

SIMPLY because we are seldom or never called upon to refund the purchase price on a garment in line without guarantee of satisfaction policy is no reason why we should discontinue it.

Our idea is to first find a line of clothing that we can safely stand behind and then to back every sale to the limit.

The House of Kuppenheimer first proved the superiority of their garments to us by cheerfully submitting them to every test we could imagine. Being the best clothes we could find—we're naturally confident they're the best you can.
