FOR MISS WITTE.

Miss Margaret Witte was the honored guest at a charming party given last Monday by Mrs. J. W. Hildenbrand. A one-thirty luncheon and whilst were the day's occupations until four thirty o'clock when the bride was led by little Miss Anona Louise Hildenbrand to her garden, a room perfectly banked in greens, moss and hanging baskets, with beautiful flowers seemingly growing in a wilderness of verdure. Pink ribbons and scattered roses led from the many hidden flowers (gifts from the guests) to a watering pot that hung from the ceiling and gathered them all together in a rosy bunch. The flowers were plucked (the presents gathered) in a basket carried by the little guide, and a happy hour ensued while the honor guest disclosed her new treasures. The luncheon tables held favors and vases of white roses. Mrs. Fourier carried off the prize at cards. The invited guests included Mrs. Chas. Hoffman, Mrs. Perry Dodson, Mrs. R. N. Fenton, Mrs. T. S. Harvey, Mrs. Harold Crawford, Mrs. J. G. Kinney.

SMILES vs. HEARTACHES.
Oh, let's put away the worry and the heartaches for awhile,
And look upon the sunny side of life,
And meet each rugged obstacle with just a pleasant smile,
And forget about the trouble and the strife.
Let's be glad and we'll be happy, and the cares will fly away,
And we'll only see unclouded skies of blue,
For, remember, that a smile is worth a heartache any day,
And glad smiles cost you nothing—heartaches do.—Selected.
