Claim Progress Against Russians in Poland—Berlin Official Statement

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(Wireless.)—The official announcement today says: "In the Western arena, the French continued their systematic bombardment of villages of their own countrymen, and to the destruction of French homes. In any event this bombardment causes us very little trouble. At Sonain and in the Argonne forests we captured several of the enemy's trenches and made two officers and one hundred men prisoners. The French again obtained a foothold yesterday on the much fought for height west of Spandh in upper Alsace, but were driven off after a strong bayonet attack. "There were no changes yesterday on our Eastern frontier or in Northern Poland. In Poland west of the Vistula River our troops penetrated as far as a branch of the Sucha River, after having captured several of the enemy's points of support. We took 1400 prisoners and nine machine guns. The situation on the eastern bank of the River Pilica remains unchanged."

QUIGLEY AND WIFE ARE RE-UNITED

Port Orford Couple Agree to Forgive and Forget and Live Together Again

(Special to The Times.) COQUILLE, Or., Jan. 6.—Jessie Quigley, erstwhile erring wife of James Quigley, an industrious farmer of Port Orford, was returned to the arms of her husband last night by Judge John S. Coke, immediately after the jury in the case of William R. Young, her eloping partner, had declared him guilty of adultery. Mrs Quigley was about to be placed on trial as an accomplice of Young's, when one of the most humane acts recorded in favor of attorneys practicing before the local bench was sprung on the court and that kind-hearted, even though austere jurist yielded to the motion of District Attorney Liljeqvist to dismiss the criminal action against her, which he did by discharging the prisoner and throwing the case out of court. The authors of this coup on what would have proven an abortive justice in the face of a reconciliation between husband and wife were Attorneys R. O. Graves, of Marshfield, and Jacob Stemmler, of Myrtle Point. Attorney Graves was retained as attorney for Mrs. Quigley in the criminal case. As such he filed a suit for divorce against Mr. Quigley Monday, thus beating her husband to the same action by a few hours, the latter having meanwhile retained Attorney Stemmler in a divorce action. When Mr. Quigley was placed on the stand to testify against the trader of his home, he did so with reluctance and it was with difficulty that he attributed improper relations to his wife. This fact evidently was noted by both Attorney Stemmler and Graves, who began getting together in the court room, while Young was facing his judges. An hour or so before the Young case was concluded the two attorneys had a reconciliation effected between Quigley and his wife and a compact drawn, signed by both, which served as a basis for the coup which they first sprang on District Attorney Liljeqvist and later on Judge Coke. The agreement between the reunited couple reads: "We, James Quigley and Jessie Quigley, husband and wife, in consideration of love and affection between ourselves and for our children, and for the purpose of again maintaining our home, agree as follows: "We will go back and live together, each maintaining toward the other the proper conduct and respect and will continue to do so, so long as such living is possible in contemplation of law. "James Quigley will forthwith dismiss her suit for divorce now pending in the Coos County Circuit Court. "Each of them will hereafter to the best of their ability live a life of peace, respect, purity and virtue."

YOUNG IS GIVEN LIMIT BY COKE

(Special to The Times.) COQUILLE, Or., Jan. 6.—William Rogers Young, convicted yesterday of eloping, with Mrs. Jessie Quigley, of Port Orford was today sentenced to six months to two years in the state penitentiary by Judge Coke. Judge Coke in pronouncing sentence, termed Young "a lecherous, lascivious despoiler of homes," and said that he was sorry that the law did not provide a more severe punishment for such individuals as Young. "The court hopes that you will have to serve the extreme term" concluded Judge Coke. This case proved not only one of the most interesting and generously attended events during the present term of court, but marked the first trial of its kind during the incumbency of District Attorney Liljeqvist covering a period of over six years. Incidentally, the County Prosecutor gave notice that the case would not be the last of its kind, the jury being promised that a conviction would mean the beginning of additional cases of a similar nature. Young, who was known as Rogers in Curry County, proved a strong witness in many respects while on the stand. He told his story without a second's hesitation and gave what seemed to many to be a plausible reason for taking the mother of three children, a boy of 10, another of seven, and a daughter of eight, from her husband's home to another county of the state and for having lived with her as her husband. He emphatically denied immoral relations, declared that the woman appealed to him to help her to get away and insisted that she had never been more than a house-keeper for him, receiving $10 per month as such. The eight-year-old tot of a girl was put on the stand and, somewhat frightened and ending in tears, stoutly defended her mother, although District Attorney Liljeqvist declined to cross examine her, declaring such an act would have been brutal. Jessie Quigley will forthwith dismiss her suit for divorce now pending in the Coos County Circuit Court. "Each of them will hereafter to the best of their ability live a life of peace, respect, purity and virtue."

MARSHFIELD BUTCHER UNDER INDICTION FOR RENTING HOUSE FOR IMMORAL PURPOSES

(Special to The Times.) COQUILLE, Or., Jan. 6.—Geo. W. King, the Marshfield butcher, is on trial today on the charge of renting a boathouse owned by him in Marshfield for immoral purposes. King is fighting the case hard as he was once before convicted and fined $250 for a similar offense with the same boathouse. By Marshal Carter and the evidence of May Warner, mistress of the place, before the grand jury, the state proved that it was known as a house of ill-fame. Terrice Washington, an inmate, testified that King was not aware of what the house was being used for. At 2 o'clock a motion of N. C. McLeod, who represents King to non-suit the case was being argued. King runs the Enterprise meat market in Marshfield.

