TRUST.

"Can you tell me the way to joy?" she said:

"Love depends on meet me there." But the patriarch shook his hoary head,

"'Tis at Sorrow he awaits, my dear,"

"Nay, nay! 'Twas at Joy, Love promised to be;

Sweet were the tones of His voice, Why, He is here, my brother!" said she,

"Waiting for us to rejoice."

—Amy Ruth Wenzel.

CAN a woman love more than once?" was the question put to a lady of great sagacity in such matters.

"It depends," she replied, "on the ability to decide what is real love and what is mere fancy.

"Many a woman has apparently fallen in love with a man, and then something has occurred to separate them, says a well known woman writer. Yet in a few years afterward she has been happily married to another man. I should say, however, that a woman of deep affection feels the great passion only once in her life. If the man of her choice dies or is separated from her, then love has no more to offer her. But such cases are rare."

GIVEN SURPRISE.

The members of the Coos Bay Branch of the National Association of Stationary Engineers were given a decided surprise at their last meeting when their wives dropped in loaded down with lunch baskets of delicacies that changed the session into a most delightful social.

Among those enjoying it were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Chapman, Mrs. A. J. Surbeck, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ames, Chas. Denison, Alex. Peterson, M. E. Renner, A. J. NORTH BEND CONCERT.

The concert given last Friday evening by the North Bend High School Band for the benefit of the North Bend Public Library, was an affair such as makes a city take pride in its own people.

The boys composing the band surprised their friends by their marked improvement in their musical ability. The piano duet by Misses Raab and Monde was one of the best pieces of home talent ever rendered on Coos Bay and received a warm encore which was responded to with a selection as well rendered as the first number.

Fred Shimman gave two vocal solos of power and wonderfully clear expression. Chas. Kaiser, baritone, with his wife as his accompanist, received and responded to two hearty encores. The concert netted the library something over ten dollars and is to be used for books for boys.
