

BE LIBERAL WITH CHILDREN

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears a department called "The Experience Bazaar," in which contributors make suggestions based on their personal experiences. One contributor tells in part as follows: His ideas about parents who overdo economy while their children are young and impressionable:

"Isn't it pathetic to see a family scrimp and save for years to build a big house, rearing the children in squalor and depressing sordid surroundings, and then about the time the children are ready to fit build a house to astonish the natives? A parlor ever so fine, with velvet carpet and a piano, will not minister materially to Grace's culture after she has grown up on shabby sordidness."

"Think about your children's bedroom. Perhaps it is dark and dingy. The children just 'hate' it—with good reason. They will never need the influence of bright, pretty surroundings as they need them now, in their childhood. So instead of waiting for that far-off time when you can afford to give them a fine room, why not let in another window, if it be only an odd-sized one, repaper and repaint in light colors, not forgetting to enamel the furniture?"

VALUE OF A QUART OF MILK

Farm and Fireside says: "When you sell a quart of milk for 7 cents you are giving more food for the money than the buyer can get in most other forms. It is twice as cheap as dried beef, nearly three times as cheap as beef chuck, 40 per cent cheaper than pork loin, three times as cheap as beef sirloin, nearly three times as cheap as eggs. The staples that cost less in proportion to food value than milk are such things as potatoes, rice, dates, corn meal, prunes, cheese, wheat bread, and beans. The above figures will hold good in the average interior regions of the nation."

WATERFRONT NEWS

From Gardiner the tug Gleaner arrived in this morning and expects to stay here to aid the towing of the dredge Seattle to Bandon probably the latter part of this week.

At six o'clock last night the Nann Smith crossed over the bar, outward bound, according to the wireless report received back. She will not be back here before next Monday or Tuesday.

With a heavy passenger list from Eureka the George W. Elder arrived in this morning shortly after nine o'clock and left at 3 p. m. for Portland.

Captain H. E. Edwards is having a new passenger launch built in which he will install the engine of the speedy Cadillac. The new craft he expects to use this summer entirely for the passenger runs. The boat will easily carry 26 persons.

The skipper of the Gleaner expects to return here to Coos Bay as soon as he finishes with the towing of the dredge Seattle to Bandon and tow a Willamette Pacific scow south to Gardiner if the weather permits. This will contain a donkey engine and other machinery for use on the bridge at home on which it is expected to undertake work within a very short time. After this trip it is probable that the Gleaner will be tied up temporarily.

WHAT EVERY HOUSEWIFE SHOULD BE DOING NOW

In the May "Women's Home Companion" every housekeeper is reminded that May is the month:

"To put out window boxes and make a cherry outline for yourself as well as your neighbor. Don't forget a kitchen window box for choice and variety."

"To see that the menu changes with the change in seasons. Include plenty of green and fresh vegetables."

"To get one day's worth of a repair job, and to do all above one day indoors and get what have been accumulating."

THE TROUBLE WITH LIMBURGER CHEESE

Farm and Fireside says: "The trouble with Limburger cheese is that its smell assimilates its delicious taste. A Pennsylvania man states that the outside of the cheese is the part that smells objectionably, and that if this part is cut off in chunks, sliced, and given a few seconds of immersion in hot water the smell will be destroyed, leaving the taste unimpaired. The inside of the cheese, he says, needs no treatment."

ALTITUDES IN THIS STATE

SCATTERED over the State of Oregon are more than 850 bench marks, each showing the exact elevation above mean sea level of the point on which the mark has been permanently placed. The highest point thus indicated which has an elevation of 7446 feet, is in Crater Lake National Park, on the point of a perpendicular cliff at the head of the north fork of Bear Creek, northwest of Mount Scott. The point is marked by an aluminum plate nailed to the base of a 36-inch fir tree. The exact elevation of all these bench marks are shown in Bulletin 556 of the United States Geological Survey, which contains the results of spirit leveling in Oregon, 1816 to 1913, inclusive. The work from 1905 to 1913, inclusive, was done in co-operation with the State of Oregon, under equal allotment of funds by the Federal and State surveys. The bulletin also contains a list of about 200 secondary elevations from records and topographic maps of the Federal Survey, including altitudes of well-known summits, water-surface elevations of prominent lakes, and other useful elevations. The highest point in the state yet determined is Mount Hood, 11,225 feet above mean sea level.

Engineers and surveyors who need to have accurately determined points from which to start surveys of any kind find the spirit-leveling bulletins published by the Geological Survey of considerable value. Although the survey's published maps show the elevations listed in the bulletins are given to the one-thousandth of a foot. Those who have occasion to use the bench-mark elevations in Oregon should have a copy for reference. Bulletin 556, which was prepared under the direction of R. B. Marshall, chief geographer, may be obtained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

OUR FIDELITY

THE naturalized citizen may well repeat every morning the oath which he took when admitted to citizenship: "I do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States and of this state, and that I do absolutely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to every foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty, and particularly the one of which I was formerly a subject or citizen."

The emissaries of foreign nations are busy trying to make our naturalized citizens break this oath. They are actually preaching fidelity to foreign potentates and princes and kings and emperors. There is a danger to our country's peace with the world.

