ONE IDEAL SUNDAY.

MAY I sketch my Ideal Sunday to you? It should be the longest day in the week, if possible—have more waking and enjoying hours in it than a common week day. That day I will hear the early bird song. That day I will catch the dawn in the Eastern sky. That day I will learn what morning silence, morning music, morning freshness mean. Then it shall be my home day. I will make love over again to my home maker. I will fall into love, possibly into acquaintance with my children. They shall know the feeling of my arms around them. I shall know the feeling of their little minds and hearts and watch what happens in their eyes.

Then if I am wise—I may not be, but if I am—I shall generally be in my seat in church; not twice a day, however, only once. It almost seems to augur something empty in the home or self if I can often twice on Sunday seek the church. But once, if I am wise, I will be there in my best clothes and mind and heart. I want to meet my friends whom all the week I have met—perhaps in pushing and half-selfish ways; today it shall be in quiet, not in push. Today we shall face together the ideals. Today we shall be souls together. Today we shall together worship—worship God.

In the afternoon, out doors—into the green of grass, into the shadow of trees, into the companionship of flowers, into the uplift and horizon of the hilltop. In the evening, friends. I confess that I see not how friends can leave their own home to come, but if they will, when so welcome as on the day when it is easiest to be real? This is the day for inward going talks; the day for excursions of minds in twos and threes, the day for mutual trusts which, because confession, are also revelation, and inspiration. And after a day like this of morning hush, of home, of worship, of books, of nature, of friends, how good to sink thankful, trustful, into the silent, solemn night, into stars, into sleep, into God.

FOREST NOTES.

At present there are three and one-half million trees growing in the Forest Service nurseries of Washington and Oregon. This number is sufficient to plant five million acres of burned over land. One and one-half million of these trees will be shipped out this spring for planting on the National Forests of Oregon and Washington.

SHOCK TO SHERIDAN

FORMER ROSEBURG BANKER SURPRISED AT VERDICT

Confidently Expecting Acquittal the Financier Upset by Jury's Finding in Federal Court

The Portland Oregonian contains the following additional details of the verdict found in the Sheridan case which was published in The Times on the day rendered. The Oregonian says:

"Confidently expecting acquittal, Tom H. Sheridan, former president of the First National Bank of Roseburg, was dazed by the shock of the jury returning a verdict of guilty on two counts out of the eight on which he had been tried, which makes him technically liable to a minimum sentence of 10 years' imprisonment in a Federal penitentiary, or five years on each count.

The counts on which he was convicted were the charge of defrauding David Hull, an illiterate stage driver, out of $700, and the charge of taking $1000 from Laura Verrill, a widow, of Roseburg.

Judge Rudkin has the right, although the technical minimum sentence is 10 years, to make the two sentences coincident, which would fix the term to five years.

Finds Weight Reduce Term

The prisoner would be eligible to parole after he had served one-third of his term.

In the prosecution of the case, Ex-District Attorney Wright in every way the investigation which brought the indictment had been to him and had become more or less involved up to 1911 the National Bank Examiner had refused to pronounced that a new charter be granted to the bank.

C. W. Fulton, attorney for the defense, has taken 10 days in which to prepare a motion for a new trial, and judgment will be suspended until then. Attorney Fulton, however, expressed a doubt yesterday whether or not he would file an appeal will be taken.

Sheridan is wholly without bail, at present, he said, "and I do not think that he should ask for bonds further. An appeal would be expensive.

Sheridan's Fee Appeal Not Sure

"As the jurors have been kept together with us I hardly know at this time of what grounds an appeal may be, however, we shall see in a short time."

Throughout the trial the courtroom was packed with friends of the former banker. When the jury brought in its verdict, however, he had no one with him but his son and his attorneys. The jury entered the room at 2 o'clock in the morning and was released at 4:10 o'clock.

The counts of the two on which Sheridan was convicted were those on which the jury had been divided 11 to 1 for acquittal, and subsequently will be suspended until after Attorney Fulton, however, expressed a doubt yesterday whether or not he would file an appeal will be taken.

Smile!

The world takes off its hat to the man with a smile. It turns the cold shoulder to the individual who is sour as a lemon. We all love the man with a hearty laugh. He is our friend. The ray of sunshine for which we yearn, and success perches on his cheerful shoulders. But you say: "It's hard to work up even a sickly grin when you're dead broke and up against the cold old world." We will agree with you son. Here's the remedy. Start a bank account with your first earnings. Add to it. Form the saving habit. Watch the account grow. The smile will grow with it. It is no trouble at all to laugh when you have money in the bank.
