Eliminate One Wing and Reduce Cost

At a meeting of the board of dicost to something less than $50,000.

In making the change, all of the main features of the hotel were retained. The revised plans will provide for between fifty and sixty guest rooms and the structure will be so that the west wing can be erected later, when the demand requires it, without much additional cost to what the expense would be if it was erected now.

In addition to retaining the principal features of the first plans, the directors decided to add an assembly room which will be 76x50 feet. It will be in the basement and can be used either for a ball room or for holding public meetings.

Architect Turpin left this morning for Portland where he will complete the revision of the plans. He will return here between Christmas and very unexpected interferes, the last has been eliminated,
