COAL BANK INLET BRIDGES TO OPEN

Railroad Agrees to Open Bridge During Certain Hours of the Day

To open the bridge of the Coos Bay, Roseburg & Eastern line across Coal Bank Inlet during certain periods of the day, thus allowing large gasoline boats to use that waterway, is the plan of Supt. Miller, acting on instructions from the government district engineering department in Portland. Mr. Miller, in a communication to the engineers, declared that the railroad is expecting to rebuild the bridge next summer.

Action to open the bridge was brought some time ago when a petition bearing 400 names was sent to the War Department at Washington asking that the railroad be forced to open the bridge for boat traffic. The county bridge, further up the stream, is believed to be high enough from the water to allow good-sized boats to pass underneath, though Judge Hall, according to Captain J. W. Dillon, has taken steps toward allowing all boats to pass.

According to a letter from Supt. Miller, the present railroad bridge has been so repaired that it could be opened by four or five men within 20 or 30 minutes. Property owners living up Coal Bank Inlet have protested that large gasoline boats can not come up the waterway.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to publicly express my deepest appreciation of the kindness and sympathy shown me by neighbors and friends during the illness and death of my husband, Thomas Rooke. I especially wish to thank those sending the many beautiful floral offerings.

TELLS HOW TO RAISE TOBACCO

Dr. M. G. Pohl, of Bandon, Describes Best Methods in Cultivating Plants There

Dr. M. G. Pohl of Bandon, who is one of the oldest residents of this county and one of the best authorities on horticulture and agriculture in this section, sends the following self-explanatory letter to The Times.

In a late Oregonian I found an article concerning that an effort is made by some of the Coos Bay farmers to raise tobacco providing the right method is learned in doing such correctly so as to lead to success. Will you allow me to make a few short remarks in regard to this product and its culture?

My experience has taught me that the proper and most advantageous way to raise the plants from the seed is the way used in the southern states of America.

In December select your seed bed, well sheltered, perhaps near some shade trees, spade soil, make a large log and brush heap on top of this bed and set it on fire. As soon as the wood is mostly consumed, rake the remainder off, mix ashes while still hot with the soil and sow your seed while the ground is yet warm.

This is the first work.

In spring when the frost is over and plants are four to five inches high, transplant in well cultivated and rich soil. Tobacco needs more potash than any other plant I have raised.

Distance of planting rows three and one-half feet apart, plants three feet.

Cultivate with cultivator and hoe, allowing no weeds to grow.

Do not use your fertilizer at once, but add when you cultivate.

Tobacco will grow rapidly. When large leaved kinds are used allow twelve leaves to grow, then top the plant. When doing this work break out the two or three leaves next over the soil. This is to keep the leaves from touching the soil as this will spoil the value. Nine to ten leaves is all you allow to grow.

Pass every two days from plant to plant. Allow no sprouts to come on. Break them out with your fingers. At the same time, where the tobacco worm exists (a large, green caterpillar with white and brown stripes and a horn at the back end of the body, some as large as a man's finger), destroy them, not letting one remain. It is generally done with the fingers, but not everyone can stand this kind of killing, then use a pair of scissors.

The ripening of the leaves can readily be noticed. The leaves become darker in color and rough with what appears to be blisters.

Harvesting the leaves is next. Have a large, sharp knife. For four to eight plants stick a stake into the soil, not straight but slanting. Then split the plant within four to five inches from the soil and cut the plant off so that these two parts do not break apart. Hang the plant over the leaning stick. From four to five plants are mostly sufficient and all the stick will hold.

In the evening haul these sticks with the tobacco to the curing place. There you have poles fastened upon which the ends of the sticks rest. Never allow the leaves of one plant to touch with the leaves of the neighboring plant. The leaves when curing will spread out and need attention, for as soon as they touch they will heat, drop off and spoil. Do not cure in the sun for it will greatly detract from the quality of the crop.

This is about as short a description as can be given by a newspaper. More information can be had through the Agricultural Department in Washington, D. C.

There is another crop which should be raised here and that is sweet potatoes. If you know how there is a big profit in it.

FRANK E. ALLEY FACES CHARGES

Roseburg Man Who Is Well Known on Coos Bay, Accused of Non-Support

The following from the Roseburg Review will be of interest here, as Frank E. Alley is well known on the Bay through a number of visits here in connection with land matters and also as a fancier of blooded stock and fast horses:

A warrant of arrest was issued in the local justice court charging Frank E. Alley, a resident of Roseburg for many years, with non-support. The warrant, it is understood, was issued at the instigation of Mrs. Alley. Mr. Alley has been spending considerable time in Portland of late, and from the allegations of the complaint filed by Mrs. Alley, he has failed to provide her with the necessities of life. It is understood today that an officer will be sent to Portland to serve the warrant on the defendant. He will probably be returned to Roseburg some time this week, when he will be given a preliminary hearing. Under the present laws, a man who fails to provide his wife with proper support, may be imprisoned in the state penitentiary.

ATHLETES AWAIT NEW GYMNASIUM

$10,000 Structure to be Completed Next Week — To Form Athletic Clubs

Next week will mark the completion of Marshfield's $10,000 High School gymnasium, according to a statement this morning of J. M. Wright, contractor, who is hurrying the work to a close. The structure would have been finished and ready for occupancy this week he declared, had it not been for a delay in receiving reinforcing and waterproofing for the bottom of the large swimming pool. The contract sets February 1 as the final date for completing the building.

Superintendent Tiedgen has figured out a schedule of hours which the gymnasium will be opened to the young men and women of the city for their use. At the same time, two petitions were today circulated among those outside of the high school who wish to use the gymnasium and these will be presented to the school board for their approval at their next meeting, about February 1.

School days from 5 p. m. until 6:30 p. m., are the hours that the gymnasium could be opened to outsiders, according to Mr. Tiedgen. In addition to this there would be either two or three evenings a week, between the hours of 7:30 p. m. and 9:30, that the building would be open.

Under this schedule the Superintendent believes there will be plenty of time allowed for the high school students, their regular gymnasium classes and the practicing of the basket ball teams.

That the outside men and women who use the gymnasium may be held responsible in a collective manner, the plan of athletic clubs has been adopted. According to the petitions of the school board the plan is to organize two of these clubs, one for the men and one for the women. In this way it will be possible for all arrangements to be made through the officers of these clubs and the members will all be regularly enrolled.

With certain hours arranged for use of the basket ball floor it is believed that the local independent basket ball team will have a chance of regular practice. This they have not had in the past, being forced to travel to North Bend to find a hall suitable for practicing purposes. On this account interest in the team has waned and a schedule with the surrounding towns has not been completed.

The swimming tank in the new gymnasium is large in size and many now will be given a chance to learn how to swim. For the younger generations and those who are timid of deep water a smaller and much shallower tank has been built in the gymnasium, and thus swimming instruction may be commenced at a safe depth. The small tank does not exceed two feet and one half in depth.

On Saturday afternoon the Marshfield independent basket ball team will leave for Norway where they will play that evening. The lineup of the team from here will probably be Otis and Niles, forwards; Hyde, center; Seaman and Buffington, guards.

EZRA MEEKER AT THE FAIR

One of the features of the Washington building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be Ezra Meeker and his team of oxen, Meeker, white of hair and beard, is in San Francisco and will drive his team from the State of Washington to the exposition at the opening next year. A few years ago he drove them over the trail from Seattle to Washington, D. C.
