

BEGIN SLUICING OF MILL SLOUGH

Robert Kellog Superintends Work—Port Seeks Release When Box is Open

Sluicing out the Mill Slough drain box began today when Robert Kellogg, who has been awarded the contract for the work by the Port Commission, with a crew of three or four men, started installing an electric pump at the lower end. This pump will be shifted from manhole to manhole, according to A. H. Powers. He believes the box can be cleaned out within a month's time.

Only at low tide will the men be able to work and for this reason they will be employed night and day.

With the drain box open and in good working condition, the members of the Port Commission are of the belief that their duty in regard to Mill Slough has been completed and that they then should be released by the city from all further responsibilities. Should the city not follow this action the Port will appeal to the Supreme Court for a decision, according to C. R. Peck, attorney for the Port.

"According to the decision of Judge Coke," he said this morning, "it was found that the Port was at fault because of the construction of the fill. If we put the drain box in order and drain off the north arm of the slough, then we have done our best and have completed our work. We should not be held responsible for a permanent sewer through the fill; that is a city project."

At the joint meeting of the Port Commission and the members of the City Council held at the Chamber of Commerce on Monday afternoon, many of the councilmen, according to Mr. Peck, expressed their opinions that the Port should be released after the drain is in good working order.

However, the present project, that of sluicing out the box, is still viewed as an experiment and no definite arrangement toward a release will be made until after the sluicing has been proved successful.

In constructing the drain box in the north arm, care will be taken to prevent its becoming clogged with mud from the lake in Perham Park. In order to do this piling will be first driven and then the ditch dug out and planked up on each side. No top will be put on until the water now accumulated there is drained out so that any refuse going into the box can be thrown out of the spillway. After the water is once lowered, it is not believed that there will be much danger of the drain becoming clogged again.

EXHIBIT MANAGER NOW ON LAST LAP

J. A. Ward Will Move to San Francisco — Superintends Coos, Curry Exhibits

That he may be on the grounds and personally superintend the setting up of the Coos and Curry County Exhibits at the Panama Pacific Exposition, J. A. Ward and wife are expecting to move to San Francisco about the middle of this month. At the present time Mr. Ward has covered his territory well and has all the exhibits arranged for.

Already part of the displays are on the grounds. These must be arranged in the Oregon building, where has been contracted a large display space, together with a large booth of native woods. This latter is expected to be one of the most prominent in exhibits in the entire building. The state is standing a share in the expense of the booth.

In addition to this work Mr. Ward will also take personal charge of the building of the replica of the Oregon coast to be installed on the very edge of the Bay. Water will be piped into the enclosure and at low tide, when the water recedes, there will be exposed to view the rocks and shore bottoms well covered with marine life familiar to this coast.

The Oregon Commission is enthusiastic over this part of the exhibit and will give Mr. Ward the aid of several men in making the work a success. The opening of the Exposition is set for Washington's birthday, February 22.