Our fidelity is due to the Government at Washington. We should acknowledge no faith or allegiance to any other. Let us all do this—and the naturalized citizen is scarcely more liable to error in this regard, than the native born—and the blessing of peace may be preserved to us in a world torn by wars, even though the wars should last for many years.—Exchange.

GREAT CHANCE NOW FOR THE AMERICAN CHEESE MAKERS

In regard to the present opportunity before American cheese makers, the current issue of Farm and Fireside says in part:

"Stocks on imported cheeses are now about cleaned up, and American made cheese will get more attention than usual. The average European eats cheese at early every meal, and altogether consumes about eight times as much as the average American. Even after the war is over we need export very little foreign cheese to be sent us for a while, because there will be no few cattle and people left. Now is a good time to start to make cheese, a good demand is certain."

HOW TO GET READY FOR THIS SUMMER'S FIRES

In the latter edition of the May "Women's Home Companion" appears the practical advice to motorists on the subject of lighting the fire successfully appears the following:

"Flies breed and thrive in fish and cat's litter. Use your home."

"Be ready for them with screens and swatters."

"Repair broken screens if holes in the screen are eventually, make a hole in your family circle."

"Five minutes in marriage. Have your garbage can emptied regularly and keep it covered."

"After emptying the tin, flush it with a solution of 91 per cent carbolic acid to reach every part of water. This solution destroys fly life in egg or maggot form."

A new fire can about 50 but left with a single compression of air in its reservoir.

The Belgian government has made the use of the metric system compulsory in that country.

ELDER ARRIVES IN

FLAGS HALF MASTED FOR MORTON TOWER ON TRIP

"Local Color," First Newspaper Aboard Pacific Coast Ships, Makes Second Appearance

With flags in the fore and the main hall masted the George W. Elder arrived in at 10 o'clock this morning from Eureka bringing home the body of Morton Tower and with it two auto loads of beautiful floral wreaths, remembrances of the Elks and other friends in Eureka. This trip the Elder brought in 35 passengers from the south, the largest list coming this way, in months. She left out at three o'clock for Portland taking a heavy list and a fair cargo.

In the dining room of the Elder there appeared this morning the second edition of "Local Color," edited by Wireless Operator H. Saxson. Cartoons of life aboard ship and jokes on members of the crew made the sheet read by all on board.

MARSHFIELD DRUGGIST HAS VALUABLE AGENCY

The Lockhart-Parsons Drug Co. has the Marshfield agency for the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-ika, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. This simple remedy has powerful action and drains such surprising amounts of old matter from the body that JUST ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation almost IMMEDIATELY. The QUICK action of Adler-ika is astonishing. The Lockhart-Parsons Drug Co.

AN OBJECT LESSON

At the beginning of the war, when business looked blue, the automobile manufacturers decided they would go right ahead.

They did not curtail their newspaper advertising. If anything they increased it.

What was the result? The manufacturers almost without exception now report that their sales have increased right along, and in some instances are from 25 to 50 per cent ahead of the same months of 1913-14.

The big automobile shows held in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston, have been attended by the largest crowds ever known in the history of such exhibitions and the number of machines disposed of has been far in excess of those of other years.

The "Don't Need To" Theory

IN A RECENT debate at Havana, Mistah John Johnson failed to convince Mr. Willard. Some few years ago Mr. Johnson surmounted the color line and was the leading man in his line of work. Business was good and profits were high.

Having all the money he could handle at the time, he concluded to take a rest.

To be sure he planned to get into the field again at the proper time.

But everything was rosy and there really seemed no good and sufficient reason why he should spend so many hours a day keeping his muscles lithe and strong and his mind good and his heart and nerves in trim.

Eventually the meeting with Mr. Willard was arranged. Mr. Johnson was still tolerably content with what he had done.

(Brother, a has-done is about as bad as a has-been.)

Mr. Johnson did not care to stand up in the training ring and punch and take punches. He did not see the necessity of practicing side steps and feints and rushes.

He knew all about them. Why he had done all of that he ever needed to do.

Mr. Willard did not overlook the boxing and the wrestling and the clinching and the side-stepping, etc.

As a result, Mr. Johnson received Mr. Willard's compliments to the point of the jaw, and his business career closed.

Advertising a business is the training of that business.

Advertising keeps a business healthy.

It tones up its liver, strengthens its biceps, steadies its heart and keeps its nerves in order.

Once in awhile a man decides that he is doing so much business that he can stop advertising for a while and run on momentum.

Momentum is the gradual process toward a full stop.

The momentum business is usually prematurely full-stopped by the straight left jabs of the well-trained competitor who finds his opening in the 26th round.

If you want to stay in business stay in the advertising field.

No matter how much business you are doing, keep up the energy that makes it.

You might as well cut off your legs because you are running well in a foot race, as to cut off your advertising because your business will continue without it.

You might as well tell the insurance man that you are so healthy you will drop the policy for a few years as to stop advertising because business goes on without it.

"Don't need to" is the eventual preliminary to "Can't do it."

The only man who doesn't need to advertise is the man who has retired from business.

The only policy holders who doesn't need to pay his premiums is dead.

Mr. Johnson doesn't need to train any more. He is licked.

The Coos Bay Times will keep your business in training
