Mrs. Willie Foster, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Mary Foster, the feeble old lady in Eastside Sunday, did not arrive on the Breakwater as expected. Her husband arrived Wednesday after making the trip from Portland on a motorcycle and found his mother at the boarding house conducted by Mrs. Emma Johnson at 236 Market street.
Foster says his wife was supposed to follow leaving Portland on the Breakwater. He thinks now that she decided to come by the rail and stage route and that she will probably get here tomorrow. The family has had considerable difficulty in getting together.
Foster saw his mother, Mrs. Mary Foster safely aboard the Breakwater on his previous trip and then attempted to leave Portland on a motorcycle with his wife and two-year old baby. After getting as far as Oregon City he gave up the trip with his family and decided to let his wife and baby follow on the boat.
