SEVEN GREATEST WON-DERS OF THE WORLD

"What are the seven greatest wonders of the world?" Would you find it difficult to reply? Possibly.

Thomson's Weekly News ran an educational contest under the above heading; the readers had to fill up a form giving what in their opinion were the "seven greatest wonders of the world." The editor gave what he considered the thirty most remarkable things, among them: Aero-plane, color printing, gramophone, Niagara Falls, radium, telephone, Maxim gun, automobile, Nile dam, gunpowder, ocean liner, torpedo, telegraphy, dynamite, linotype, pyramids, submarine, reaper and binder, cinematograph, Forth bridge, steam engine, Panama Canal, wireless telegraphy, electricity, gas, miner's lamp, photography, telescope and X-rays.

No competitor was successful in giving the exact placing of the seven wonders from the above list of thirty which they had to pick from.

In their order of popularity the seven greatest wonders were proved to be as follows: 1. Wireless telegraphy. 2. Aeroplane. 3. Pyramids. 4. Electricity. 5. Radium.
6. X-rays. 7. Niagara Falls.

FISH BITE BETTER IN THE DARK OF THE MOON

That the fish bite better in the dark of the moon than at any other time is the statement of old-time fishermen on the McKenzie and the Williamette. They give as their reasons that during the clear moonlight nights the fish can see to get their food and hence employ their night hours, leaving the day time free for sleeping when the sun comes out and as it is not shining this week the better fishing is attributed to that cause.—Eugene Register.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL.

A pretty woman with a little intention and a dimple can do more to alter the history of the world than a whole army of men with galling guns.

It is so easy for a man to become attached to a girl, under the influences of the spring moon, that he never stops to think of the difficulty he will have in getting detached in the autumn.

When a girl exclaims "This is so sudden!" she probably refers to the shock the man feels when he realizes that he has proposed to her.

So ingenious is a woman's nature that she can descend to a man on the beauties of platonic friendship, while she is secretly wondering if he likes the color of her eyes or if her nose needs powdering.
