SONGS OF NIGHT
The moon swings low in the sky above,
And the twilight stars shine bright,
And a mother sings to her baby love,
Those wonderful songs of night;
Those wonderful songs of sugar plum trees,
And fields where the fairies play,
Of cockle-shell boats on golden seas
That never are seen by day.

It is by-low time and she sweetly hums
Those wonderful songs of night;
Of the blare of trumpets and sounds of drums
When the little tin soldiers fight;
She sings of a comical candy dog
And the gingerbread man who wanders
By the side of a blinking crooky frog
Without any arms or hands.

And the moonbeams dance on the parlor floor,
And a ship sets out to sea,
And a baby sails for the golden shore
In search of the sugarplum tree;
She's off to the cave of the Teddy Bear,
And the haunts of the fairies kind,
No thoughts of tomorrow's worries
Shall trouble her baby mind.
Oh, sweet is the smile on the baby face

And if ever a song can reach the skies,
The angels must find delight
In hearing a mother's lullabies—
Those wonderful songs of night.
—Selected.

DOROTHY DIX, that clever woman writer, sums up some matrimonial mistakes as follows:
To marry on insufficient means, because when the bill collector begins to pound on the door Cupid jumps out of the window.
To marry a woman because she is a parlor ornament and expect her to turn into a kitchen utensil as soon as the marriage ceremony is over, or to marry a drunken rouser and expect him to be metamorphosed into a model of the domestic virtues.

For either a man or a woman to marry with the intention of making over the other one's character to suit his or her ideal.

To marry a person whose tastes are not similar to your own.
To marry out of your own class either socially, financially, intellectually or morally.

To cut out the jolly because you are married. During courtship flattery is an aid to success. After marriage it is a necessity. To fall into the error of thinking that matrimony gives one the privilege of eating onions and telling unpleasant truths in the home circle.

For a husband or wife to curtail the other's personal liberty. The man who opens his wife's letters and the woman who goes through her husband's pockets will inevitably come to hate each other.

To try to live together twelve months in the year.

To be separated too much.

To try to live with either his family or her family.

Not to settle the money question before marriage.

To appeal to outsiders to settle the family spats.

To try to live in a boarding house or hotel. The lack of a home is the first aid to divorce.

For the wife not to have plenty of work to do to fill up her hands and her thoughts.

To marry until the woman has had her fill of admiration from men, and the man is tired of running with the boys.

For the man not to throw responsibility on his wife's shoulders and make her feel that she must be his real helpmeet instead of a doll to dress up and play with.

Not to have children.

Not to play together. The man who takes his amusements always among men and the woman who goes to nothing but hen parties will soon find out that they can be happy apart.

And the greatest mistake of all is to marry without love. If there is plenty of that nothing else much matters.
