TALK OPTIMISM.

THE Bethlehem Steel Company has announced that it would in the next few days place an order for the Russian and French governments for 1900 American motor trucks. This is but one of the effects of the European war which will tend to make business good. The country, during the last two months, has encountered a trying experience in which our finance, our foreign trade, and even our domestic business have been disturbed. Yet, we are coming out well.

America is today the clearing house of the world.

The great nations are depending upon the integrity of her friendship—the safety and soundness of her diplomacy—the extensiveness of her trade and the soundness of her finance.

It is time for Americans to show their optimism, their patriotism, and their aggressive earnestness.

The foundations of our national prosperity have been laid too deep and too strong to be seriously disturbed, even by so great a catastrophe as the war of all Europe.

Our duty and our moral obligation to the rest of the world compel us to be up and doing; to maintain a cheerful and hopeful spirit, to operate our industries and enterprises, and to conduct our affairs generally on conservative but enthusiastic lines. —Eugene Guard.

WHEN THE BOYS GO.

ON SEPTEMBER 18th the French government issued a decree permitting the mother or legal guardian of a youth under twenty to authorize his enlistment in the absence of the father. A dispatch from Vienna says that Emperor Francis Joseph wept as he signed a similar decree, saying that nothing in all his life had caused him more sorrow. Among the wounded in the hospital at Bordeaux was found a German soldier who was fifteen years and nine months old.

In some respects these facts are the most serious items of news that have come from a blood-soaked continent, says the Minneapolis Tribune. It after a war of less than two months' duration, three nations are already calling out their boys, the future of Europe grows dark. These lands were to have been the fathers of tomorrow, the toilers and bread-winners, the factory hands and the farm hands, the operatives of railroads and of commerce, the physicians and the statesmen. When the boys begin to go the virility of the race is threatened.

This drafting of youths under twenty signifies two awful situations. In the first place, it means that the havoc played by modern instruments of destruction has already far exceeded the largest estimates. In the second place, the conclusion must be drawn that these warring nations would not be calling out the boys unless their rulers were preparing for a long struggle.

The American people have hoped, and still pray, that the insensate fury that has seemed to blind the rulers of these innocent people would soon spend itself. But they are apparently possessed by the mad notion that it is a struggle for their very existence upon the earth.

Some of these boys will survive the carnage as cripples and veterans. It would be interesting if contemporary kings and diplomats could live to read what these youngsters will some day see written by the cold hand of history of the great year of 1914.

The late Robert Ingersoll said at he grave of Napoleon that, when he thought of the widows and orphans Napoleon had caused, and of the tears that had been shed for Napoleon's glory, he "would rather have been a French peasant and have worn wooden shoes than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and murder." Perhaps the boy soldiers of the Europe of today will live to read even greater words than these of their rulers.

Constable Takes Horses—George Cook began suit in the justice court today against J. W. Rogers et al for a two months grocery bill of $78.40. On the eve of departing for his homestead Rogers team of horses were attached and last night Constable Cox took possession of them until the settlement of the suit. It is understood that Rogers will fight the taking of the team on the exemption plea.

POSITIVELY MASTERS COUGH. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cuts the thick choking mucus, and clears away the phlegm. Opens up the air passages and stops the hoarse cough. The gasping, strangling fight for breath gives way to quiet breathing and peaceful sleep. Harold Berg, Mass, Mich., writes: "We give Foley's Honey and Tar to our children for croup and it always acts quickly." No wonder a man in Texas walked 15 miles to the store to get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Every user is a friend. Sold by Owl Pharmacy.

The "1915" Girls and the Exposition Musical Comedy Company are back at the Masonic Opera House for a three days' stay, commencing tonight. A new bill of musical comedy and vaudeville will be offered each night and a medley of new songs will be introduced. "The Waiter and the Chef," will specially arranged music will be produced tonight.

you know that while Henry Canby is one of the greatest of all character parts, it is not quite all laughter. There is one moment in the play—just one—where Canby brings real tears to the audience, and you can't hold them back even if you want to. To have Mr. Nichols hit you out of your seats with laughter through half the action of play, and then suddenly hold you spellbound while he delivers the speech which all critics have declared to be the finest example of pathos in modern dramatic literature, is an experience you will never forget. It is real acting, and you will wonder if the jovial Tom Nichols hasn't missed his calling.

TOM NICOLS IN MOOSE PLAY "ARIZONA"

If Augustus Thomas himself were selecting the cast for the Marshfield Moose production of his famous play "Arizona", which will be shown here next Wednesday and Thursday, he could not have found a better type for Henry Canby, the millionaire ranchman, than Mr. Tom Nichols. Canby is the part in which Theodore Roberts was starred in the original production of Arizona. It calls for a big man, with a voice that shakes the rafters and a laugh that makes you glad you are alive.

Now here is something that may come as a surprise to the friends of Tom Nichols. You know that he can laugh as contagiously as ever the author intended Canby should. You also know that if you happen to be sitting in the last row on the evening of the 14th or 15th you won't have to strain your ears to hear him. But did you know that this same Tom Nichols could make you weep? Well, he can.

If you have ever seen "Arizona"
