawing, illustrated English work, spelling. This will be the only exhibition of school work this year. The two schools combine in this. Teachers will be glad of the opportunity to meet parents and the fathers are especially urged to be out. The manual training work will be of special interest to men and the evening session of the exhibition was planned that fathers might attend and see the work. Light refreshments will be served.

Reared with the common class he has always been a staunch champion of their cause. During his career a Justice of the Supreme Court has endeavored to interpret the law as a living, progressive science, rather than as a rule too old to be corrected if found inapplicable to present day conditions, and has written many important decisions. was Justice McNary who wrote the forceful and much discussed dissenting opinion in the State versus E. S. J. McAllister. Defining the duties of the courts in this opinion, he said in part: "The value of law is its proximity to reason, its certainty and universality. The abuse in the administration of law is to adhere blindly to a rule that savors of inquity simply because it is a judicial decision. The first duty of a court is to decide the law correctly so far as it lies within the human mind. The next duty is to smite that rule of human action which is found to opinion in the State versus E of human action which is found to be unjust, however well it may be buttressed by precedent."
