FIRST STEAM TRAIN ON FRONT ST.

Southern Pacific Hauls Two Carloads of Rock Down Front Street

The first steam train to operate over Front street was taken down this afternoon. It consisted of two loads of crushed rock and a flat car carrying a crew of Greek workmen. It was to go only as far as Porter, where the rock was to be put in to ballast a curve in the track so that work trains can be operated over it safely. Shortly after 1:30 the motor car was taken south into the yards of the Coos Bay, Roseburg and Eastern to let the work train pass. This was the first train to pass off the Terminal, or rather Willamette Pacific tracks on to the local line. In a day or so work trains will be operating frequently over Front street, carrying crushed rock for Hugh McLain to be used in ballasting or rather rip-rapping the big fill beyond Simpson Park. Mr. McLain today had the honor of owning the first shipments of freight carried over Front street. The rock is brought from his Coos River quarry on scoops and will be loaded on flatcars near the Beaver Hill bunkers. Several thousand carloads of rock will have to be hauled to riprap the fill beyond Simpson Park and along North Inlet.

Plan Three Tracks.
The Southern Pacific will have three tracks put in on the extension of South Front street which is being opened from the Alliance warehouse south. This will take up most of the street, which will be a narrow one. The C. A. Smith Company is now piling across Mill Slough where Curtis avenue will connect up with the Front street extension.

Mexican Federal Gunboats Threaten to Attempt to Stop Vessel for Villa

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—The prospects of an attempted blockade of Tampico by the Huerta gunboat took a position of chief interest in Mexican affairs. It is considered significant that the state department, immediately after Tampico fell into the hands of the Constitutionalists, announced all Mexican Gulf ports open and that is interpreted that no blockade will be recognized. The steamer Antilla, bearing arms for Villa, and which aroused the present situation, files the Cuban flag. What the United States will do, should the Huerta gunboats attempt to interfere with her, the officials declined to say.
