How's Business?

—That's the question every business man is asking of practically every one he meets.

—The answers vary. We find that in nine cases out of ten, the answer is either "Pretty Good" or "It Might be Better." Now and then we run across a fellow who's down-in-the-mouth.

—So far as we are concerned, we're mighty optimistic about conditions.

—We don't believe the European war is a menace to the American Business Man——deplorable as it may be and much as we would all make sacrifices to stop it—we believe the longer it is continued the better it will be for us from a business standpoint.

—American farmers are going to get better prices for their produce; American Manufacturers are going to win Markets that they never could touch before—we're going to be overstocked with PROSPERITY—and it's going to last.

—It's because we so thoroughly believe that business is going to be "Very Good"—if not better, that we've bought bigger, broader, better stocks of merchandise than at any previous time since we've been in business.

—Visit our store—get in touch with the enthusiasm that prevades it—you'll quickly catch the spirit of optimism—and be better for it.

—Shout as loud as you can, "PROSPERITY" to every man you meet—and you'll see business boom!

—Help along the good work.