GERMANS AND FRENCH SEE-SAW IN BATTLES IN BELGIUM AND FRANCE

FRENCH GAIN ON GERMAN TRENCHES

Berlin Statement Tells of Advances at Several Points—Fighting Was Severe

PARIS, Jan. 6.—The official statement this afternoon says: "In Belgium the enemy delivered without success two attacks southeast of St. Georges. At a point northwest of Rheimis our troops advanced 100 yards. In the Argonne we retook 300 yards of trenches in the La Crurie forest. From Bagatelle and Fontaine Madam were delivered two attacks by German regiments which we repulsed. Near Ravine of Courte Chaussee we blew up 800 yards of German trenches, half of which we occupied. In the region of Thann, upper Alsace, we retained gains achieved the night before at Steinbach as well as in the trenches southwest and northwest of the village. The enemy succeeded in re-occupying one of their former trenches on the Eastern flank of a nearby height, the summit of which remains in our possession."

Garibaldi's Aid French.

"It should be set forth that in the Argonne, near the ravine of Coarte Chaussee, at the point where we blew up the German trenches, an attacking regiment commanded by Lieut. Col. Garibaldi delivered a vigorous attack against the breach made by the explosions. The Italians captured 120 prisoners, including 12 under officers, and took one machine gun and one caisson. The chief adjutant of this regiment, Constantine Garibaldi, a brother of Lieut. Col. Garibaldi, was killed during this attack. Another brother, Lieut. Bruno Garibaldi, was killed Dec. 3 in the Argonne forest."

MRS. BRADLEY PASSES AWAY

Prominent Marshfield Woman Succumbs This Afternoon to Long Illness

Mrs. W. C. Bradley, wife of W. C. Bradley of the Bradley Candy Co., died at their home at Anderson avenue and South Third street this afternoon. She had been poorly for some time, but not until a few days ago did her condition become critical. This morning she sank into a comatose state and remained so until death came. Mrs. Bradley had been a resident of Marshfield about ten years and until the past year, when her health failed her, took a prominent part in club and social affairs. She aided in laying the foundation for the Marshfield Public Library movement and was a strong worker in the Progress Club. Mrs. Bradley was about fifty-five years old and her early years were spent at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where her father, A. D. Traer, started and built the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern railroad, now a part of the Rock Island system. The family later resided in Kansas and came to Oregon about fifteen years ago. Besides her husband, she is survived by three children: Mrs. Harry Paddock of Gladstone, Oregon; Mrs. D. E. Maloney, of Marshfield; and Herbert Bradley of Marshfield. Her mother, Mrs. A. D. Traer, and sister, Miss Maude Traer, have resided with the Bradley family for the past few years. The funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow morning and will be private. The body will be taken to the Portland crematory on the George W. Elder tomorrow by Mr. Bradley.

Death of Second Grandson of Garibaldi Revives War Spirit in Italy

ALLIES CAPTURE HALF OF ARGONNE TRENCH

Germans Check French Advance in Alsace—Few Developments in Far East

LONDON, Jan. 6.—A German trench nearly half a mile long in the Argonne region was blown up by the Allies, according to the Paris statement today. The French then made an infantry attack and captured half of the trench. During this charge a grandson of the Italian patriot, Garibaldi, was killed. The recent death in action of another grandson is said in Rome to have awakened the war spirit in Italy. Aside from the fighting in the Argonne, activities were limited chiefly to Upper Alsace, where the Germans seem to have checked the French advance. The only claim in the French statement is that the ground won has been held. The loss of one position to the Germans is admitted. Berlin states that the French are bombarding towns in the rear of the German lines and "seem indifferent to killing their own countrymen and the destruction of French homes." The capture of several trenches from the Allies is reported. Fighting continues along the main line west of Warsaw, but dispatches from Berlin and Petrograd agree that there have been no important developments. Berlin says a few Russian positions were captured.

$18,000 PRICE PAID FOR LOTS

Haglestein Estate Holds Sale of Property—Ellen Rudnas Conducts Sale

More than $18,000 passed hands yesterday when two pieces of property belonging to the Haglestein estate in Marshfield were sold at the county seat. A 50-foot front on Broadway street North, in the rear of the Irving building, was sold to Mrs. Frieda Haglestein, the mother of the five children, for $15,000. The Marshfield Hardware Company bid in the narrow lot on Front street North, known as Lot 5 in Block 2, for $3200. The Haglestein estate is one of the oldest on Coos Bay. The father died some time ago and since then the children and Mrs. Haglestein have been living in San Francisco. The names of the children are Fred, Henry, Walter, Wilda, Elsie and Alis, who is deceased and who left an infant daughter, Helen Porter. Miss Ellen Rudnas acted as referee in the suit in partition and conducted the sale of the property, this being one of the biggest sales recorded in Marshfield for several months. The family residence property on North Second street and two houses and lots on North Broadway were sold two years ago to Mahaffey & Webster.
