WELL THROUGH THE NIGHT.

When looking into the blue eyes—
When gazing straight into the eyes—
When watching you they seem—
What else could we expect?
Her golden hair is combed sweet—
My arms embraced her waist—
Her little hand within my arm—
In confidence was placed—
And I took from her mother's eye—
In rapture and in awe—
Till all the very stars above—
With still the firm rocks—
I have danced first with each and all—
Then when I saw her face—
Upon my darling's cheek I changed—
And walked the little street—
The clock struck "one" the clock struck "two"—
My strength was almost spent,
Still through the maze of the dance
Undisturbed I went—
Till, at last, into her face
I took a steady peep—
And found, oh joy, my little babe
At last had gone to sleep.

I HAVE been asked by a "Girl of '30" to give five or more of the most essential qualities to the making of a perfect husband, says Doris Blake. First, I would like to tell a "Girl of '30" she should not look for a paragon of all the perfections. Such a man is still to be born. And, if he did exist, he would probably be a most uncomfortable person to live with. He then acquires qualities that are essential in a husband and every girl who marries should judge a man's fitness for the role of husband by these:

In the first place he should be a man with a good heart, which, as Shakespeare truly says, is the sun, "for it shines bright and never changes, but keeps its course true." With a good heart, there always goes an unselfish consideration of others.

Then, the man of your choice should be clean in mind and healthy in body. Both of these qualities are much more desirable than good looks. For a curly head will grow bald, a handsome face will lose charm, and big, black eyes will wax yellow—like a same mind and body are gifts that endure.

He should have the capacity and industry to earn the necessary income. This is absolutely necessary to happiness.

The man you choose need not be a genius nor an exceptionally clever man. He has an abundance of common sense he'll do. There is really more use for common sense than for genius in worlded life. Common sense allied to refinement of feeling, cultured tastes, and a strong, square temper are worth more to married happiness than all the money and genius of the world.

So you see, "Girl of '30," the qualifications of human fitness are real

RAINBOW CLUB

The New Year's party and hospitality at Frank Rogers' beautiful home on South Coast River last Thursday was one of the events that will long be remembered by Coos Bay people and those enjoying the friendly hospitality of Mr. and Mrs.
Rogers. The affair was conducted in old Southern plantation style and nothing was left undone in the welcoming of the guests and in their entertainment that would add to the charm of the day and evening. The jolly hubbub and Christmas
helic conversation in the beautiful parlor of the Yellow House.

The Yellow House is one of the finest country homes in Oregon,
equipped with a water system, gas pipes, and garden and lawn, in which are found handsomely mounted specimens of animals. The soft broad veranda, covered with a magnificent ceiling, is a well-kept garden to a beautiful

ternoon, January 14.

DINNER PARTIES

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Brien last Sunday entertained at a dinner party, complimentary to a number of Marshfield young men who were in from home at Christmas time. All of the guests were from across the sea and following the sumptuous dinner, in which Mrs.
O'Brien was assisted in serving by Miss Lou Johnson, all indulged in folk songs and stories of the old country. Their guests included Alton, John, H. O'Brien, Frank Starr, Harry Newberg, Eric Hag-
nusson, Joel O'Brien, and Gus Woz-beck.

NEW WIVES BAZAR

Several delightful social parties
and balls were enjoyed on the Bay
Thursday evening at Marshfield
the leading social event was the Millions Club social and ball, the rooms being artistically decorated and the evening made a most delightful one. In North Bend the tent annual ball of the North Bend Firemen was largely attended and greatly enjoyed.

Lowland and Mr. and Mrs. Herman
Anderson.

WEDDING

Miss Charis J. Barnes and William J. Barnes were married on Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church in Coos Bay. The minister in charge was Rev. E. H. Brown. The bride was accompanied by her mother, Mrs.
J. H. Barnes. The groom was accompanied by his best man, Mr. J. H. Barnes.
The ceremony was a simple and quiet one and was held in the parsonage at 10 o'clock a. m.

WED IN EUROPE

Thelma Bradley and Edith Jay-cock have returned from Europe
to make their home at Bradley's which is well known by the many who have traveled through the country for several years. A representative of ladies of Marshfield and some time ago appeared at the home of the bride and groom, who were warmly welcomed by the bride and groom.

SEWING PARTY

Mrs. Dennis Lind was hostess to a number of friends at a sewing party, attended, numbers among the guests Mrs. John Nelson, Mrs.
George A. Hatcher, Mrs. M. E.
Harmon, Mrs. Fred Krue, Mrs.
I. E. Jones, Mrs. Ed. Fred, Mrs.

HOW AN ACTION, BEAT A HABIT!
HOW A HABIT, BEAT A CHARACTER!
HOW A CHARACTER, BEAT A DESTINY.—Thackeray.

Inventory time is here.
You are not only posing yourself on what you have and what you need, but you are reviewing the past year's business.
You are analyzing the results of your 1914 efforts and planning greater accomplishments for 1915.
Building bigger business and better business is just as much your duty as it is your ambition.
Was there ever a time in your business experience when you felt greater need of wiser and more efficient plans?

Is it not your earnest wish and resolve to apply to your business every stimulating force at your disposal?
WHAT ONE THING IS SO HELPFUL, SO VITAL AS YOUR ADVERTISING? WHAT SO INTEGRAL, PERMANENT,
PERSISTENT, FUNDAMENTAL AND THEREFORE NECESS-ARY FACTOR IN YOUR BUSINESS GROWTH AND SUCCESS?
Your advertising is the staff of your business life; the fuel of your business engine; the juice of your business motor.
The advertising you do TODAY brings you greater growth, larger good will and a more enduring reputation TOMORROW.

Your continuous growth and ultimate success are but the result and sum total of your daily and weekly and yearly growth and success.
Today's effort bring tomorrow's results. As you sow from day to day, so you reap from year to year.
When you are taking inventory and planning for bigger business and more permanent success, resolve NOW to do the kind of CON-TINUOUS advertising that will help you accomplish CONTINUOUS results.

Paraphrase and apply to yourself Mr. Thackeray's sentiment:
HOW AN AD, BEAT AN IMPRESSION;
HOW AN IMPRESSION, BEAT A REPUTATION;
HOW A REPUTATION, BEAT A BUSINESS DESTINY.
