My Fellow Countrymen: I suppose that every thoughtful man in America has asked himself during the last troubled weeks what influence the European war may exert in the United States, and I take the liberty of addressing a few words to you in order to oint out that it is entirely within our own choice what its effect on us will be, and to urge very earnestly upon you the sort of speech and conduct which will best safeguard the nation against distress and disas-

The effects of the war upon the United States will depend on what American citizens say and do. Every man who really loves America will act and speak in the true spirit of neutrality, which is the spirit of impartiality and fairness and friendliness to all concerned.

The spirit of the nation in this critical matter may be determined largely by what individuals and society, and those gathered in public meetings do and say, on what newspapers and magazines contain, on what our ministers utter in their pulpits and men proclaim as their opinions on the street.

The people of the United States are drawn from many nations and chiefly from the nations now at war. It is natural and inevitable that there should be the utmost variety of sympathy and desire among them with regard to the issue and circumstances of the conflict. Some will wish one nation, others another to succeed in the momentous

It will be easy to excite passion and difficult to allay it. Those responsible for exciting it will assume a heavy responsibility; responsibility for no less a thing than that the people of the United States whose love of their country and whose lovalty to its government should unite them as Americans, all bound in honor and affection to think first of her and her interests, may be

Such divergence among us would be fatal to our peace of mind and might seriously stand in the way of the proper performance of our duty as the one great nation at peace, the one people holding itself ready to play a part of impartial mediation and speak the councils of peace and accommodation, not as a partisan, but as a friend

I venture, therefore, my fellow countrymen, to speak a solemn word of warning to you against that deepest, most subtle, most essential breach of neutrality which may spring out of partisanship, out of passionately taking sides.

The United States must be neutral in fact as well as in name during these days that are to try men's souls. We must be impartial in thought as well as in action, must put a curb on our sentiment as well as on every transaction that might be construed as a preference of one party to the struggle before another.

My thought is of America. I am speaking, I feel sure, the earnest wish and purpose of every thoughtful American that this country of ours, which is of course, the first in our thoughts and in our hearts should show herself in this time of peculiar trial a nation fit beyond others to exhibit the fine poise of undisturbed judgment, the dignity of self-control, the efficiency of dispassionate action, a nation that neithers sits in judgment on others nor is disturbed in her own counsels and which keeps herself fit and free to do what is honest and disinterested and truly serviceable for the peace of the world.

Shall we not resolve to put on ourselves the restraint which brings to our people the happiness and the great and lasting influence for peace we covet for them?

spite of our ardent devotion to the cause of peace, are thus compelled to declare war, especially at this early period of our reign,

and while we are still in mourning for our

ty and valor of our faithful subjects, peace

may soon be restored and the glory of the Strength of the Rival Nations

lamented mother,

Lineup of Their Armies and Navies

A graphic representation of the strength of belligerents in the European war—Germany and Austria Against the eight allies-is found in latest official figures on the total war strength on land and sea of the nations. Russia, France, England, Belgium, Montenegro Portugal, Servia and Japan make a formidable showing in the result. Portugal is drawn in by a treaty with England.

In the accompanying table, the naval strength is represented by the number of enlisted men and, in some cases, the reserves, not by number or size of the various ships:

Army	Nav.	Army	Navy
Russia 5.500,000	52,463
France 4,000,000	60,621
Japan 1.200,000	165,054
England	163,700	Germany, 5,200,000	176,783
Secvia 210,000	333337	Austria 2.000,000	17.581
Belgium 222.000			*
Portugal 150.000	6,000	Total 7.200,000	194,364
Montenegro	2000000

What eauses the naval personnel of Japan and Germany to appear so large is the act that Japan has a naval reserve of 114,000 and Germany has a reserve of 110,000 nen. The naval reserve of England is 26,200,
